A Salmon Bonanza for B.C.

WHERE there's a will there's a way as Dacker Thicke of Victoria Recycling Company proves daily. Thicke, who operates a scrap yard at Bay and Bridge, couldn't get a crusher for the 125 car wrecks he's collected over the past two weeks. So he rented a bulldozer instead. The method is simple enough. The bucket crashes in the roof of the car, while a deft manoeuvre of the lumbering cat does the rest. "It don't look too pretty," Thicke says. "But it sure gets them awfully flat."

Price Boom From Japan

The catch isn't even in yet, but Japanese businessmen have already embarked on a cash-in-advance buying spree that is expected to push the price paid to fishermen for salmon to $6 a pound, up from $3 last year.

This will result in high supermarket prices but create a bonanza for the Victoria fishing industry.

B.C. Packers, a major provincial cannery, predicts Japan will buy 50 per cent of the salmon catch, up from 27 per cent last year and 12 per cent in 1977.

(Japan already has more than doubled its purchases of B.C. herring roe. By year's end it will significantly exceed the $220 million it paid in 1978 for about half of all the fish products caught in B.C. waters.)

The result will be a record income year for fishermen despite the fact the total salmon catch will be lower than in 1978 because the run is at a low point in the cycle.

Oakland Industries president Ned Easton said the report is good news for the 1,200 fishermen in the Victoria area and for his cannery as well.

"We will be employing about 250 people around the clock for at least two months to handle the catch."

He said the high bidding means added wealth for the Victoria economy, although it was too early to put a dollar figure on it.

"This is what we hoped to achieve when Cananda put in the 200-mile fishing limit," Easton said.

"We stopped them from fishing in our waters and now they have to buy from us. There will be people who are unhappy about the Japanese buying so much of our fish but this is what the 200-mile limit is all about."

Easton said it would be difficult to predict where the price of canned salmon would go on the local market.

The price increase might be minimal, he said, because a large supply would come on the market at one time, despite the heavy Japanese buying.

However, federal Fisheries officer Larry Duke was less optimisitic about local prices. The Japanese bidding inevitably would push up the price for both fresh and canned salmon in Victoria, he said.

"This looks like good news for the fisherman but bad news for the consumer," he said.

Prairie Flood Threat

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — Rising floodwaters threatened several Manitoba and Saskatchewan communities today, but most of the danger remained south of the U.S. border.

Residents of the Peguis Indian reserve on the Fisher River in the Interlake area of Manitoba appeared to be hardest hit Friday. Crews planned to evacuate residents to Gimli today.

About 1,600 people live on the reserve, 150 kilometres north of Winnipeg, and Gimli industrial park was being readied to receive 300 to 500 of those forced out of their homes.

Scattered flooding was also reported in the Gimli area.

Meanwhile, the flood watch continued in southern Saskatchewan, with officials keeping a close eye on slowly rising waters.

The most volatile situation appeared to be in around Estevan, Sask., where water levels at Boundary Dam reservoir were rising quickly.

Residents of Carman, southwest of Winnipeg, were busy sandbagging in preparation for the crest on the Boyne River expected Sunday or Monday.

Most parts of Winnipeg proper remained dry, and the gates of the Winnipeg floodway were raised Friday to channel additional water from the Red River around the city.

However, some problems were reported because of runoff water and water from creeks in the city, which caused some streets to be under water and a number of flooded basements.

Harry Enns, minister in charge of the Emergency Measures Organization, said Friday local flooding and the crests of the main rivers should be well separated.

"We're not expecting the main rivers to crest for another week to 10 days, and hopefully by then much of the water from smaller tributaries that are now flooding will disappear," Enns said.

About 600,000 of the one million sandbags stockpiled by the EMO have already been distributed.

Manitoba's problems seemed minor, compared with those facing residents of North Dakota and Minnesota near the Red River and its tributaries.

Much of the area's farmland was under water, but the real battle was to keep damage in developed areas to a minimum.

In West Fargo, N.D., volunteers worked through the night repairing dikes along the Sheyenne River.

Grand Forks, N.D., and East Grand Forks, Minn., were also considered critical areas along with Graf-

One Tiny Thing Wrong . . .

There's only one little thing wrong with Esquimalt's new $870,000 public safety building which officially opens next month.

The police wing has been built back-to-front.

But the architect's rendering put the entrance off Park Place, a lane running at the back of shops on Esquimalt Road.

Council apparently spotted the discrepancy some months ago but didn't bother correcting the plan because that would have cost an extra $700.

A spokesman said the police officers don't mind. They're just happy to be out of the cramped quarters in the basement of the municipal hall that had been their home for the past 25 years.

"Besides," the spokesman added, "You got to admit 500 Park Place is a lot easier address to remember."

Maiden Flight Ends in Crash

A Sidney RCMP spokesman said the man, whose name has not been released, was trying to return to the airport when a wing tip clipped the sea about 700 metres off the Anacortes-Sidney wharf.

Ron Wickstrum, aboard his sailboat Windless 2 saw the crash and raced to the scene where he threw a line to the pilot and hauled him to safety.

The Washington State ferry Kalatin arrived about 20 minutes later and stood by as the RCMP vessel Harvison and two pleasure crafts in the area latched on to the single-engine Rand plane and towed it to the government wharf at Sidney.

An air controller at Victoria airport said the pilot indicated he was having problems shortly after taking off.

"All we knew was he was experiencing difficulties," the controller said. "But he was too busy to elaborate. We don't know what went wrong."

Still Open Season on Mail?

TORONTO (CP) — Interlocking loopholes in regulations governing the RCMP and customs officers allow the force to legally open virtually all mail coming into Canada, even while the practice is under investigation by the McDonald commission into RCMP wrongdoing, according to the Toronto Star.

The RCMP Act accords officers of the national force all the rights of customs officers.

And the newspaper says it obtained a copy of confidential Revenue Canada regulations which say customs officers are entitled to open all mail arriving internationally "other than letters."

However, The Star says its source added that the definition of letters is sufficiently loose "that a lump or bump in an envelope as simple as a fold in a letter" is suspect.

Former RCMP commissioner William Higgitt told the McDonald commission that all mail-opening by the force under an operation named Operation Cathedral was suspended Aug. 1, 1975.

"Sometimes the customs officer himself will open the mail," The Star quotes its customs source as saying. "All he needs is suspicion that it contains contraband."

The Star also quotes a confidential Revenue Canada intelligence report issued in June, 1977, as saying only seven to 10 per cent of international mail is scrutinized due to volume and manpower restrictions. Letters most likely to be singled out come from Thailand, India, Peru, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Jamaica and all Communist countries.

"It's absolute bull," RCMP Supt. John Bentham said Friday in a telephone interview from Ottawa. "And we're not opening letters as customs officers do either."

The Star quotes Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, as saying the RCMP still opens mail.

Promising Day In Campaign

FP News Service

It was a promising day on the federal election campaign trail Friday — very promising.

The Liberals promised a tax deduction for workers who buy shares of companies in which they work, the New Democrats promised a tax-saving plan for home owners and renters, and the Conservatives promised to promote national unity with cheap air fares for Canadian youth.

(For details of all the promises and other campaign stories, see pages 30, 31 and 32.)

After unveiling a string of incentives and assistance programs for business and industry early in the week, Prime Minister Trudeau offered something for the workers — the Employee Stock Ownership Incentive Plan. The Liberals hail it as an encouragement to equity investment in their own company by Canadian workers, and say it will "contribute to an improvement in labor-management relations."

The NDP's cost of living tax credit tax credit was unveiled in Winnipeg by party-leader Ed Broadbent.

Broadbent's plan would also give substantial credits to about 82 per cent of old age pensioners.

When unveiling his program to help Canadian youth travel unexpensively, Clark criticized the Liberals for not following up on the original suggestion, from the Official Languages Commissioner.

Speaking haltingly in French to a gathering in Quebec's Eastern Townships, Clark said cheaper youth fares would promote national unity by letting Canadian young people learn more about their country.

A-G to Probe Baby Beating Death

SURREY (CP) — Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy said Friday she will ask Attorney-General Garde Gardom to investigate RCMP demands to have the beating-death case of a 10-month-old child here last year re-opened even though an initial examination shows the claims are groundless.

The two officers who initially investigated the case say they want it re-opened because social workers knew of the infant's peril three months before it died.

Although the baby's father, Walter Bayko, 23, is serving a life sentence for the killing, they are not satisfied justice has been done, say Cpl. Kit Gill and Const. Norman Hunchuk.

The baby's death could have and should have been prevented, said Gill.

"Some blame should be on human resources (the provincial social services agency) as they were aware of the beatings and didn't do anything about it," Gill said.

"I know they have one hell of a work load but that can't be an excuse. We have a heavy load, but I'm sure if we knew about it we would have done something."

The child, Charlene Harder, was taken to hospital March 23, 1978, with her body covered in bruises and with a severe skull fracture. Blood was dripping from her mouth.

She died the next day.

A spokesman for the human resources ministry said a social worker went to the home of Bayko and June Harder, the child's mother, the day after an anonymous caller said in January 1978 that the man had been beating the baby.

The social worker said he visited the home twice and saw bruises on the child's cheeks, forehead and left leg.

Harder said on the first visit the baby had been hitting her head on the sides of her carriage and had fallen out of it.

The next day the social worker was assured by Bayko, Harder, Harder's mother and brother that the baby was being looked after properly and was not being abused.

The human resources spokesman said when a worker tried to follow up the case a month later he could not find anyone at home.

Gill says there should be a coroner's investigation or an inquiry into the human resources handling of the case.

Social workers knew that Mrs. Harder's first child had been given up for adoption, and Gill said he made sure that her third, born after the death of Charlene, had been taken by human resources.

Hunchuk says he was amazed that more action was not taken in the case.

"Obviously something went wrong. Someone goofed along the line or passed the buck. It was very lax."

Rhodesian Turnout At Polls Tops 60%

Times News Services

SALISBURY — Voting ends today for Rhodesia's first black-majority Parliament with the turnout expected to pass the 60-per-cent level leaders sought in their bid for Western recognition for the new government.

Although Bishop Abel Muzorewa was widely expected to win the elections and succeed Smith, initial official tallies were not expected until late today.

By the close of polls Friday after four days of voting, election officials said 1.74 million voters — or 59.9 per cent of the total electorate — had cast ballots.

Before the voting started Tuesday, election officials said they would have been satisfied with a 20 per cent turnout given the insecurity in the war-torn countryside.

Smith, who unilaterally declared Rhodesian independence from Britain in 1965 rather than accept majority rule, veered between sadness and pleasure Friday night at the end of white rule, which he once said would last 1,000 years.

Tall and erect, Smith told reporters Friday the unexpectedly high turnout in the election was an endorsement of his majority rule accord with three local black leaders that should prod London and Washington to recognize Rhodesia.

"What more do you want?" said Smith, gesturing into a blinding mass of television camera lights and acknowledging he will shortly hand over the reins of government to a black prime minister.

The United States and Britain have refused to recognize the elections, saying they excluded the Soviet-backed black nationalist guerrillas and would not end their six-year bush war.

As Smith spoke, the military announced Rhodesian warplanes streaked into neighboring black-ruled Mozambique to pound guerrilla targets in Gaze Province, on the road to the capital of Maputo, and returned to base safely.

Mirroring the new defiant confidence in Salisbury, Smith said, "We'll continue knocking the living daylights out of these (guerrilla) camps every day."

Rhodesia's air offensives and mobilization of some 100,000 armed men ensured a relatively undisturbed election and humiliated guerrilla leaders who had staked much of their prestige on threats to disrupt it.

Chad Invaded?

PARIS (Reuter) — Goukouni Oueddei, Chad's state council president, has called on the population to mobilize after accusing Libya, his former ally, of invading the north-central African country, well-informed sources here said.

French officials have not been able to confirm the invasion that, the sources said, Oueddei announced on Radio Chad Friday.

Typhoon Batters Philippines

MANILA (AP) — Typhoon Cecil battered several islands in the central Philippines, leaving 21 persons dead, 69 injured and 24 missing, the National Disaster Control Centre said today.

The typhoon hit last Sunday. The centre said damage and casualty reports were slow being reported because many of the stricken areas were isolated.

Hardest hit were Samar and Leyte islands, with a population of about 620,000, the centre said.

Damage to crops and property was put at $18.1 million. Cecil packed winds of 200 kilometres an hour and sank 23 inter-island ships in the area.

Fragile Calm Settles Over South Lebanon

Times News Services

BEIRUT — A fragile calm has settled over southern Lebanon following the declaration by right-wing militias of a secessionist Free Lebanon enclave and heavy rightist shelling of United Nations headquarters there.

Travellers from the troubled area said there were no major incidents Friday but rightists under renegade army Maj. Saad Haddad still were blocking the coastal road leading south to UN headquarters at Naquoura on the Lebanese-Israeli border, isolating the complex from the rest of Lebanon.

"The roads are cut from the Israeli border to Tyre," the Biblical port about 10 miles north of the frontier, a UN officer confirmed.

Israel has given crucial support to Haddad's militiamen since handing the area over to them a year ago following the March, 1978, Israeli invasion of southern Lebanon.

Haddad made his proclamation in response to the deployment of 500 Lebanese army regulars to UN areas in southern Lebanon.

His gunners shelled the Lebanese contingent as it arrived in positions well back from the main confrontation points between the rightist militias and the 6,000-man UN interim force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) to the north of the Free Lebanon enclave.

The Lebanese troops were sent in to comply with UN Security Council calls for the re-establishment of a government presence in southern Lebanon.

Haddad's declaration was seen as a gesture of defiance of the United Nations and the Lebanese government.

In a statement published Friday by the Beirut newspaper An Nahar, Haddad said Maj. Mounir Malli, the commander of the Lebanese troops will be executed "as soon as he is captured by our forces."

He also called on UN commander Gen. Emmanuel Erskine, vacationing in his native Ghana, to "return immediately from his hideout in the African jungle and assume responsibility for his promise that no army would enter this area without our approval."

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, meanwhile, charged Friday that the United States was behind the Free Lebanon declaration.

"Haddad is but a pawn on a chessboard. The grandmaster is America."

Lost Tickets Mailed In

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 3,800 Loto Canada tickets that fell from a Brink's truck here March 16 have been located, a spokesman for the federal lottery agency says.

Guy McLellan, regional general manager for Loto Canada, said an unidentified man who picked up the tickets made no effort to cash them.

The tickets were in sealed pouches and he could have tried to cash them, although there was a chance they could have been traced.

The first of the 22 missing envelopes showed up at its intended destination, a Vancouver-area bank, on April 6. The last one was received a week ago.

All had been sent to the original consignees without stamps and were unopened.

Brink's had posted a $5,000 reward for return of the tickets but officials do not expect it to be claimed.

Loto Canada spokesmen said when the tickets were lost that lottery odds meant 1,266 of the missing tickets could have brought in prizes ranging from a another free ticket to $1 million. The draw was held March 30.

Scalper Gets $150 Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Tickets to the Rolling Stones benefit concert in Oshawa, Ont., on Sunday are being sold for as much as $150 each, some scalpers say.

One man who said he had three standing-room tickets said Thursday he had been offered $300 for a pair and $100 for the other.

"I'll take bids until tomorrow afternoon, and then they're going to the highest bidder."

Real Rugged Chore For the Tugging 10

In Tipton, England, it took five firemen, two ambulance men, two police constables and a doctor to lift Muriel Brown from the floor to a sofa. That was Tuesday. Muriel is still on the sofa, refusing to move even though her doctor wants to take her to hospital for treatment for obesity. Muriel says she weighs 700 pounds and proudly claims to be Britain's fattest woman. But Muriel, 49, refuses to go to hospital to lose weight. "If I go in they wouldn't let me eat or smoke," she said. "Those are my only pleasures in life, so I'm just not going." Muriel was visiting her 85-year-old mother's home when she fell and was unable to get up. The tugging 10 managed to get her on the sofa by lifting the corners of the carpet.

. . . plans to sue

Some cancerous cells were found when film star Henry Fonda underwent an operation two days ago to remove a urinary obstruction and to ease arthritic pain in his left hip, hospital officials in Los Angeles said Friday. The cells were found in the area of the prostate gland at the base of the bladder, the hospital officials said.

Industrialist Cullen Davis was granted a divorce in Fort Worth, Texas, Friday by a judge who ordered him to pay $3.3 million to the wife he is accused of trying to kill. But the judge said Priscilla Davis, 37, who had sought $50 million, must surrender the couple's $6-million mansion within 30 days. Mrs. Davis said the divorce, her third, did not sour her views on marriage. "I think it is marvellous," she said. "I still believe in it. It is like the U.S. government — it is still the best in the world."

Somebody who might not agree with that assessment of the U.S. government is author Norman Mailer. U.S. Internal Revenue Service officials say they have received a high bid of $65,000 for the author's Cape Cod waterfornt home. The home in Provincetown, Mass., valued at more than $100,000, was put on the auction block by the IRS after Mailer, author of The Naked and the Dead, failed to pay $81,521 in taxes for 1976 and 1977. Mailer still can keep the house if he comes up with $65,000 plus a penalty fee, 120 days after the high bidder pays for the home.

More disagreement might come from Steve Rubell, co-owner of the trendy New York disco, Studio 54, who says he intends to sue the city of New York for $5 million in damages because he had to stay in jail for 30 hours last week. Rubell was arrested April 12 after a scuffle with a TV film crew from Baltimore, Md., that wanted to film television star Robin Williams, who play Mork from Ork in the hit series Mork and Mindy, at the exclusive disco on West 54th St. He was held from 4 a.m. on April 12 to 10 a.m. on April 13 before he was arraigned.

Finally, it should come as no surprise that Peter Snyman says his bid to set a record for living in a den of deadly snakes at Hartebeespoort, South Africa, has left him a nervous wreck. As of today, he still has 22 days to go to break the 36-day mark. "I've already had a violent nervous reaction," Snyman said, speaking slowly and swinging his eyes back and forth across the gravel floor in search of his 24 poisonous companions. He says part of his challenge is finding out the extent of his self-control under constant emotional strain, like when the serpents crawl over him or curl up to him to bask in his warmth.

Steel Net Closing On Jinja

Times News Services

Tanzanian troops advanced warily today on the strategic Ugandan town of Jinja after refugees said they believed ousted dictator Idi Amin was there with loyal soldiers who were butchering civilians.

Refugees fleeing from the town, east of Kampala, said they did not speak to anyone who saw Amin in Jinja but everyone believed he was there.

They said the town was looted bare, without water and electricity and the streets were littered with corpses of residents shot by Amin's Nubian troops.

The Nile gorge separates Jinja, which straddles the vital supply route from land-locked Uganda to the port of Mobassa on Kenya's Indian Ocean coast, from the army of Tanzanian troops and returned Ugandan exiles which captured Kampala, the Ugandan capital, 10 days ago, ousting Amin and installing a new governvent.

The road into Jinja across the Nile runs over the Owen Falls Dam, whose power station supplies almost all of Uganda's electricity.

The new government said Tuesday that a motorized Tanzanian column dispatched from the main force had secured the dam, but a fleeing Ugandan bus conductor said there were pro-Amin army roadblocks at either end when he crossed Friday

The fleeing refugee also said a helicopter kept flying in and out of the Eagle Gaddafi Battalion barracks near the town. Only Amin had been known to use a helicopter.

Other refugees reaching Kenya said an orgy of murder and rapine by troops still loyal to Amin had intensified in the past few days when they estimated 700 men, women and children had been shot down, most of them in the Bukedi and Budama districts.

Many of the troops are member of Amin's northern Kakwa tribe. One man, who would not disclose his name, said: "They seem determined to keep on killing until they have used their last bullet. They know they have lost the war."

Some of the refugees have urged the new Kampala government to speed its military advance into "unliberated" areas where the killings are going on.

Kenyan officials at the border town of Busia are trying to spot fleeing Ugandan soldiers and police among the refugees. The refugees said some soldiers had buried their uniforms and put on civilian clothes in an attempt to flee the country.

Shah's Family Borrowed $226M Before Flight

TEHRAN (UPI) — Members of deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's family borrowed $226 million from Iranian banks before they left the country, an official said today.

Hashem Sabbaghian, Deputy Prime Minister for Transfer of Power Affairs, told reporters the withdrawals were made against total bank deposits of $1.37 million in the banks.

Sabbaghian named the shah's relatives who were accused of the borrowings, often made against "cheques" written on plain paper.

He said a deputy minister of the imperial court wrote out a cheque for $3.7 million on a plain piece of paper and the amount was paid to a certain Abdul Fathi.

Sabbaghian disclosed that bank accounts of ll former members of the shah's Parliament had been frozen after revolutionary guards discovered 75 kilos of gold coins in the Parliament treasury.

He hinted the gold coins were given as rewards to those who worked in the rubber-stamp Parliament.

Abdollah Riyazi, longtime president of the Parliament, was executed recently along with several members after summary trials by Islamic courts.

Cooling off takeover fever

Takeover fever shows no sign of abating in the Canadian corporate world. It seemed after Premier Bill Bennett dissuaded CP Investments Ltd. from buying up MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. that the fast and furious rate at which Canadian companies were gobbling each other up might slow down.

But since then the pace has picked up, fuelled in part by the understandable desire of companies to stash some of their record-level earnings of 1978 some place safe from the taxman.

Hudson's Bay Co., which probably invented the department store three centuries ago, was acquired by the Thomson family which owns more than a hundred newspapers, as well as radio and television stations and interests in North Sea oil and the travel business.

But first it had to fight off the Weston conglomerate (more than 150 bakeries, supermarket chains and food processing firms) for the opportunity to pay $35 a share.

Now Brascan, a Canadian corporation which owns a major Brazilian utility, real estate and mining companies in Canada, has made a similar pitch for F. W. Woolworth Co., the American chain of five and dime stores. In turn, Edper Investments, an arm of the Bronfman family (controlling several billion dollars in assets) has gone after Brascan.

This only brings the takeover situation up to date on what's happened in the last month among the giants in Canadian commerce. Last year, the Bay swallowed Zeller's and Simpson's department stores. At the time, that concentrated 60 per cent of the department store business under one corporate umbrella, surely an unhealthy situation in any sector of the economy.

In the last year there have been many other takeovers, some 800 in all, the highest number in more than a decade. They have been overshadowed by the manoeuvres of the corporate giants, but they also have important side-effects locally or regionally.

To compete in a world of multinational giants, Canada may need to encourage the big corporate mergers to create units which can compete on a world scale but when one giant absorbs another, in terms of employment, the resulting whole is sometimes less than the sum of its parts. The billions being spent in corporate takeovers do not create new jobs, which is the crying need of the Canadian economy.

One lesson of the present frenzy of takeover activity is the complete ineffectiveness of Canada's present anticombines legislation. The concentration of nearly two-thirds of one economic sector in one corporation should be considered unhealthy in any country. But as its title indicates, the existing Combines Investigation Act emphasizes simple factfinding.

For a decade, the federal government has been tinkering with a new Competition Act to replace the outdated and toothless combines law. The present alarming spate of corporate takeovers ought to spur whatever party forms the next government to make it an item of high priority on its legislative schedule.

Very confusing

Simultaneous federal and provincial election campaigns in British Columbia do not appear to have created all that much confusion among the voters, but the political parties and the province's big forest companies can't seem to get their stories straight.

This week, B.C. had a rather heavy-handed hint from Crown Zellerbach to vote Socred on May 10, because the NDP is not capable of "the tender loving care" the forest industry needs.

Then national NDP leader Ed Broadbent toured a Port Alberni pulp mill and came out praising MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s "fine performance." He said it was "an example of a corporate citizen doing a good job."

Coming from the leader of a party which once lumped the company among the corporate welfare bums and whose B.C. wing not so many years ago voted to nationalize MacMillan Bloedel, that was indeed startling news.

Similarly confusing were Social Credit's campaign ads which contrasted the poor performance of the mining and petroleum industries under the NDP and their much improved position in 3½ years of Socred government.

MacMillan Bloedel didn't help any, either, with its own ads which sought to justify its high profits in 1978 by stating: "It helps to make up for 1975. 1976. 1977."

If the NDP takes the blame for depressing one half of the economy during its term in office, who's responsible for the poor performance of the forest companies during much of Social Credit's administration?

It's very confusing.

The west gains some clout

All Vancouver seems interested in is legalizing marijuana.

John Robarts, former premier of Ontario and co-chairman of the national unity task force, believes that one reason the west is alienated is because by the time the polls close there, the rest of us have already picked a new government and have switched off our television sets.

The west's frustration is understandable. Yet, Save Canada-type cures are hard to come by, short of a single, sea-to-sea time zone that would send half of us to bed in darkness while the other half arises in gloom.

Instead, the problem is beginning to cure itself. As economic power shifts westward, so does political clout. On May 22, the west for the first time will send more MPs to Ottawa (77 versus 75) than Quebec will. Thus, to find out who wins, or whether the winner has won a majority, we'll have to wait for the action to cross over the Rockies.

In most places on the prairies, Liberals compete for popularity with CPR vice-presidents (grain handling division). Indeed, by calling farmers complainers, Trudeau may have pushed the CPR into the lead.

Deep blue

On election night, the prairies will be deep blue. Because of bilingualism. Because of "why should I sell your wheat?" even though it now is being sold. Because of Dief the Chief. Because, by far the most of all, Trudeau has a knack for putting down the prairies even when, perhaps most particularly so when, he sets out not to. As is Joe Clark in Chicoutimi, so is Trudeau in the prairies: Neither [illegible] nects.

In Alberta, the breathless question to be settled election night is whether Industry Minister Jack Horner will merely lose his seat, or his seat and his deposit. Albertans believe — it's how the oil industry runs — that a man's word is his bond, and thy believe Horner, an ex-Conservative, broke his. Bet on 21 Conservatives in 21 seats, if you can find a sucker to take it.

Manitoba isn't that much different, although the big "because" here seems to be bilingualism rather than Trudeau. Fomer Liberal provincial member Lloyd Axworthy, whom Senator Keith Davey describes as an electoral Reggie Jackson, stands to be struck out by former Conservative provincial minister Sidney Spivak. The old Liberal francophone seat of St. Boniface went Conservative in last fall's byelections, and probably now is too suburbanized and too assimilated to be won back.

The New Domocrats, though, should enlarge their two-seat Winnipeg North foothold into a beachhead. The party prays for four more seats but its best hopes rest with United Church minister Bill Blaikie in Winnipeg-Birds Hill. Of the 14 seats, the NDP should win three, and the Tories the rest.

Saskatchewan is the odd prairie province out. It's about to sprout rows of NDP green. A professional NDP poll puts the party ahead of the Tories in the towns by 41 to 31 per cent with the Liberals behind at 28 per cent, and ahead even in the countryside by 40 to 39 per cent, with the Liberals out of sight at 21 per cent.

The reason is the one you'd expect: NDP Premier Allan Blakeney's coattails are long and wide, even though Conservative candidates are doing their best to snip them short by reminding farmers that along with the nice NDP you get the nasty unions, who do things like halt grain trains in their tracks. Transport Minister Otto Lang should survive in Saskatoon, mostly because redistribution has reduced to just two the number of farmers left to complain at him. Otherwise, of the 14 seats, the NDP could win six.

British Columbia is off in its own political space. Of five callers to a Vancouver television show on which Trudeau appeared, four asked about marijuana and the fifth whether he believed in a "holistic, planetary society." Trudeau said he thought he did.

Pinched between mountains and sea, B.C. voters are the jumpiest in the country during elections — let alone in between them. The Liberals reckon they won half of their 1974 haul of eight seats in the campaign's last week. The parallel provincial campaign will make everyone jumpier still. For instance, NDP workers will be on a high during the last two weeks if provincial leader Dave Barrett wins on May 10, as he well may, or will be plunged into a downer.

Liberals are up

In B.C., you'd have to add immigration and unemployment to the list of "because," but as counterbalance note that the "Joe Who?" question comes up more often here than anywhere else.

Certainly the Liberals are up from last fall's dumps. The party has recruited more name candidates here than elsewhere, such as Art Phillips, the tall, beautiful former Vancouver mayor who should beat "No-I-won't-yes-I-will" Conservative Pat Carney; ex-provincial leader Gordon Gibson and popular alderman Doreen Lawson. The unions here are marching arm-in-arm with the NDP, yet party star Pauline Jewett could be chopped down by Conservative Margaret Gregory, a hang 'em at dawn housewife.

The NDP talks of 12 (including Iona Campagnola's Skeena), the Liberals of up to eight (as many as they now hold) and the Conservatives of 22. That's half as many again as B.C.'s 28 seats, and is the reason we'll still be staring into our television sets in the early hours of May 23.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

Clark comes to town
For pale morning rally

Reporters on the Joe Clark campaign bus talk of how "controlled" the campaign is. Control, it has long since been discovered, is a polite word used to describe the machinations of Conservative organizers to ensure that Clark is never in any situation where he might have to think on his feet, handle a heckler or deviate a single word from the script planned for him.

That sort of control certainly was the key word when Clark paid a rushed, hour-long visit to the Victoria area on Tuesday before heading up-Island.

Many of the problems of the visit were not the fault of either Clark or his organizers. The only time available for the Victoria visit was from 8:45 to 10 o'clock a.m. At that hour it's terribly hard to get big crowds out and organized, harder yet to get them awake enough to show much enthusiasm.

Whether the Tories can be blamed for this or not, however, it made their rally seem a pale, over-controlled imitation of the performance put on for Victoria by Prime Minister Trudeau just 10 days earlier.

Clark had no time for mainstreeting or any situation in which he might have met a few ordinary Victorians. Indeed, he never even reached downtown or any centre of the city's population. Instead his entourage was met at the airport by a couple of buses which whisked him away immediately to the site of the rally, the auditorium at the Garth Homer achievement centre in Saanich.

Local Tories had made an obvious effort to collect a crowd to make it look like a proper campaign rally. There were stacks of brightly-colored signs supporting the local candidates, Allan McKinnon, Don Munro and Don Taylor. There were Tory posters taped on the walls and pots of coffee for those who arrived early.

Yet, oddly, none of it altered the antiseptic atmosphere of the place. At first, one thought it might be the stark white of the walls, the over-bright glare of the fluorescent lights. But Saanich council has met in the same auditorium without generating the same feeling of sterility. It must have been the Tories themselves who created the atmosphere, not the building.

The crowd consisted of perhaps 300 Tories plus almost 100 Clark aides and press people disgorged by the buses. There was not a heckler among them; indeed it is most unlikely there was (aside from the reporters) a single person among them who was not previously committed to voting for the Tory cause.

ELECTION DIARY '79

The only interruption in Clark's speech came from a man who asked the supporters in front of him to lower their signs so he could get a better look at the party leader.

Off the bus, Clark walked briskly through the crowd to the stage. A few people chanted: "We want Clark, we want Clark." A few people cheered. The rest clapped politely.

The agenda for the rally was mercifully short. A two minute introduction of Clark and a two minute speech from McKinnon thanking him were the only items other than the leader's speech.

Clark's speech was the standard sort of election talk with rather more platitudes mixed in than usual, even for politicians. There were a number of cracks at Trudeau, most of them relating to perceived inconsistencies in what the prime minister had been saying in different parts of the country.

There was one plank in the Tories' election platform: The first rehash of Clark's promise of several months ago to make mortgage payments and property taxes deductible expenses for income tax purposes.

Aside from that there was nothing but generalities, talk of the strength of Canada, of its great future, of its need for better leadership.

The audience clapped in all the right places.

With the speech over, Clark moved through the crowd, a little slower this time, stopping to shake hands, to talk briefly with many of those in attendance. It took him about 15 minutes to work his way back to the bus, by far the longest time he spent with people while in town.

The observers who have been noting the amount of control in the Clark campaign have also been noting that Clark does not seem to be running the campaign for the populace at all; rather he seems to be running it for the television cameras.

That, more than anything else, appears to be the difference between the Clark visit here and the one by Trudeau. Although Clark received a much more positive response from those who saw him, although he never met a heckler, there was no indication he had any feeling for Victoria or the people here.

Trudeau may be reviled and detested, but during his brief stay, he made sure he belonged to Victoria. — B.McL.

Trying to fool us?

We were awfully disappointed when we found in the Easter Saturday edition of your newspaper, instead of a Happy Easter greeting, a picture of a boy holding up his oily hands and other articles of human misery and violent acts of nature.

Surely one of your editors could have contacted one of our civic or religious leaders to give us an Easter message of hope and new life!

Easter is the most important feast day in the lives of many people. To ignore this event either shows a complete lack of knowledge, or is a deliberate attempt to try and fool us by making us believe that Easter is nothing more than another paid holiday. — Willi and Ria Tritt, 3832 Persimmon Drive.

For the over-55s

According to B.C.'s department of vital statistics for 1976, there resided in this province 107,345 males and 118,435 females between the ages of 55 and 65.

These figures are increasing roughly at the rate of 15 per cent per year, showing that at the present time over a quarter of a million people fit into this category.

A small percentage are on pensions, while others have been able to continue working. The majority however, find themselves unemployed and unable to maintain their accustomed standard of living.

For those on pensions, the rising costs make their income insufficient to meet the needs of today. Most of these people are conscientious workers, anxious to remain independent, yet fearful of having to resort to government handouts.

This segment of our society is not old enough for the old age pension, yet too old to be eligible for the work force.

These are the people who have built and fought for this country. Their energy and talents are responsible for our present standard of living.

Most are still healthy and have an accumulated wealth of experience and know-how in many fields. They come from all walks of life and from a variety of occupations.

What a waste of talent! What a shame to lose this great productive work force!

I know that these younger senior citizens would be the first to admit they are not as physically capable as their younger counterparts. However the experience that can only come with age as well as the greater sense of responsibility that these people have, compared with the majority of today's young, more than compensates for the fact that they have slowed down somewhat.

I would like to propose that a meeting or seminar be arranged to put forth thoughts and ideas on how people in this age bracket might find ways to become employed either on a full or part time basis, and to maintain their pride and independance without looking to the government for hand-outs.

Should you agree with the above remarks and would be interested in holding such a meeting, please phone me at 477-7079 any day after five o'clock. — D. H. Burns, 1476 Golden Place.

Rubbing shoulders

One small two-letter word "it", seems to sum up what is wrong with Joe Clark and his Tory campaign officials. In publicizing Clark's first public speech to a large crowd, they referred to Clark as addressing "it", instead of the people, the voters, the citizens, or even just the human recognition of "them." Expanded on a national scale and descended from the heights of power, this is a very demeaning, cold and removed attitude.

It is quite the opposite of what Clark claims when he states he is going to be available, rub shoulders with, seek advice from and chat up the common herd, or little man. I feel this is closer to the truth than he thought and hoped possible to discern. Too close for comfort for him, as well as us. It also now appears that a vote for the federal Tories just might be a vote for the B.C. Socreds, so there goes any chance Clark had from federally frustrated and impatient B.C. voters. — Joan Bittorf, 1073 Davie Street.

Silent K

The continued interest in a metric replacement for the word 'mileage' prompts me to share my suggestion.

Surely the obvious word (for distance in km) is 'kmileage', with the k being silent, as in knot, knee, etc.

Too simple? I prefer to think of it as pure genius. — Michael J. Rooksby, 4260 Cedar Hill Road.

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN
An Editorial

Many leaders in many lands sought mercy for Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. Politicians who knew him as a vivid, adroit, essentially political man sought mercy. The two super powers — Carter and Brezhnev — sought mercy. The entire Islamic world, fearful of the light that execution would shed on one more Islamic republic, asked gently and insistently with a single voice that Bhutto's life be spared. Precious few of these appeals treated the deposed PM of Pakistan as a saint. He was always mercurial and often malevolent. But he was popularly elected: massively so. He possessed gifts that an impoverished country struggling for identity had found useful. Was he guilty of conspiracy to murder? The case itself was a thing of shreds and patches: built on a casting vote with suggestions of clemency attached. Could anyone in reason, in such circumstances, order the hanging? President Zia could: Zia did.

In a curious way Bhutto's last hours on earth served to set his career and character in firmer perspective. When he ruled Pakistan he on occasion laughed at the law. He oppressed his opponents and sometimes locked the prison door and threw away the key. But was there ever a single episode in Bhutto's career as unfeelingly vindictive as the final squalor of the Rawalpindi condemned cell, the covert execution, the brusque humiliation of the grieving family? Death came to Bhutto not with the due panoply of justice but like a thief in the night — a deed done shamefully, apprehensively, and with desperation. And this from a "bluff honest soldier." If Zia was the bluffest and most honest that PM Bhutto had to deal with, one may well conclude, then what can the rest have been like? Small wonder, either, that on occasion, back to the wall, he had to cut corners.

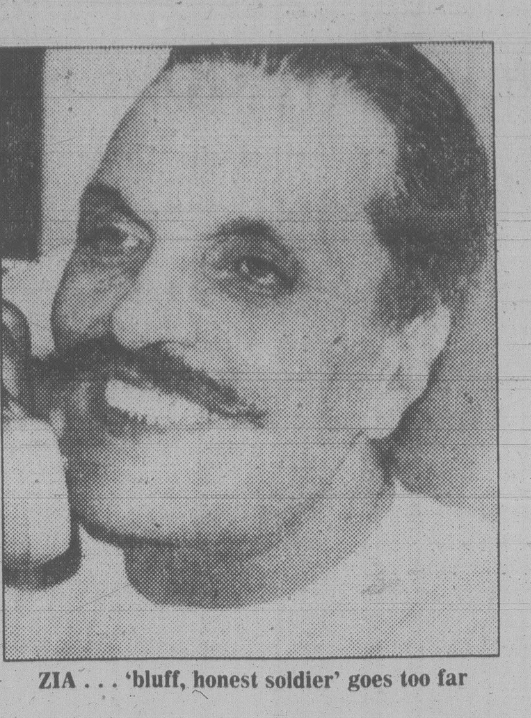
In the chill arena of diplomatic calculation, the contemporary world will be looking at Pakistan afresh. It has long been a deeply-troubled nation, tormented by separatist urges and bitter resentments. Now, at the end of the vast islamic swathe of troubled lands, Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan, it seems more vulnerable than ever. Iran, after decades of the Pahlavi autocracy, may be thrashing towards a new system of government. But Pakistan, alternating between nights of the generals and brief dawns of democracy, has never in its three decades of existence found a durable formula. Its chances look bleaker this month. Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, the flawed politician, is dead: we shall not have to wait long for the reincarnation of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto the myth and the martyr. The party he founded, hounded and bullied through it has been for two full years, is still by far the most potent force in Pakistan. If there are to be elections this year, that party will have to fight. If the elections are to be meaningful and if this month's events are any guide it may have to fight with vengeance in its heart. So how can there be decent elections? How can the people elect the men and women of their choice when the man they would have chosen, even recently, lies in a furtive grave? How can the army let go?

One may always live in hope, as those who care for the creation of a stable Pakistan have hoped for 30 years, that the worst would at the last be averted. But if a true, healed democracy next November seems next to impossible then one general will follow another — and military rule, beset by economic discontent, is almost at the end of its tether. Iran has lately shown us a military dictatorship at the end of its tether.



ZIA . . . 'bluff, honest soldier' goes too far

We may thus be haplessly embarked on a drama that Middleton and Rowley might have penned in their blacker moments. The grimy cell; the bloody act; the unwinding retribution. Less emotively, the current president of Pakistan has left himself few options. He had a free choice. The Supreme Court gave him that choice. He has chosen one course for his country amidst a demeaning cacophony of propaganda and petty insults. Now, with Bhutto gone, the hot-line telephone to the Chief Justice temporarily silenced, he stands alone — a man who seized power proclaiming that Pakistan must at last make its leaders "accountable" for their acts. That may be a difficult thesis to live with.

Divinity is India's most profitable free enterprise

By SUNANDA DATTA-RAY

CALCUTTA — Indians are relieved. The supreme council of the Bharatiya Jyotirvad Sammelan, trade union of those who rule lives because they alone can read the stars, has finally decided that marriages can be performed during the 18 months following August.

Consternation swept the country when pundits first announced that this would be an extremely inauspicious period. But the Indian Astrologers Association now explains that "the particular planetary configuration under reference prohibited marriages only in areas lying south of the Ganges and north of the Godavari rivers."

Self-respecting Hindus, who won't stir out of the house without a nod from the gods, don't, of course, live in this belt of rock and jungle, home of aboriginal tribes beyond the sanctity of Indo-Aryan culture. But Acharya Bhaskaranandlohani, the chairman, offers further reassurance when he says that even there "the restriction applies only to girls below 12 years of age."

As girls below 12 years of age cannot marry legally, that's not much to worry about. Nevertheless, 620 million Indians look to astrologers, palmists and fortune tellers for guidance in all matters. The lucky few patronize those resplendent god-men whose sumptuous ashrams also attract hordes of American and Australian devotees.

Divinity is probably India's most profitable private sector enterprise. The wonder is that it has so far escaped the eagle eye of New Delhi's policy-makers who are out to nationalize everything in sight.

Perhaps this is because the country's rulers are themselves so heavily dependent on those who claim to understand the mysteries of planetary conjunctions. Not for nothing did a West Bengal conference of pundits demand last year that astrologers should be appointed to advise cabinets and individual departments. Ancient monarchs, they pointed out, didn't take a single decision without first consulting the stars.

Nothing has really changed. The resident astrologer to India's first president, Dr. Rajendra Prasad, was a man to reckon with; he could secure a civil servant's promotion as easily as he could wangle a seat on a crowded airplane. A former Commissioner of Calcutta refused to assume his duties until the prescribed auspicious moment; while a friend who recently needed a foreign exchange permit to travel in the United States successfully applied to the bank chief's occultist.

Several Janata Party ministers refer all their problems to permanent consultants. For special occasions they seek the advice of astrologers in Bombay and Calcutta who are regularly flown to New Delhi. Even Marxist leaders have been known to employ discreet intermediaries to have their horoscopes drawn up and read.

In 1971, when every politician with a future (and many without) was feverishly seeking divine intervention, the Press Commission complained that "the spread of the habit of consultation of, and reliance upon, astrological predictions, particularly of the nature and in the manner they are published at present, is certain to produce an unsettling effect on the minds of readers."

It went on to object that prophecies "give room to unfounded fears, apprehensions or hopes of the most dangerous character which can have serious consequences on public order and public welfare."

The Press Commission report prompted Mrs. Indira Gandhi's government to toy with the notion of forbidding newspapers to publish political forecasts. The ban was never enforced because obviously there was no way of stopping politicians from seeking celestial aid.

Shortly afterwards her own entourage acquired a tall, dark and handsome yogi, bearded and in a white cotton dhoti negligently draped over a muscular form. Dhirendra Brahmachari, who owns a fleet of Japanese cars, a private Maule aircraft, an ashram in the Himalayas and a 16-room air-conditioned mansion in New Delhi, became notorious as "the Rasputin of India." He now faces a string of corruption charges.

But there was a time when senior ministers and civil servants sought his help, when only the very rich or the very powerful could afford his private yoga lessons.

Describing Dhirendra Brahmachari's technique, an Indian magazine wrote: "He makes the patient lie on his or her back. He takes a string, places one end on the navel and measures the distance between the navel and the right or the left nipple. 'Since ladies' breasts vary in shape and size and some droop, instead of navel-nipple distance I measure the distance between the navel and the left or the right toe . . . The navel is the centre of the 72,000 nerves in the human body . . . The navel is like the pulse. When I feel the navel, I can tell blindfold what is wrong with the person.' "

But if Brahmachari's sun set with Mrs. Gandhi's, there are others riding high. The best-known abroad is a 59-year-old former railway clerk, Prabhat Ranjan Sarkar, known to an estimated 4 million world-wide followers as Anandmurti or Image of Joy. His Ananda Marg cult claims to be a spirituo-cultural mission preaching "liberation of the self and service to humanity." A close contender is Mahesh Yogi of Beatles fame, who now prefers to dabble in transcendental meditation in Switzerland.

Chidananda Brahmachari in Calcutta is reputed to cure incurable disease. Poona is the HQ of the controversial Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh whose luxurious ashram is as popular with American millionaires as with the Hindi cinema's matinee idols: Morarji Desai has recently been fending off MPs' demands for an inquiry into allegations of sexual orgies there. There is Dadaji, who dispenses bottles of Scotch labelled "Made in Heaven" and the plump young Balyogeshwar who is not only charged with tax evasion but whose spiritual stewardship is disputed by his brothers.

Another argument centres on Sathya Sri Sai Baba, who lives in Bangalore, sports an Afro hairdo, flaunts ankle-length robes in crimson watered silk, and can conjure up Swiss wrist watches out of thin air.

Two years ago an irreverent Ceylonese, Dr. Abraham Kovoor, 81, set out on a "divine miracle exposure campaign" but was flatly refused an audience by Sai Baba when he arrived in Bangalore. His offer of a $14,500 prize to establish "supernatural or miraculous powers under foolproof conditions" was also rejected. Nor would Sai Baba accept the local university's invitation to demonstrate his talents to the skeptical.

Most Indians, however, turn a deaf ear to whispers of simple sleight of hand. For them, as for Shaw in Saint Joan, a miracle is an act that inspires faith, never mind how it's done.

Birders' hot-line keeps humming

Victoria's Rare Bird Alert celebrated its second birthday last night. The event passed quietly, almost unnoticed by even those who benefit most from its existence — the local birding fraternity.

In the words of Vic Goodwill, who, when his wife Peggy isn't filling in for him, is the "voice" of the Rare Bird Alert (RBA), "the RBA went active at 20:30 DST, April 20, 1977." In the intervening time, with regular and frequent updating, the RBA has been keeping the local birders — and visiting aficionados from other places — up to date on the state of birds and bird-watching around Victoria.

Vic recalls that the first few weeks of life for the RBA were something less than a resounding success, due largely to the persistent interference of a host of electronic gremlins. Their efforts resulted in several false starts and a few red faces before all the wires were uncrossed.

But looking back over the record of those two years, the early difficulties don't show. Within 10 days of going on the air, the RBA was rallying Victoria birders around its first rarity — a Chestnut-collared Longspur. Ron Satterfield, who has been a significant contributor to the RBA throughout its first two years, turned up this little resident of the plains on Victoria Golf Course — a place that has made its own contribution to the success of the RBA.

Through the summer of that first year the local birders were kept hopping as a Marbled Godwit, a Common Egret, a Sandhill Crane were among the rarities seen.

Exotic visitor from Mexico

But, after only six months in business, the RBA found itself publicizing a truly great rarity — a Tropical Kingbird. This exotic wanderer from western Mexico gained a place on our list thanks to the intervention of Neil Dawe of Qualicum Beach.

Neil — on his way to Victoria — had stopped for a hamburger at a well-known hamburger emporium — now defunct — on the Island Highway in Colwood. It was while waiting for his order that Neil saw what he thought was a Western Kingbird which, while not in the class of a Tropical Kingbird, would have been quite a find. Subsequent checking revealed Neil's bird for what it was — a first for Victoria. The record does not reveal if Neil ever got his hamburger.

The hoopla over the Tropical Kingbird didn't die quickly but such birds as a Fulmar, a Cattle Egret and a White-breasted Nuthatch — the last by Jeremy Tatum — eventually helped us forget that tropical wanderer and close out 1977 in fine style.

While 1978 saw such rarities as an Emperor Goose, two Pomarine Jaegers and a Stilt Sandpiper — a first, in spring, on the north Pacific coast — go into the books, the year was remembered for two items that were carried on Victoria's RBA but which did not happen here. They were the surprise occurrence of a Humboldt Penguin at Mitlenatch Island and a Spoonbill Sandpiper at Iona Island in Vancouver.

The first record — a South American bird — is now being explained as having arrived in our waters with the help of passing merchant seamen. The second, while marking the close co-operation of birders here and in Vancouver, was a "first" of this little resident of northeastern Asia for North America — outside of Alaska.

These few records are only a small sample of the kind of stuff available on Victoria's RBA. If you haven't already availed yourself of the service, just phone 383-0227 and, thanks to Vic and Peggy Goodwill, you'll get the latest dope on what's happening on the local birding scene.

Who knows, you may get in on another Tropical Kingbird or even a Spoonbill Sandpiper. But the word is now out — no more penguins!

Become a new you with the new Q

One of those bedrock rules that we always thought kept civilization from slipping its moorings was that "Q" is always followed by "U". You could be a terrible speller, but when you got to "Q", you always knew what the next letter was.

No longer. Martin and Lewis broke up; the Beatles separated; now that pervasive, modern fit to split is driving apart the most tightly bound letters of the English alphabet.

Qantas, the Australian airline, started it. That name, touted as "the only word in English where Q is not followed by U", is not a word but an acronym for "Queensland and Northern Territories Aerial Services." Perhaps they should have called it Ausways, or Downunder Airlines, or Thornbirds International, because Quantas — pronounced "kwantas," as if it contained a "u" — opened the floodgates of confusion.

Now we hear that the Ayatollah Khomeini has moved from Tehran to Qum, pronounced "hum" with a gutteral "h". Qum looks normal — its Q is followed by U — but now we're getting reports from Qom (an alternative spelling of QUM) as well as Qena in Egypt, Qataba in South Yemen, Qadima in Israel, Aqaba in Jordan, and muffled shouts from the Qasr prison in Tehran. All strictly non-U.

Here's a Q-and-A on Q and U:

Q: Why drop the "U" after the "Q" in the names of cities in the Mideast?

A: The Hebrew KOPH and the Arabic GAF are not adequately described by the English letter "K". To pronounce some names in the Semitic world, we need a symbol for the sound we make when we are gathering phlegm in the back of our throats — hence, the Q without U. Standing there nakedly, Q is used to describe the final sound in "yecch!"

Q: Where does that leave Q followed by U?

A: That combination stands for "kw", as in "quick" (which could also be spelled "kwiqu", but it's not.)

Q: Does Q followed by U always stand for "kw?"

A: No — in words we have taken directly from French, it stands only for "k". That is why it would be grotesque to spell Iraq "Iraque", since its final sound is not "k" but "ach".

Let's hear it, then, for the liberated "Q", no longer slave to the querulous queries of questing questioners who believe only in the "qu" QUA "kw".

For that necessary back-of-the-palate snarl, become a new you with the new Q. Try it on the radical leader of the Libyans, Colonel Qadaffi. Or try it on the Ayatollah himself, ensconced in Qum or Qom: the "KH" in Khomeini is another way of imitating that throat-clearing sound, and could be spelled Qomeini.

In months to come, we'll be getting on line to use the 17th letter of our alphabet in a different [illegible] our new ability to handle the sounds of the Mideast, we can thanQ.

SINATRA . . . goddam!

* * * *

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, speaking two years ago in favor of tying a raise in Senate salaries to a cut in the amount that senators could earn from outside sources, told his conferes: "We have gotten our salary increase . . . but we cannot have our cake and eat it, too."

His figure of speech was inverted. "There is a popular proverbial expression which most people get wrong," writes George S. Hendry of Princeton, N.J. "They say: 'You can't have your cake and eat it.' You can — if you do the two things in that order; in fact, you must have your cake before you can eat it. The trick is to eat your cake and have it."

In the dark of one recent night, Byrd reversed his position against the limitation of outside income and slipped a provision through the Senate that gives the senators their salary increase and lets them keep their previous ceiling on outside income. That's eating your cake and having it, too.

* * * *

The story on the United Press International wire had what wire-service editors call an "attentioner" on the top, calling attention to the use of a profane word in the copy that followed, in case the receiving editors wanted to blank it out. That drew my eye down to the dangerous paragraph:

" 'William Safire is a goddamn liar,' Mr. Sinatra added."

I was, needless to say, shocked. "Goddamn" as one word with an "n"? I called UPI in New York and was told that UPI style calls for one word, a lower-case "g" and the "n" at the end of "damn". The man at the desk added that the crooner's remonstrance had come to UPI on a telex spelled "g-d damn," two words, which the wire service fixed to conform to its style. (Some writers spell "God" "g-d" because they believe the name of God should not be written, but that should not apply to a small-g god.)

I had always thought that "goddam" — written as one word, with a lower-case "g" — carried no final "n". However, diligent research shows that The New York Times Manual of Style and Usage agrees with UPI in using an "n" in writing "goddamn" (and adds a warning that it "should not be used at all unless there is a compelling reason"). So does Merriam-Webster's Eighth Collegiate, although that dictionary gives "goddam" as an alternate in its noun form ("I don't give a good goddamn-goddam"); in its verb form ("I'll be goddamned-goddammed"), and in its adjective form ("goddamned-goddamn-goddam liar"), as in the UPI version of Sinatra's usage.

I think the style books and the dictionaries are wrong to prescribe or prefer the use of "n". Here's why: Everyone agrees on the noncapitalization of "g" — in this case, god is not the Supreme Being, but a small god, as in "godfather" or "godforsaken."

I'd take that non-diety notion a step farther: The last half of "goddamned" does't mean "damned" in the sense of "accursed" either. Most dictionaries have that wrong. A "goddamn liar," to use UPI style, is not a liar divinely accursed but is simply very much a liar. Since the damnation has been removed from "damned," ought not the "n" be removed as well — to signify the change from curse to general emphasizer?

I think the "n" should go — it's not pronounced, anyway. In the same way, the phrase as used as an expletive — "Goddamn! There goes another nuclear plant" — calls up no meaning of a stern diety; rather it is a whoop of admiration or exasperation, like "gosh darn" or the western-movie "gol-dang." The "n" preserves a previous, and now erroneous, meaning, and should be dispensed with.

CAE Signs Valve Pact

TORONTO (CP) — Two CAE Industries Ltd. divisions have signed agreements with one of the world's largest manufacturers of pipeline valves to produce the valves in Canada for domestic use and for export, the company announced Monday.

CAE Machinery Ltd., of Vancouver and Welmet Industries Ltd. of Welland, Ont., signed the agreements with the W-K-M Valve Group of Houston, Tex. to manufacture and market W-K-M pipeline ball valves.

Welmet will concentrate on the smaller 14-to-24-inch ball valves.

CAE Machinery will manufacture the larger valves for pipe diameters of between 24 and 42 inches.

Orders for the valves are expected to be contingent upon major pipeline projects proceeding in Canada.

GOVERNMENT TESTING LABORATORIES

Notice of intention to invite proposals

Crown Assets Disposal Corporation and Public Works Canada will be inviting proposals for the establishment of a testing laboratory operation in what was previously Public Works R & D Testing Laboratories in Ottawa, Ontario. This would include:

☐ the leasing of any or all the laboratory facilities; and

☐ the purchase of all or part of the testing equipment.

The Public Works Laboratory Building, located at Riverside Drive and Brookfield Road in Ottawa, comprises 4,409.8 m² on three floors and includes environmental chambers, temperature and humidity controlled rooms, Tenny cold room, curing room and the usual features, fixtures and facilities essential to laboratory operations.

Testing equipment comprises the full range in the construction, soil, petroleum and chemical products categories.

Guidelines for submission of proposals will be provided to interested parties attending a tour of the plant and a briefing on Wednesday, May 2, 1979 at 10:00 a.m.

Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission
PUBLIC NOTICE

Ottawa, April 9, 1979

BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY - PROPOSED ACQUISITION OF GTE AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC (CANADA) LIMITED FROM GTE INTERNATIONAL INCORPORATED

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission has received an application from the British Columbia Telephone Company (B.C. Tel), for approval of an agreement with GTE International Incorporated (GTE) whereby B.C. Tel would acquire GTE Automatic Electric (Canada) Limited (Automatic Electric), a wholly-owned subsidiary of GTE. In accordance with Section 9A of the B.C. Tel Special Act, this agreement must be approved by the Commission before it can come into effect.

Automatic Electric, a company which was incorporated on April 20, 1953 with its head office and chief place of business at Brockville, Ontario, manufactures telephone sets and a variety of equipment used in telephone switching systems, which are sold to operating telephone companies in Canada and abroad. Automatic Electric owns all of the issued and outstanding shares of GTE Lenkurt Electric (Canada) Limited (Lenkurt Electric). Lenkurt Electric, a company which was incorporated on February 22, 1949, with its head office and chief place of business at Burnaby, British Columbia, manufactures transmission equipment and related components which are sold to companies both in Canada and abroad.

The application indicates that under the terms of the proposed agreement, GTE will sell and B.C. Tel will purchase all of the issued and outstanding shares of Automatic Electric. In payment of the purchase price under the agreement, B.C. Tel proposes to issue to GTE not more than two million nine hundred and fifty thousand (2,950,000) ordinary shares of its capital stock with an aggregate value of not more than fifty million dollars ($50,000,000).

This application raises a number of important regulatory issues on which the Commission invites comments from interested parties. With regard to B.C. Tel's revenue requirement, the Commission will wish to determine the effect of the proposed acquisition on the Company's rate base, financial reporting requirements and income.

The relationship between B.C. Tel and Automatic Electric, both controlled directly or indirectly by GTE, has been a matter of considerable concern and attention in past regulatory proceedings. In the Commission's view, the effects of the proposed acquisition on this relationship must be carefully examined. In this regard, it will be important to ensure that the technological decisions and purchasing practices of B.C. Tel, as well as the prices paid for equipment by the Company, will be in the best interests of B.C. Tel subscribers, if the application is approved.

Procedures to be followed

The application and accompanying documents are available for public inspection during normal business hours at the offices of B.C. Tel, 3777 Kingsway, Burnaby, British Columbia; and at the offices of the CRTC, Suite 1130, 701 West Georgia, Vancouver, British Columbia or 5th floor, Central Building, Les Terrasses de la Chaudière, 1 Promenade du Portage, Hull, Quebec.

Any interested person who wishes to comment on this application may do so by mailing or delivering a letter of intervention to the Commission with a copy to B.C. Tel. The mailing addresses to be used are: J.G. Patenaude, Acting Secretary General, CRTC, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N2; and R.J. Bouwman, Secretary, British Columbia Telephone Company, 3777 Kingsway, Burnaby, British Columbia V5H 3Z7. In the case of delivery by hand, the locations listed above for public inspection of documents should be used.

A letter of intervention should clearly state the intervener's views regarding the application together with any relevant information which may be useful in explaining or supporting those views. It may also include a statement of intention to participate at a public hearing should one be held.

In order to be considered, all interventions must be received by the Commission and B.C. Tel on or before May 4, 1979. Copies of replies from B.C. Tel to any interventions must be received by the interveners concerned and by the Commission on or before May 25, 1979.

In order to complete the application file, the Commission is sending written interrogatories to B.C. Tel requesting further information and particulars. Interveners will also be permitted to address interrogatories to B.C. Tel provided they are received by B.C. Tel on or before May 4, 1979, with a copy to the Commission. B.C. Tel must furnish replies to all interrogatories, with a copy to the Commission, on or before May 25, 1979. Should B.C. Tel object to any interrogatory, such objection must be accompanied by full written reasons in support of the objection.

In order to assist interveners, the Commission directs that a copy of the application and the Commission's interrogatories be mailed by B.C. Tel to any person who expresses an interest in receiving this material. Such inquiries should be directed to B.C. Tel in writing, with a copy to the Commission.

It is the Commission's intention to convene a public hearing to consider this application unless the Commission is satisfied that a decision can be reached on the application on the basis of the written material filed within the time periods set out above. If the Commission determines that a public hearing is necessary, it will take place in Vancouver, British Columbia commencing June 5, 1979, at a time and location to be specified later.

J.G. Patenaude,
Acting Secretary General.

Whistle-Stopping's Dead, Man

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Next week Premier Bill Bennett slips into a $400-an-hour helicopter to hop around the Gulf Islands with local MLA Hugh Curtis.

The press — which has been left in the premier's contrail as he flits around the mainland in a $1,000-an-hour corporate executive jet aircraft (apparently laid on free by Socred supporters) — will be trailing this time in their own helicopter.

The press corps is expected to hire a smaller $330 an hour helicopter for the nine-hour, jackrabbit bounce around five Gulf Islands and four other locations in Saanich and the Islands constituency.

Transportation in Campaign '79 has changed so radically from even a few years ago, whistle-stopping has been given an entirely new outlook, and should be given a new name.

In fact not one political leader in the May 10 provincial campaign has yet made plans to use a train at all.

The last politician to use the B.C. Rail on a campaign was W. A. C. Bennett when in August, 1956, he rode the newly opened PGE line from North Vancouver to Prince George.

His trip was ostensibily non-political, but it came less than three weeks before a general election, and he used every opportunity to spread the Socred word along the route.

So it's been 23 years since the last real whistle-stop campaigning took place.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett is using a 39-passenger bus for much of his campaign. Isn't that bus stopping?

When Barrett does take to the air, he flies in the older-type aircraft. So he could be said to be prop-stopping.

When the premier comes back to earth, he travels around in a Winnebago, sort of mobile-stopping.

The Winnebago has had trouble coming to a complete stop a few times, however. Once it banged into a stop sign and another time it hit a reporter's rental car.

But if whistle-stopping is becoming a lost art, there's one campaign stop that will never be replaced — the shoe-leather wearing, hand-bruising, face-to-face street greetings that politicians have put up with since the British parliamentary system was born.

Who's Paying? Barrett Asks

VERNON (CP) — Opposition Leader Dave Barrett wants to know who's paying for the jet plane Premier Bill Bennett is using during the current B.C. election campaign.

"Who's paying for that jet that costs $700 to $1,000 an hour," Barrett asked Friday, after the premier accused the B.C. Federation of Labor of using union funds for promoting Barrett's New Democratic Party:

"Who's paying secretly for that jet the premier's flying around in."

Barrett promised Friday that a New Democratic Party government would increase the British Columbia minimum wage beyond the present $3-an-hour level.

However, the economic impact of such an increase would have to be studied first, the NDP leader said.

Barrett said there has not been an increase in the minimum wage for three years, while consumer prices have risen by about 30 per cent.

Asked to comment on Bennett's charge that federation president Jim Kinnaird is using union funds for political purposes, Barrett said if any person or trade union wants to contribute to the NDP it will be publicly known.

Names Confuse?

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Independent Business expressed concern Friday that its name may have become confused with that of a group which is openly supporting a party in the British Columbia election campaign.

John Bulloch, president of the 54,000-member federation, said there is a similarity between the federation's name and the name of a group which he said is sponsoring political broadcast advertisements in B.C.

"We're concerned that people in B.C. may be confused, believing our group is involving itself in a provincial election," Bulloch said in a statement. "Nothing could be farther from the truth."

North Rail Link Debate Picks up Steam

Canadian Press

Debate over construction of a rail link through British Columbia to connect Alaska and Washington state picked up steam — and controversy — Friday as the B.C. election campaign began chugging faster.

Premier Bill Bennett said his Social Credit government won't build one inch of rail until the Americans agree to put up most of the money for the project.

This counters statements earlier this week by Dave Barrett, New Democratic Party leader, that the railway would greatly benefit both countries and his party would give swift attention to the proposal if it became the government May 10.

Meanwhile, Bennett's relatively sedate day of campaigning Friday was broken by a heckler who was wrestled to the ground before bursting into a Social Credit party election rally in Trail to tell the premier he was a good BSer.

But Bennett also showed a sharp tongue as he described Barrett, defeated as premier in 1975, as all washed up and a man who is not keeping abreast of public issues.

And Barrett criticized what he called devastating financial chaos and $6 billion in dead-weight debt accummulated under Social Credit's administration.

B.C. Rail has constructed a rail road bed to Dease Lake, about 200 kilometres south of the Yukon border, and another 1,520 kilometres of construction, most of it in the Yukon, would be required.

Washington state senator King Lysen told the Vancouver Board to Trade this week that his state's senate has sent a resolution supporting the plan to the B.C. government, but has not yet got a reply.

"I'm not going to let the Americans skin us," Bennett said Friday. "The bulk of the money must come from them and they must have it up front."

Jim Williams, a 48-year-old Worker at the Cominco smelter in Trail, stood up at the end of the premier's speech to deliver his colorful label for Bennett.

Williams left the meeting but then tried to return. He was wrestled to the ground by two party officials. He struggled from their grip and rushed into the hall again shouting that the party was hypocritical and should replace the sun on the provincial flag with a swastika.

Earlier Bennett visited Doukhobors in Castlegar, dined on borscht, a Russian soup, and homemade bread and presented the sect with $120,000 cheque.

The money will be used to complete a replica of a commune established by the group when settled in B.C. after fleeing religious persecution in Russia around the turn of the century.

During his tour of the Rossland-Trail riding, held by NDP incumbent Chris D'Arcy, he presented a $365,000 cheque to the mayor of Rossland for renovations to that city's arena.

Barrett told an audience of about 750 persons in Salmon Arm that the provincial auditor-general's report shows that the Social Credit government has amassed a cumulative debt of $6 billion over its years in power.

He said $1 billion of that results from Social Credit mismanagement in signing the Columbia River treaty, an amount owed by B.C. Hydro.

The treaty with the United States regulates water levels on the river, shared by both countries, and sets prices for the sale of power to the U.S.

The B.C. Railway is carrying about $66 million in debt, said Barrett, but he declined to elaborate on other debts, referring reporters to the auditor-general's report.

He said Bennett lied to the people when he called a provincial election for May 10, citing private versus public ownership as the major issue.

Barrett said the province is in an economic mess.

He told voters in Vernon earlier that an NDP government would increase the minimum wage of $3 an hour, unchanged over the last three years despite an increase of 30 per cent in consumer prices.

He qualified his promise, however, saying his party would first study the impact of changing the rate.

Elsewhere in the province, the federal NDP candidate in the riding of Burnaby said a provincial cabinet minister and a number of provincial Social Credit party members are on a confidential federal Conservative membership list.

Svend Robinson said Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch's name is among those on the list, passed to him by an irate Conservative party supporter.

He also said provincial Conservative candidates in three Greater Vancouver area ridings have been pressured by their federal counterparts not to run so that Social Credit candidates can pick up more votes.

He did not disclose any names.

Squamish Voting 3 Times

SQUAMISH (CP) — British Columbians who are bewildered by the confusion arising from overlapping federal and provincial election campaigns can expect no sympathy from residents here.

Squamish voters face three elections within 17 days in May.

On May 5, residents go to the polls to elect a mayor to replace Pat Brennan, who died in February. The candidates are former mayor and pharmacist David Stewart and Isidoro Boscariol, a retired logging operator and former alderman.

That's in addition to the provincial election May 10 and the federal vote May 22.

"We have elections for all three levels of government all in one month," said municipal returning officer Bill Bloxham. "I don't think it'll ever happen again."

Squamish is in the federal riding of Coast-Chilcotin and the provincial constituency of West Vancouver-Howe Sound.

Party Fields Four

Lawyer Doug Christie, who founded the Committee for Western Independence and is running as a candidate in the Esquimalt-Port Renfrew riding, says the Western Independence Party will have at least four candidates in the May 10 provincial election.

Victorian Celebrations Society official Ossie Osborne, Christie says, plans to run in Cowichan-Malahat.

Alert Sounds

Red measles is on the increase in B.C. and children should be immunized against it, regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil said.

Arneill noted that red measles (Rubeola) should not be confused with German measles (Rubella).

"The latter disease has been prevalent in this area for some months, but is a completely different disease to red measles," he said.

While many children have been immunized against the disease at the age of one year, many others in the Greater Victoria area have not, he said.

Four-Month-Old Babies Can Find Work at UBC

VANCOUVER (UPC) — About 100 babies participating in a research project at the University of British Columbia will go on the project payroll at $1 an hour, but will be laid off before their pay cheques reach six figures.

"If they worked all year, they would earn around $124,800 a year," UBC psychology researcher Keith Humphreys says. "But we employ each baby for about 10 minutes and then lay them off."

Humphreys is working on a project to record infant perception to sound and light. He needs about 100 4-month-old babies to participate in the experiment and will pay them out of his research grant.

"I advertised for babies and quite a few mothers responded," he said.

Extra Police for Endako

FRASER LAKE (CP) — RCMP will bring in extra men to prevent trouble the next time Placer Development Ltd. tries to ship minerals out of its strike-bound Endako mine, a police spokesman said Friday.

The decision by the three-man detachment to increase its manpower comes in the wake of violence Wednesday night when a crowd of 100 to 150 hurled rocks at trucks leaving the mine and at least one shot was fired.

"We'll bring in extra manpower to prevent further problems," said Constable Carl Maloney.

He said a couple of drivers in the 24-truck convoy had been slightly cut by flying glass when rocks smashed windows in the vehicles.

Since the strike began Feb. 14, the company has continued to ship molybdenum concentrates from the mine, located 120 kilometres west of Prince George, while union members have tried to block the shipments and followed them to various parts of the province.

The last shipment from the mine where employees are represented by the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers (CAIMAW), was worth $11 million.

Maloney said police investigating the Wednesday incident could only confirm one gunshot, which flattened a tire on a truck, although drivers said they heard three or four shots.

Pearson College Plays

Lester B. Pearson College will be stressing its international character in a theatrical production tonight and Sunday in Max Bell Hall at the college.

In a series of four one-act plays, two will be performed in English, one in French and one in German.

For those members of the audience who speak only English, the drama department's Albert Sturm has arranged for extensive program notes and an English "Prelude" and "Interludes," which will explain the plots and action in advance.

The French production is Eugene Ionesco's The Lesson, which is concerned with the dangers of indoctrination. The German play is Goethe's The Wayward Lover, treating the universal theme of love and jealousy.

One of the plays in English is a delightful farce on marital infidelity, How He Lied To Her Husband.

Pearson College's drama department's previous productions have been praised for their vitality and over-all quality.

Tonight's performance begins at 8 and Sunday's at 3 p.m.

Model Citizens? Burnaby Bureaucrats Take Chance

BURNABY (CP) — Model-glider pilots have succeeded in rising above bureaucrats, procrastination and a repressive parks bylaw.

The parks and recreation commission here has decided to lift the ban it imposed on the flying of radio-controlled gliders at the Burnaby Lake Sports Complex last August, as part of a general ban on model aircraft, Gordon Squire, assistant recreation administrator Gordon Squire said Friday.

He said operators will be permitted to fly their noiseless aircraft under the same conditions imposed on anyone else using the eight playing fields at the recreation centre.

Squire said the ban was imposed after nearby residents complained about noise caused by powered model aircraft, and tests found they were contravening the municipal noise bylaw.

He said that under the revised bylaw, gliders will not be lumped in with motor-driven craft.

Officials also were concerned about the dangers of the high-speed, powered models after one had struck a passerby, another had gone through a car windshield and a third through the window of a residence, Squire said.

The ban on gliders was fought by George Eckschmiedt who had been flying his hand-built, balsa wood and fibreglass glider during his lunch break for the past five years.

He began his eight-month battle against the bureaucracy after requesting and being refused the records of the noise measurements.

Eckschmiedt said the bylaw, an updated version of one written in 1943, is too repressive.

"In effect, you could not throw a 59-cent glider you buy at the grocery store in a Burnaby park without contravening the bylaw," he said.

"There is an element of danger in any activity. My car has been damaged by a frisbee and my son has been in hospital for two days after being hit in the head by a volleyball."

Squire said efforts to find a new site for the power models has been unsuccessful.

He said one problem is the municipal noise bylaw over which parks and recreation has no control.

No Inquest Set In Ball Choking

BURNABY (UPC) — There will be no inquest into the death of a man who choked to death on a ping-pong ball, District Coroner Doug Jack said Friday.

Police are satisfied it was accidental death and there is no need for an official inquiry, he said.

According to police, Adolf Daxboeck, 23, was competing with his girlfriend to see how far across a room they could blow a table-tennis ball. The man put the ball in his mouth and apparently inhaled.

"The man accidentally swallowed it and it became lodged in his throat," a police spokesman said. "All attempts to free it failed and he choked to death."

Daxboeck was rushed to hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival.

New Slate Elected

VANCOUVER (CP) — A slate headed by Bob Hudson has swept the executive positions following a court-ordered election in the Vancouver local of the Laborers International Union, the union said Friday.

Nick Kiniak, the former local president who was ousted by the union's international office 18 months ago, finished third in the ballotting for president.

Armed With Mops

VANCOUVER (UPC) — A small army of churchgoers armed with mops, brooms and dusters worked against the clock Friday to get a vandal-damaged church ready for services Sunday.

The volunteers have cleaned up most of the mess left by vandals who broke into the 67-year-old St. Thomas Anglican Church Tuesday and it is likely services wll be held, Rev. Eric Lowe, the church rector, said.

The Vandals overturned the altar, poured Communion wine on the floor, scattered crayons everywhere and left church records strewn over the main office. Before leaving, they set fire to the office furniture.

By the time fire crews brought the blaze under control, the office had been badly damaged and the church building inundated with water and soot.

Rev. Lowe said the church was insured, but repairing the damage will probably cost "thousands of dollars."

Police are investigating the incident, but no charges have yet been laid.

Bitter Strike Ends at SFU

BURNABY (CP) — A bitter 5 1-2 month strike at Simon Fraser University ended Friday night with an agreement between the administration and 650 clerical and technical employees.

Negotiating committees of the Association of University and College employees and management of the university signed a letter of agreement for a 16-month contract, a university spokesman said.

The contract is effective from last Nov. 22 to March 31, 1980, but details were not disclosed.

Employees have been requested to return to work Tuesday.

Two outstanding issues — wages and vacations - will be referred to a three-man industrial inquiry commission whose recommendations are binding, the spokesman said.

The union began rotating strike action Dec. 5 and the dispute developed into a full-scale walkout March 5, after the university, complaining there were serious disruptions, locked out about 100 library employees. The university lifted its lockout a few days later.

Union spokesman had said the issue of wages was the main obstacle to a settlement.

The university offered employees a six-per-cent wage increase from Nov. 22, 1978 to March 31, 1980 while AUCE was seeking nine per cent in the same period.

The strike was marked by sporadic support by faculty members, staff and students, but that deteriorated after a confrontation between RCMP officers and union pickets March 23 on the road leading to the university.

Police were called to the scene after traffic began to back up when pickets blocked access to the university. Officers scuffled with pickets before arresting and charging 18 persons with obstruction.

They are scheduled to appear in provincial court later this month to enter pleas.

Waterland to Meet Petitioners

Three men who are going to the B.C. Supreme Court in an attempt to show that Forests Minister Tom Waterland has been acting unfairly in the Moresby Wilderness logging controversy have been called to Victoria by the minister.

Native Haida chief Nathan Young, Indian carver Gary Edenshaw and trapper Glenn Naylor have been invited to meet Waterland next Tuesday afternoon, a spokesman for the trio said from Vancouver Friday.

The three men teamed up Thursday to file a petition with the Supreme Court.

The petition asks that the ministry of forests be instructed to provide information on the tree farm licence (TFL) that is being awarded to Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. for logging the Moresby area.

Paul George, speaking on behalf of the three men and the Islands Protection Society, said that subsequent to filing the petition information on the TFL lease was received from the forests department.

"A copy of the lease agreement arrived today," he said.

But George said the court action would still proceed because the three men have not had their letters to Waterland answered and feel that they have been treated very unfairly by the government.

Young, Edenshaw and Naylor were in court earlier this year when the Islands Protection Society tried unsuccessfully to have the Supreme Court direct Waterland to hold a public hearing on the Moresby issue.

The court ruled that the minister was not obliged to hold a public hearing, but it also stated Waterland was expected to act fairly in dealing with the matter.

The three men will attempt to prove that Waterland has ignored them and has not acted fairly despite the earlier court case.

$1.5M for Youth

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Indian and Northern Affairs director Fred Walchli says $1.5 million is to be spent on employment projects for Indian youth in their own communities between now and next August.

Salmon Price Bonanza This Year

middle of June, Japanese buyers have already earmarked more than 50 per cent of anticipated catches, according to Norman Nelson, the vice-president for the Pacific operations of B.C. Packers.

"It appears that they are after the entire market.They have been paying cash in advance because they are desperate to corner sockeye (salmon) stocks," Nelson said.

"The Japanese enthusiasm for buying is having a disruptive effect because the buyers are virtually taking over many of the new small fishing companies that are starting up here," he said.

"These new companies are non-union and can undercut the rest of the industry when they bring in their catches for sale."

The Japanese bidding for herring roe produced a mixed result for the Victoria economy. Some herring was caught by local fishermen but only a small amount went through the local cannery because of higher bidding by other firms.

A steady supply of salmon is expected to reach local canneries this spring, however.

The price of $6 per pound for fishermen is for prime troll-caught salmon. Net-caught fish would bring in lower prices, although much higher than in 1978.

The high price for local salmon might encourage more Victorians to catch their own fish but fisheries officials estimate that salmon costs a sports fisherman at least $40 a pound, including the cost of all supplies.

ton, N.D., further north.

Some 150 to 200 residents of Grand Forks have already abandoned their homes, and residents of East Grand Forks are worried they will be the next to go.

About 100 residents of a nursing home in Grafton were evacuated Friday after the Park River rose to the edge of the building.

And in Mississippi, the swirling waters of the flooding Pearl River forced the evacuation of an additional 700 people in North Columbia early today and workers cut two 200-foot gaps in a highway bypass to relieve backwater pressure in the southern area of the city.

The latest evacuation brought to as least 4,200 the number of people forced to flee their homes in the Pearl River Valley of Marion County since the flooding began during the past week.

All you people out there waiting for Workers' Compensation Board decisions or for that moment when payments will start, take heart.

Delays are inevitable and, in fact, you wouldn't want it any other way. Now, would you?

And you don't feel the WCB is stalling and waiting for you to throw up your arms in despair and give up on your claim, do you? I know you don't because I have it official. Right from the board's mouth.

You see, I went to the WCB for reaction (and hopefully some action) on the case of injured electrician Ed Price, of whom I told you in last Saturday's column. After being vocally shuttled around people adept at the linguistically gymnastic feat of talking without saying anything, I received a call from Liz Wright of the WCB's informations services in Vancouver.

"There have been several fairly good reasons why this claim has been held up," the voice of Ms. Wright said, almost as if it was a recording. She'd been through this before, obviously.

"Naturally, we're governed by legislation," the patter went on. "We have a responsibility not to pay out when we shouldn't pay out, and I'm sure you'd wish us to be careful with the money."

I don't wish it all that much, actually. It's not one of my priorities. And I would have thought the board had a responsibility to pay out when it should pay out.

"Oh, indeed it does," said Ms. Wright. "In point of fact, we get 160,000 claims a year and many of those people feel they get treated okay."

And what about the desperate sinking feeling you may get that those in the WCB ivory tower are merely tossing obstacles in your way in the hope you'll throw in the towel? Our lady in Vancouver is horrified at the thought.

"People hardly ever get that feeling," she said.

Well Ms. Liz, Ed Price certainly gets it and he wants to know why the delay that has left him without payments for over a year, causing his growing family to lose its home, is still going on even though the review board ruled in his favor.

"The board of review rulings are not binding on us," she explained. "They recommend to us to make payments . . . but the final decision is at our discretion."

Decisions as to retraining, if any, are also at the board's discretion, Ms. Wright pointed out, and delays can be caused by such things as waiting for medical evidence, a backlog of cases to go before the review board and, ironically, even by too many people trying to help the applicant.

That puts his file out of commission and prevents the case from being proceeded with, she explained.

"The review board wrote to us recommending we do pay Mr. Price," Ms. Wright conceded. "We've been paying him since then but it's a question of the back pay for the last year, which amounts to several thousand dollars."

That's not so, according to Ed. He says regular payments have not started again.

"For example, the last cheque we did receive recently was for $234 (which is at last year's weekly rate compared with $277 a week now) and it had marked on it 'For March to April, 1978,'" he says. "This is what we can't understand, because if we were getting a cheque every week or every second week we wouldn't worry."

Medical evidence (Ed says he was seen for 10 minutes by the WCB's doctor in Vancouver) is still being prepared and a decision will be made soon, Ms. Wright said. Still, even that might not be enough. The board may yet have to look at whether Price was physically disabled all that time. The delays could go on.

"There's no denying that this man is concerned and anxious and that this has upset his family and led to the downfall of his health," she conceded. "But it's a question of whether we should legally pay him for this."

And for those of you out there who often feel the WCB is keeping you in the dark, take heart. Only your files are confidential. The manual that guides the claims and ajudications is available to the public and can be seen at any time in the Victoria office, Ms. Wright pointed out. And, without a trace of humor in her voice, she added:

"We are actually quite an open organization."

If it wasn't such a damned sad thing, it might even by humorous to Ed Price. But he's not laughing.

"You know, Max, my kids won't bring slips home from school about trips anywhere because they're afraid it would cost too much for them to go," he says quietly.

"And we had a devil of a time finding out what small thing our 13-year-old daughter would like for her birthday . . . because she was scared of spending 50 cents.

"That's no way for kids to be raised just because you're hurt on the job!"

Round The Ridings: Comox

SANFORD
. . . hurt by redistribution

KELLOW

DOLL
. . . gathering momentum

A light snowfall in Courtenay during the second week of the provincial election campaign reminded voters in the pleasant, mid-Island riding the season is still very young.

It also cooled any election fever that might have been starting to simmer. To the man in the street the provincial election was not yet a red-hot issue. In fact, many weren't even sure of the candidates.

"I'm surprised Skelly's running," said one waitress. "I thought Sanford was the one."

Her confusion was understandable. Less than half-a-block from the restaurant was a huge orange and black sign exhorting the public to vote for Skelly and the NDP. What the sign didn't explain, was that Skelly wasn't Bob Skelly, the NDP MLA from Port Alberni, but rather his brother, Ray, who is running in the overlapping federal election.

Karen Sanford is the provincial NDP candidate in Comox and Bob Skelly is still running in Alberni.

"Yeah, there's been a lot of confusion over that," said an NDP supporter involved in the provincial campaign. "And to make things worse, they're really Bob Skelly's signs — he loaned them to Ray before the provincial election was called. I don't know if he wants them back now or what."

For many people in this community it doesn't really matter who the candidate is. Past elections have shown that a certain percentage of the voters stick with their party, no matter who's carrying the banner.

But then there are the undecided, and talking with people in Courtenay it becomes clear that there are quite a few of them.

Most said it was too early to decide yet, that May 10 was a long time off, and in the interim they hoped the candidates say something to help them make up their minds.

"Me? I'll probably decide on my way into the votin' booth," said a man sweeping the sidewalk outside a sporting goods store.

"I haven't really thought about it," said a young man at a downtown gas station. "Been to busy pumpin' gas."

Undecided now, the fate of the three candidates could swing on the votes of people like that.

Swing Vote will Decide Comox

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The NDP's Karen Sanford is a candidate who really has to worry which way the undecided voters will swing on May 10.

In 1972 Sanford defeated Dan Campbell, a powerful Socred cabinet minister who'd held the Comox seat for 16 years. In 1975 she turned aside a double-edged challenge by SC candidate Dan Hanuse and Conservative Vic Stephens, who later parachuted into Oak Bay to take a by-election there.

Sanford has downed some powerful opponents during her brief stint in politics, but Election '79 promises to be her toughest campaign.

"I've said right from the start that it's going to be a difficult constituency," she says, sitting in her office on a quiet back street in Courtenay. "But we have a very enthusiastic group of workers, and based on the door-knocking I've done so far I'm optimistic."

The Conservatives and Socreds are expected to run strongly.(The Liberals are not running a candidate.)

"Rick Kellow (PC) . . . is a very good candidate but then I have to hark back to the work Vic Stephens did and based on that I have to think the Socreds are the larger threat."

Stephens worked extremely hard in 1975 but managed to pull only 15.09 per cent of the vote, in running a poor third. The Socreds nailed down 38.9 per cent and finished only about 400 ballots behind the NDP who took 40.73 per cent of the vote.

But that was in the old riding, which extended north to Cape Scott. The Comox electoral district now stops at Oyster River, chopping Sanford's old riding in half and facing her with some cold and rather uncomfortable statistics.

In 1975 the Socreds polled 2,966 votes in the key Comox-Courtenay-Cumberland area, while the NDP took 2,569. The PCs had 1,580.

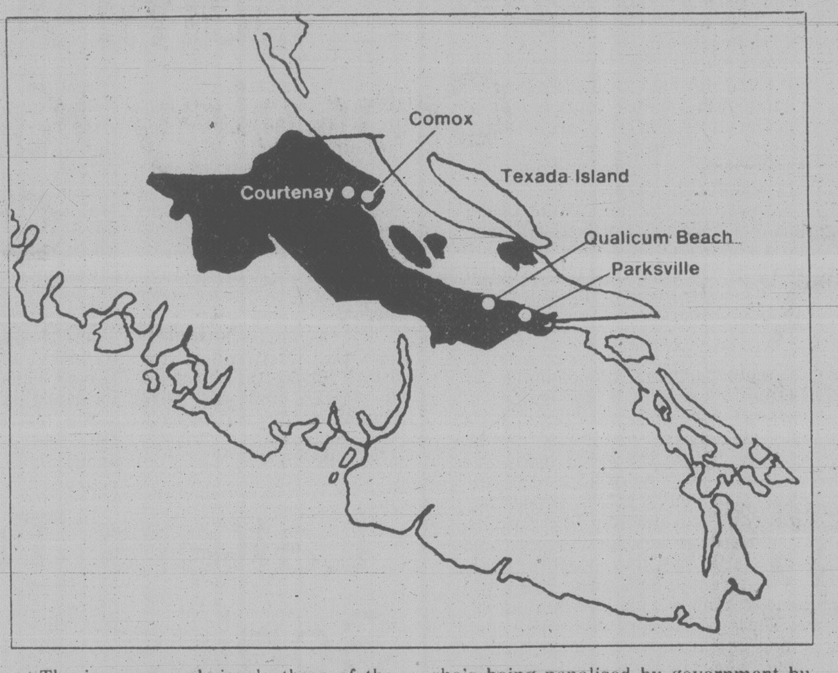
Sanford took the riding on the strength of votes from forestry and mining communities to the north that are now in the new riding of North Island.

"She's going to have a rough ride," admits one party worker. "But we figured she was the only one who had a chance there. Gabelmann (Colin Gabelmann who has parachuted into the North Island riding) wouldn't have been a good candidate for Comox."

So Gabelmann got Sanford's old stronghold and now the teacher-turned-politician has to hit the campaign trail harder than ever.

"We're not taking anything for granted," she said.

Sanford, like her opponents, plans to deal with basic matters.



"The issues are obviously those of the economy, employment, inflation and the sell out of B.C. resources by the government. Tied in with that is the credibility of the premier," she says.

Where Sanford really differs in viewpoint from Socred candidate Delbert Doll and the Conservative's Kellow is over agricultural land reserves.

The Comox Valley is largely agricultural, with the biggest dairy and beef farms on the northern half of the Island. But it is also a growing retirement centre and there is increasing pressure to free real estate for development.

Neither Doll nor Kellow think the ALR program is working properly and they want to see more property released. But Sanford feels further erosion of land reserves is a real threat.

"I think that if we're going to look into the future we cannot allow the land capable of food production to be removed . . . for uses such as commercial, industrial and even residential development. We should not underestimate the value of this land to future generations."

But only a few blocks away, in a much bigger but rather bare office, Kellow disagrees.

"I'm worried about the 84-year-old woman down the street here who has 10 acres and the government won't let her subdivide that small piece of property. She just wants some retirement income . . . she's being penalized by government bureaucracy."

Kellow attacks the NDP for introducing the program and the Socreds for maintaining it.

Kellow, 48, is a Victoria native who manages a credit union at CFB Comox. He has a strong background in the armed forces, in which he served for 20 years.

He says he's not zeroing in on any particular segment of the riding for his votes, but with his three-piece grey suit and clean-cut looks this Progressive Conservative is no doubt counting heavily on armed forces personnel to back him at the polls.

"There are a couple of thousand of them out there, spread throughout the riding," he says. "And there are a lot more retired people who have a service background."

But Kellow makes it clear he's shooting for a much bigger percentage of the vote than that.

The Socreds ran strongly in the municipal areas of Comox in 1975 and Kellow will have to go a good lick. He feels he'll do much better than Stephens did.

"I polled better than Stephens in Comox when I ran for an aldermanic seat," he says. "I actually got more votes than he did."

Kellow expects to make a strong showing despite the poor results of the last provincial election.

"It's our honest opinion that I am the only person who's going to defeat the incumbent in this riding," he says.

Kellow adds that although the Socreds finished a close second last time around they will do poorly this time because Bill Bennett is not the man his late father was.

"WAC Bennett was a terrific man," says Kellow. "I have a great deal of admiration for him, But the government (under Bill Bennett) has lost and is losing credibility in this riding and it's a trend across the province.

"When you have a one-man party it dies when the man dies . . . He may be his father's son but he's not the man his father was."

But Bennett's not up for election in Comox — Delbert Doll is.

Doll is a quiet, mild mannered social studies teacher. He's also a Socred from way back who's convinced Comox is about to return to the Social Credit fold.

Doll, 35, has taken a five-week leave of absence from his teaching post to contest the seat and he doesn't think it will be wasted time.

"In 1972 she (Sanford) rode that wave that took the NDP to power across the province. In 1975 she almost lost, and she lost the Comox Valley polls by 400 to 500 votes . . . we're convinced that we're taking it this time around."

Doll says the redrawing of electoral district boundaries under the 1978 Redistribution Commission Report will lead to the NDP's undoing.

"Comox is her weakness," says Doll, because Sanford's strong polls were all in the north in 1975.

So far Doll has adopted a low-key approach but as election day draws nearer — it's marked D-Day on the wall calendar in his constituency office — he plans to adopt a much higher profile.

"We're building up towards those last weeks," he said.

His campaign manager, George Smith, says the making of Doll's image has been in the works since he won the nomination last November. For six months Doll has been attending meetings, holding coffee gatherings, taking the message to the people in small ways.

His message is that a return of the Social Credit government is inevitable, so why not have a guy on the winning team.

"The Comox constituency would be better served by a positive representative on the government side than by a carping critic on the Opposition side," he says.

Doll puts it another way in his slick campaign literature: "Socialism . . . has never worked in the public interest and it never will!"

The people of the Comox riding will have their say about that May 10.

Test Closure Urged on Mall

The Government Street mall should be closed to vehicle traffic for a test period from May 18 to May 28 and again from July 16 to July 30, Victoria Ald. Bill McElroy says in a proposal to city council.

The May closure would include the Swiftsure and Victoria Day weekends.

McElroy, council's traffic committee chairman, suggested a test closure earlier this year and was roundly attacked by many city businessmen.

Subsequent to that criticism McElroy said he was still in favor of the idea but would think it out a bit before putting a proposal to council.

His recommendation for a closure — from which delivery trucks, emergency vehicles, double-decker buses and bikes would be exempt — will go to council April 26.

"Our long term objectives should be to preserve the historic character of this area and also to maintain its economic pre-eminence in the Greater Victoria area," said McElroy in support of his plan. "I strongly feel that this is an area in which city council must show some initiative and leadership."

McElroy added that if the temporary closure is approved city researchers can do a traffic and pedestrian analysis for the first two weeks in July when the mall is open and for the next two weeks when the mall is closed.

"This will give us a sufficient statistical base to determine if there has been any noticeable change in pedestrian and shopper patterns in the experimental period," he said.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Can you tell me who wrote the lines: "The history of Canada for about 300 years was a struggle to escape from the wilderness, and for the last half century has been a desperate attempt to escape into it."

Parade Deadline Near

Deadline is April 27 for registration in the May 21 parade.

Entry forms are available from the Greater Victoria Festival Society office at 615 Pandora.

"The parade will be bigger and better than ever this year," parade chairman Julian North said. "The theme is Good Times 79."

The parade will start at 9 a.m. from the Mayfair Shopping Center, down Douglas, to its dispersal point at Humbolt and Douglas.

. . . cases waiting

His cases are already starting to pile up, but B.C.'s first ombudsman's hands are tied by a government in too big a hurry to get on the campaign trail.

So Dr. Karl Friedmann has become B.C.'s ombudsman in waiting; waiting for the cabinet order officially appointing him to his job.

The 40-year-old University of Calgary political science professor is in Victoria, but he says he's just vacationing.

The last day the house sat, April 3, Friedmann's appointment was unanimously accepted by the legislature, but two more steps still have to be taken by cabinet before he can start work — the Ombudsman's Act has to be proclaimed giving Friedmann legislative powers and his appointment has to be made official by a cabinet order.

Friedmann's commitment with the University of Calgary ends May 1. After that time he'll be without official duties unless cabinet meets and proclaims the act.

Friedmann won't say when he expects to be opening his office doors. But he already has two cases to look into.

The NDP want him to investigate the timing of the mailing of the government propoganda publication, B.C. Government News.

That publication is usually mailed on the first of each month to every household in the province. But the April issue was held until April 2 so all the budget news could go out.

But the mailing was squeezed in just before the election call the next day giving rise to NDP complaints that the tabloid newspaper carried nothing but election propoganda.

They say the Socreds should reimburse the printing and mailing cost to the public treasury.

And the ombudsman will be asked to check into the alleged deal between the Socreds and the federal Tories which provincial leader Vic Stephens says is undermining his campaign.

Swedes Defeat Canadians

MOSCOW (CP) — Mats Naslund scored two goals to lead Sweden to a 5-3 victory over Canada in a Group A world hockey championship game today.

The loss left Canada still looking for its first point in the championship round. The Canadians, now in a poor position to win a medal, still have three games remaining — against Czechoslovakia on Monday, the Soviet Union on Wednesday and Sweden next Friday. Starting today, Russia, the defending champion, was unbeaten and untied.

Bobby Smith, the rookie centre from the National Hockey League Minnesota North Stars, scored his first of two goals in the first period as Team Canada took control early in the game and ended the period with a 1-0 lead.

Smith added his second goal and Al MacAdam, a Minnesota teammate, scored once in the second period, but the Swedes got four goals to take a 4-3 lead after 40 minutes of play.

Naslund, whose first goal put Sweden ahead 2-1 midway through the second period, capped the scoring with his second goal early in the third period.

The win gave Sweden a 1-1-1 record in the championship round and Canada dropped to 0-3.

Jim Rutherford played in goal for Canada, which was outshot 28-25 by Sweden as both clubs received two minor penalties.

Naslund, one of Sweden's five teen-aged rookies, scored his third goal of the tournament in the second period, then added another 40 seconds into the final period to give his team a two-goal margin.

The Swedes carried most of the play in the third period, outskating the Canadians and using their overall passing skills to almost perfection.

Besides his two goals, Smith missed two other great chances but was stopped by goaltender Per Lindberg on both occasions.

McAdam tied the score 3-3 in the second period when he poked in a rebound after a scramble in front of the net.

Then, Bengt Lundholm scored his first goal of the championship at 17:56, beating Rutherford, a member of the NHL Detroit Red Wings, on the glove side after a solo dash down the left wing.

"I thought we slipped back a little bit from our performances in earlier games," said Canadian coach Marshall Johnston. "We started all right, although we missed some excellent chances in the first period.

"We took some unnecessary chances on defence when we were a goal down in the second period. But this is not the end of the tournament for us. We have to work hard to avoid last place."

In Group B competition Friday, West Germany scored six straight goals to come from behind and topple the United States 6-3 and Finland squeezed past Poland 4-3.

Goals Again Elude Chihawks As Islanders Stretch Margin

By Canadian Press

When Chicago defenceman Bob Murray scored in the second period against New York Islanders in the opening game of their Stanley Cup quarter-final Monday night, the Black Hawks appeared to be in business.

The goal left Chicago down 3-2 to the National Hockey League leaders with a fair chance of stealing a victory on the road to nullify the Islanders' home-ice advantage in the best-of-seven series.

But in the next 2½ hours of playing time, the Black Hawks have not scored another goal.

They lost the opener 6-2, dropped a heartbreaking 1-0 decision in overtime Wednesday at Uniondale, N.Y., and were beaten 4-0 in their own rink Friday.

New York Rangers did better on their home ice Friday, defeating Philadelphia Flyers 5-1 to take a 2-1 lead in their series.

There was no action in the other two quarter-final brackets. Boston Bruins visit Pittsburgh today, trying to extend their 2-0 lead over the Penguins, and Toronto Maple Leafs entertain Montreal Canadiens tonight, looking for their first victory over the Stanley Cup champions.

"You can't win if you can't score," said Chicago coach Bob Pulford, whose team held the high-scoring Islanders to a single power-play goal until Lorne Henning scored late in the seond period.

The turning point came 31 seconds later when the Black Hawks were awarded a penalty shot and Mike Walton's effort was blocked by Islanders goaltender Glenn Resch.

Then the Islanders pulled away with third-period goals by Clark Gillies and Denis Potvin.

Right-winger Mike Bossy, who scored four of the Islanders' seven goals in the first two games, was limited to an assist on the opening goal by Bill Harris and Bryan Trottier, the NHL scoring leader, who left the game in the second period after being cut in the face by a high stick, was held pointless.

Two goals in 26 seconds by rookie Don Maloney early in the second period got the Rangers going after they had come out of a penalty-filled first period trailing Philadelphia 1-0. Then Anders Hedberg made it 3-1 while killing a New York penalty and the Flyers never recovered.

It was the Rangers' second shorthanded goal of the series, following one by defenceman Ron Greschner that turned out to be the winner in their 7-1 victory in the second game at Philadelphia.

Phil Esposito set up both Maloney's goals and picked up a third assist on Don Murdoch's empty-net goal in the game's dying seconds.

The Flyers fired 33 shots at New York goaltender John Davidson while the Rangers directed 25 at Wayne Stephenson in the Philadelphia net.

The fourth games in all four series will be playd Sunday.

The '79 Derby Winner: A Regular Times Bonus

I won't be in Kentucky either when you read this; but then, who cares, just as long as I give you the Derby winner. A yearly bonus, in advance and, as usual.

Last year, of course, Walker's Handy Hints for Horseplayers gave you Affirmed. Almost from the horse's mouth so to speak. At least from his jockey. Steve Cauthen, who has since switched his talents to Britain, came up to Vancouver for a personal appearance and while there expressed the thought he would be on the winner. He was. You heard and got fat.

This year, the odds-on choice — all being well — will be Spectacular Bid, the two-year old champion of last year and a colt which has done everything asked.

He's been so good that he has run away from everything this year, by plenty, and with a young jockey, Ron Franklin, up.

Whether Franklin will still have the mount come derby day is problematical because he has come under criticism from his trainer. And whether Spectacular Bid has beaten anything, as the saying goes, remains to be seen too. Regardless, all signs say "go". And maybe better without Franklin.

Out west there is a contender to note. A big, good-looking animal, Flying Paster rates right behind Spectacular Bid in the Experimental Free Handicap and deserves it.

Western horses don't get the publicity of Eastern Horses, but Flying Paster was the galloping winner of the Santa Anita and Hollywood Derbies, and that counts. He won the Hollywood Derby by 10 lengths in stakes record time and faster than Affirmed. And that's that message.

Today in New York, General Assembly goes in the Wood Memorial, will be favored and, whether he wins or not, as a son of Secretariat he has to bring back memories of his famous sire. Which means he should be able to run some. He can.

As a matter of fact General Assembly was in the hunt for the two-year old championship before being beaten by Spectacular Bid in the Laurel Futurity last year. He had a slow start this season but is improving and may be at his peak for the derby.

Golden Act, winner of the Louisiana and Arkansas Derbies, will likely be an outsider. But he did win on two different types of track, so definitely has some quality; and, if it comes up mud, beware.

Another termed "a good horse" by Leroy Jolley, who is the trainer of General Assembly, is Czaravich. A late starter, he had raced in only three before the Wood today and won them all. Now go back to Seattle Slew and you'll get a connection. Czaravich is trained by Billy Turner, is ridden by jockey Jean Cruguet and with Seattle Slew they swept the triple crown. Remember? How could you forget? (And you got Slew here too).

There are others who may command attention — such as Screen King, who will have Bill Shoemaker up, and Picturesque, who will be ridden by Lafitt Pincay. And, as someone once said, jockeys like that can ride as fast as a horse can run.

The derby is still two weeks away (so am I) but right now stick with the West. Flying Paster, with Donald Pierce in the irons, has won just as big as Spectacular Bid and, it says here, may do it again on Derby Day. Remember, you got it here first.

PUTTING EXPRESSION into lineout are Welsh (striped shirts) and Victoria players during Friday's high school rugby international at Royal Athletic Park. Abersychan Grammar Technical School from Pontypool, Wales, pulled away after leading 9-6 at half to defeat Victoria High Titans 16-6. Mark Wyatt accounted for Victoria points with a pair of penalty goals. Abersychan plays here again Monday, meeting Oak Bay Barbarians at Oak Bay High, starting at 3:30 p.m. (Times photo by John McKay).

Seven Bruins Face Charges of Assault

Times News Services

A Western Hockey League game at New Westminster in which police say two visiting players were attacked on the ice by seven members of the home team resulted in assault charges Friday.

Seven members of New Westminster Bruins, defending Memorial Cup champions, will appear in court May 18 following the brawl in the final seconds of a March 22 home game against Portland Winter Hawks.

Seven Bruins were assessed major penalties and game misconducts for charging two Portland players on the ice. The rest of the Winter Hawks remained on the bench.

New Westminster police Friday charged John Paul Kelly, Terry Kirkham, Bruce Howes and Richard Amaan with common assault against the Winter Hawks' Jim Dobson. Kelly is also charged with possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace — a hockey stick.

Howes, Boris Fistric, Rob Roslick and Bill Hobbins were charged with common assault against Blake Wesley of Portland. Fistric is also charged with assaulting Hawks' coach Ken Hodge.

The filing of charges took some of the play away from the Hawks' impressive 10-0 victory over Brandon Wheat Kings in Friday's playoff game at Portland.

The Western Division champions completely humiliated the Eastern champs who went into the game with a record streak of 10 straight playoff victories.

Goaltender Bart Hunter made only 20 stops in recording the shutout and the Hawks converted on four power plays.

"We frustrated them with our checking and gained confidence in our ability and style as the game progressed," said Hodge. "I just hope we didn't get them too angry."

The series continues tonight with Lethbridge visiting Portland.

The single round-robin winds up next week with Portland at Lethbridge on Monday, Lethbridge at Brandon Tuesday and Portland at Brandon on Wednesday.

Lakers Trim Sonics' Lead

By Associated Press

Washington Bullets are back in command — and Philadelphia '76ers and Los Angeles Lakers are back in contention — in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Mitch Kupchak scored five points in a 2½-minute stretch of the fourth quarter to help Washington beat Atlanta Hawks 89-77 Friday night. The victory snapped Atlanta's 17-game, home-court winning streak, gave the Bullets a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series and regained their home-court advantage for the set.

Philadelphia, which lost its first two games at San Antonio, bounced back at home by beating the Spurs 123-115 with 39 points by Julius Erving and a big fourth quarter by Darryl Dawkins.

Los Angeles, which lost twice at Seattle earlier this week, came home and outscored the Sonics 11-5 in overtime to win 118-112 as centre Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 32 points and blocked six shots.

In the other second-round playoff game, Kansas City Kings clobbered Phoenix Suns 111-91 to even that series at one victory apiece.

All four series resume Sunday.

Kupchak's points came as the Bullets pulled away from a 69-69 tie with an 12-4 burst late in the final period. Elvin Hayes led the Bullets with 19 points.

Abdul-Jabbar and Ron Boone each sank two free throws with four seconds left in the five-minute overtime to clinch the Lakers' victory.

The Sonics trailed 114-112 when Dennis Johnson missed a 20-footer from the left corner. Abdul-Jabbar grabbed the rebound and was fouled with four seconds to go. A technical foul on John Johson gave Boone his first shot, and the second came when the Sonics called an illegal timeout. Abdul-Jabbar, meanwhile, sank the two personals.

The Lakers had rallied from a six-point deficit in the final 1:55 of regulation play.

Money Dispute Ended; Playoffs Back on Track

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A dispute over bonus money that briefly threatened to scrub the World Hockey Association playoffs that begin tonight, with New England Whalers playing Cincinnati Stingers, has been resolved.

The way was cleared for the playoffs to begin when the WHA Players Association and league trustees met hurriedly Friday and agreed to discuss the bonus money dispute after the playoffs are over, said John Hewig, public relations director at WHA headquarters in Hartford, Conn.

These post-season playoffs mark the end of the Stingers' existence because they are not included in the National Hockey Legaue expansion that is taking in the four other WHA clubs that made the playoffs — Edmonton Oilers, Winnipeg Jets, Quebec Nordiques and the Whalers.

"We had a letdown after they announced the merger," said Cincinnati coach Floyd Smith. "But we fought back after that.

"We keep saying we're going to win our last game. If we do that we're going to go a hell of a long way."

The first game of the best-of-three quarter-final playoff series starts here tonight, with the second game scheduled for Sunday night in Cincinnati, and the third, if necessary, in Springfield next Tuesday.

The Stingers only made it into the quarter-final round against on the last day of the season when Winnipeg Jets defeated Birmingham, knocking the Bulls into last place behind the Stingers.

Cincinnati won its regular-season series against New England, 7-6-1.

Earlier, Ron Roberts, president of the players' association, said that "a few thousand dollars" separated the two sides and that he believed players probably would refuse to take to the ice if the feud remained unsettled.

WHA team owners have been balking at paying bonuses agreed to before the season began because the playoffs were shortened as a result of Indianapolis Racers franchise folding during the season. Roberts said the dispute was over how much less the players will get.

"As of this late date, the owners haven't shown a willingness to compromise reasonably," he said. "Less than $100,000 is involved."

In a best-of-seven semi-final series, the Nordiques will play host to the Jets in the first game Monday in Quebec City.

Edmonton, regular-season WHA champions, meet the winner of the Cincinnati-New England series in another best-of-seven semi-final series.

Islanders Sign For 30 Years

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Final agreement has been reached between Nassau County and New York Islanders of the National Hockey League on a new 30-year contract allowing the team to play at the Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y.

Signing the new lease contractually obligates the Islanders—to play all home games in the coliseum for 30 years.

Stage Is Set for Rolloffs

Up-Island contestants grabbed half of the still-available berths as the stage was set for the annual Victoria Times Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

With four qualifying positions at stake in the final week of the 16th annual, 26-week Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition, spin-spillers from the north earned both fivepin awards while trundlers operating at Mayfair Lanes collected the two remaining tenpin awards.

Dan Joyes, spinning an impressive 282-354-307 — 943 series in the Monday Mixed League at Duncan Lanes, and Judy Kosolofski, topping the women's division with a 279-242-328 — 849 triple in the Thursday Coffee League at Chemaimus Bowlarena, captured the fivepin honors.

With their awards, Judy and Dan qualify, along with winners from the previous 25 weeks, for the Bowler-of-the-Year fivepin rolloffs, scheduled for Town and Country Lanes on Sunday, April 29, starting at 1 p.m.

Tenpin rolloffs, also starting at 1 p.m., are slated for the following Sunday at Mayfair.

Irene Morneau and Wayne Brown collected the last tenpin qualifying spots by leading their sections in the final week. Irene paced the women with a 216-204-167 — 587 effort in the Ladies Classic League and Wayne, also getting away to a sizzling start, earned men's honors with a 256-232-149 — 637 series in the Wednesday Men's Commercial League.

All winners of weekly awards during the contest's 26 weeks qualified for the rolloffs, which will again offer a Times Trophy to each winner, plus a bonus award of $150 to any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times.

Ace and Record 59 by Morgan

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

For spectacular warmups, you can't do much better than John Morgan, although the Victoria golf professional feels he should have.

Morgan fired a brilliant eight-under-par 59, with the help of a hole-in-one, to set an unofficial course record at Cedar Hill Golf Club on Friday.

Playing with fellow professionals Jim Rutledge, Bob Beauchemin and Al Robertson, Morgan went out in 29, three under, and came in with 30 in a warmup for Sunday's first-round in the Vancouver Island Open championship.

He scored his first career ace on the 120-yard 15th, and added birdies on the first, third, seventh, 10th, 16th and 18th holes.

Because it was a non-competitive round, the course record still belongs to Vancouver pro Norm Jarvis, who fired a seven-under 60 in the CFAX-Metro Toyota Open last fall.

Two putting failures cost Morgan a chance to rack up nine consecutive threes on the front side. He three-putted the fifth for a par four and missed an easy two-foot birdie putt on nine.

"It was so easy," Morgan said of the missed birdie putt, "I didn't concentrate."

Rutledge fired a one-under 66, Beauchemin, who claimed medal honors in the Island Open two weeks ago, had a 68 and Robertson came in with a 75.

Matches get under way at 8 a.m. with qualifiers for the handicap championship leading the way off the first tee. The championship matches get under way at 9:15 a.m.

Willie Didn't Get 505 by Bunting

By The Associated Press

For two pitches, San Francisco manager Joe Altobelli flashed the bunt sign to Willie McCovey. Then he came to his senses — and Willie came through.

Jack Clark, who had led off the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night with a routine grounder to Bill Russell, was on second base, compliments of the Los Angeles shortstop's throwing error. Then the 41-year-old McCovey, making his first start of the season, strolled to the plate.

Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda made no move to walk him intentionally, so Altobelli made his first move, signalling McCovey to sacrifice Clark to third.

"He's given me the bunt sign more times than all my other managers combined," McCovey said. "But I figure I'm a dead pull hitter and have two chances to get the runner to third — by hitting the ball to the right side or to the outfield.

"This may sound like I'm second-guessing the manager, but I'm not."

The first two pitches were outside. McCovey didn't offer at them. Meanwhile, Altobelli was second-guessing himself.

"A lot of things went through my mind and after two balls I took the sign off."

McCovey lined the next pitch to right field for a single. Clark steamed around third and beat Gary Thomasson's throw home for the 3-2 victory.

Asked if he practised his bunting often, McCovey replied: "If you had 505 home runs, would you?"

In the rest of the National League it was San Diego 7 Atlanta 4, Houston 5 Pittsburgh 4 in 10 innings, Chicago 8 Montreal 5, Cincinnati 10 St. Louis 3 and Philadelphia 8 New York 0.

Dave Kingman hit the eighth grand-slam homer of his career in the third inning to help Chicago beat the Expos. With one out and one on in the third, Scott Thompson doubled and Bill Buckner was given an intentional walk before Kingman hit his homer.

Mike Caldwell stares at batters after they hit home runs off him because "he likes to remember them." Now he'll have good reason to remember Ken Singleton.

Not only did Singleton blast a tie-breaking homer off the Milwaukee pitcher in the fifth inning to lead Baltimore Orioles to a 6-3 triumph in the American League, he also applied a needle:

"He sure must remember a lot of guys," said Singleton after hearing of Caldwell's practice.

In other American League games California Angels defeated Oakland A's 7-4, New York Yankees defeated Texas Rangers 5-3, Boston Red Sox stopped Kansas City Royals 9-2, Detroit Tigers beat Toronto Blue Jays 7-2 and Chicago White Sox turned back Cleveland Indians 4-2 in 10 innings. The Seattle-Minnesota game was postponed because of cold weather.

Detroit's Milt Wilcox celebrated his 29th birthday with a six-hitter and got plenty of hitting support as Toronto suffered its fifth straight loss. Lou Whitaker and Mark Wagner unloaded homers for Detroit.

Masters' Leftover A Treat for Watson

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson says he's "still riding a Masters high."

And that emotional state helped propel him to a spectacular, six-under-par 66 and a three-shot lead halfway through golf's prestigious $300,000 Tournament of Champions.

"I'm hitting a lot of good shots," Watson said after posting his 135 total, nine shots under par on the La Costa Country Club course. "I hit every green in regulation and I can't remember the last time I did that."

Bruce Lietzke, who lost a playoff to Jack Nicklaus the only other time he appeared in this exclusive tournament that brings together only the winners of PGA Tour titles for the last 12 months, also had a 66 in the sunny, breezy weather and was second alone at 138.

He scored an eagle three on the 12th hole, dropping a 10-foot putt after a 5-wood second shot, to cut into Watson's lead, which once reached five strokes.

Gary Player, the little South African defending champion, and Lee Trevino were next at 140. Player shot 69 and Trevino, who picked a putter out of someone's bag in the bag room and used it for the first time, shot a 68.

The only others in the 28-man field under par were Larry Nelson, Gil Morgan and Jerry Pate, tied at 143. Nelson shot a 69, Pate 71 and Morgan matched par 72.

Nicklaus, a five-time winner of this tournament, shot another par 72 and had a 144 total. He hasn't yet made a birdie on a par-5 hole.

"Jack didn't play too good," Lietzke said. "He seemed tired, let-down from the Masters."

Watson, however, said he was still pumped up from that tournament he lost in to Fuzzy Zoeller in a three-man playoff in Augusta, Ga., last week.

"I stayed awake all Sunday night, thinking about that putt I missed," he said. He missed a short birdie putt on the first playoff hole that would have given him his second Masters title, then lost to Zoeller's birdie on the next hole.

"I was very disappointed," said Watson, who has been golf's outstanding performer over the last two seasons and who leads this year's money-winning list. "I didn't expect to get in the playoff, but when I did I wanted to win it.

"But you can't dwell on it. I have to get it out of my mind and go on."

Chi Chi Sharing Tallahassee Lead

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tim Simpson and Chi Chi Rodriguez each shot five birdies Friday as they moved into a tie with Bob Mann for the second-round lead of the $100,000 Tallahassee Open.

Simpson, a 22-year-old Atlanta native seeking his first Professional Golfers' Association tour victory, shot a 68 for a nine-under 135 total, while Rodriguez, a 45-year-old veteran who hasn't won since 1973, shot a 69 to go with his first-round 66.

A total of 55 players made the cut of three-under 141.

Mann bogeyed three holes but still managed a 71, after an eight-under 64 in the first round. John Lister, who aced the third hole, Tallahassee native Rex Caldwell and rookie Mike Brannon, each shot 67 to tie Gary Koch and Wayne Levi at eight-under 136.

Gar Hamilton Trails by Eight

TORREQUEBRADA, Spain (Reuter) — Martin Poxon of Britain and Jose Maria Canizares of Spain shared the lead after the second round of the Spanish Open golf tournament.

Poxon, 23, and Canizares, 32, both fired 70s Friday for two-day totals of 137. They were two strokes ahead of South African Hugh Baiocchi, with whom they shared the first-round lead, and Britain's Mark James, who had a 70 Friday.

Citrus No Lemon For Non-Winners

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Long-hitting Joyce Kazmierski and Connie Chillemi joined Debbie Meisterlin in a three-way tie for the second-round lead in the $100,000 women's Citrus golf tournament Friday.

Kazmierski fired a four-under-par 69 and Chillemi a three-under 70 to catch up with first-round leader Meisterlin at 141 — five strokes under par — on the 6,209-yard, par-73 Rio Pinar golf course.

Meisterlin, who fired an opening-round 67 Thursday, faltered a bit Friday and turned in a 74 in the Ladies Professional Golf Association event.

Kazmierski, as well and Chillemi and Meisterlin, have never won an LPGA event.

Two shots back of the leaders were pre-tournament favorite Sandra Post, who shot 70; Sandra Palmer, with a 71, and Hollis Stacy, who fired a 71.

The field of 84 was cut to the low 70 and ties for the final two rounds.

USAC Rejects Indy Entries Of Six Teams

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A week-long standoff ended Friday when the United States Auto Club told six of the rival Championship Auto Racing Teams that their entries for the May 27 Indianapolis 500 had been rejected because they were "not in good standing with USAC."

USAC's decision affected 19 of the record 103 entries and such drivers as Al and Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock, all former Indy 500 winners.

Rutherford, contacted in Atlanta, said: "Everyone seems to be in total shock and disbelief. I really don't know what the move will be. I just don't know what to say. We will probably go to our lawyers and see what recourse to take."

Some of the barred drivers felt that the USAC's action was a move to split the CART ranks, although USAC's Paul Reinhard said in Indianapolis it was "not taken to be vindictive."

"We didn't take the action against the whole group," Reinhard said. "Each case was judged separately. The board felt that these six people had been taking action that was not good for racing in general, the (Indianapolis Motor) Speedway and USAC."

The CART teams affected were Penske Racing Inc., of Reading Pa.; Patrick Racing Team Inc., of Indianapolis; Team McLaren, Ltd of Livonia, Mich.; Fletcher Racing Team of Phoenix, Ariz.; Chaparral Racing Ltd. of Midland, Tex., and Dan Gurney and Teddy Yip of Santa Ana, Calif.

The CART drivers were not affected by the action, Reinhard said.

"The drivers could still come in and drive another car. At this point it is just against the entries, not the drivers."

Reinhard, the USAC public relations director, said he didn't feel the move was an attempt to split the CART ranks.

"It's just the over-all thing taking place. These guys were the nucleus of a concerted effort to be harmful to auto racing . . . more specifically, to USAC and the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"The board felt USAC had tried to be co-operative but they just had to take a position. Through the FIA (Federation d'Internationale Automobile), and the International Sporting Code, this position was open to us."

Reinhard said 17 of the 21 members of the USAC board met about five hours Thursday. They included Speedway president Joe Cloutier, Indy chief steward Tom Binford, USAC president Dick King, USAC chairman Reynold MacDonald, car owner Rolla Vollstedt and drivers Gary Bettenhausen and Roger McCluskey.

ESSO ECONOBLUE:
THE NEW LITTLE FURNACE
THAT CAN SAVE
A LOT OF FUEL.

The new Esso Econoblue takes up only 3½ square feet of floor space. Yet it is designed for maximum fuel economy.

This oil-fired, forced air system uses a better mixture of air and oil vapour for more complete combustion. And because the mixture is also recycled, you get more heat out of every drop of oil.

If your old furnace works at 66% efficiency, for example, Econoblue could reduce oil consumption by 20%. This means if you now use 750 gallons of fuel a year, Econoblue could save you 150 gallons.

So, if your furnace has been showing signs of age lately, don't wait until it gives up altogether.

Call Esso Home Comfort. The sooner you do, the sooner you'll start saving fuel.

MT. DOUG, CLAREMONT RESUME HIGH SCHOOL RIVALRY

New Questions For Track Tests

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

It's time for another high school track season, folks, brought to you by those same wonderful people who gave you the thrill of victory and agony of defeat last year — Mt. Douglas and Claremont.

Can coach Stan Gill's Mt. Doug gang reclaim the city championship it lost to Claremont last year and the year before?

Will the Claremont kids be the same without coach Peter Simmonds, teaching on exchange in England?

And what will be the fate of Lorna Lundeen, Simmonds' replacement as head coach?

Stay tuned.

Gill, in his 12th season as Mt. Doug coach and probably the most successful in British Columbia during that span, expects Claremont's hopefuls will do as well for Lundeen as they did for Simmonds last year.

That's saying a lot. In addition to relegating Mt. Doug to the runner-up spot in Greater Victoria for the second year in a row, Claremont finished second on the Island and fifth in the B.C. championships in Burnaby.

Mt. Doug, however, gained a large measure of revenge in last year's Island meet by dethroning 1977 champion Claremont to second place, then closing fast for a third-place finish in the B.C. finals behind winning West Vancouver Hillside and second-place Burnaby Central.

Mt. Doug athletes won nine city titles in a row under Gill from 1968 to 1976 and took eight Island crowns, every year between '68 and '75 except for 1971, when they were second to Oak Bay. They added four B.C. championships, 1969, '70, '75 and '76, and were second provincially five times during that stretch, in '69 and four times running from '71 to '74.

Gill sees a tough challenge from Claremont again in the city and Island meets. The city preliminaries are scheduled May 7, 8 and 9 with the finals May 11 at Centennial Stadium. The Island championships, also at Centennial, go May 22 and 23.

"Claremont has a lot of kids participating and an excellent middle distance group under Ed Kubek, who's helping Lorna this year," Gill explained.

Anchoring the Claremont runners is Tony Theriault, who won the B.C. high school 1,500-metre steeplechase last spring and annexed the provincial high school cross-country title last fall. As well as the steeplechase, 1,500 and 5,000 metres, Theriault is also a strong candidate in the hurdles and 400 metres.

Another Claremont standout is Tony Stark, an excellent cross-country runner whose best event is the 5,000 metres. More strength stems from Doug Moffat in the steeplechase and 1,500, Vince Harrison in the 800 and 1,500, Shawn Edwards in the sprints and Les Herman in the hammer throw.

The pick of the Claremont girls is Rhonda McKenna, probably one of the best in B.C. at 800 metres and an excellent 400-metre runner, and Maeve Lydon, winner of the Island cross-country last year and second in B.C. Maeve will be a strong favorite at 1,500 and 3,000 metres. A promising newcomer on the girls' team is grade 10 sprinter Jamie Curry.

Mt. Doug's strength lies in two athletes, Judy Tobacco and Terry Bateman.

Judy is the B.C. high school champion at 200 and 400 metres and an excellent hurdler and high jumper.

Bateman, city cross-country winner last fall, is a first-year student at Mt. Doug and excels in the 1,500, 5,000 and steeplechase.

Gill also is counting on Brian Alexander in shot put and discus, Dave Williams in discus and Russ Mosher in javelin.

Top performers are by no means confined to Claremont and Mt. Doug. Coach Keith Wilson has a fine crop emerging at Dunsmuir. Among his hopefuls are sprinters Laura Mahoney and Karen Higginbotham, B.C. cross-country champion Peggy Nelson in the distance events and Roger Proud in shot put, discus and pole vault.

Bonnie Hutton gives Spectrum power in the 1,500 and 3,000 while Megan Lambeth and Adrienne Skinner are Vic High favorites from 400 to 1,500 metres. Reynolds is pinning its hopes on Greg Pynn over 100 and 200 metres.

Belmont is usually good in middle-distance events and Esquimalt, Oak Bay and St. Michael's University School inevitably produce winners.

Gill sees Hillside and Burnaby Central as favorites to repeat in the B.C. championships slated for Burnaby's Swangard Stadium June 1 and 2. To make any kind of showing in the provincials, though, he estimates Mt. Doug must qualify about 20 athletes and hope Tobacco and Bateman can lead them to 100-120 points.

Three Share Western Lead In Tourney

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quebec overcame a first-period deficit of two goals to defeat Nova Scotia 7-2 Friday at the Canadian midget hockey championship.

Victory was the fourth in as many days for the province's entry from Ste. Foy Couillard. The team went into the final day of round-robin play in sole possession of first place in the tournament's eastern division.

In the western division, teams from Toronto, Saskatchewan and British Columbia had 3-1 records after Friday's games.

The top teams in each division meet Sunday afternoon to determine this year's champion after the second-place teams play a consolation game.

Duncan, Nanaimo City Skid into Second Division

Officials of the Vancouver Island Soccer League have announced the team promotions, relegations and final standings for all five divisions.

The season will be wrapped up with the league awards dance May 4 at 7 p.m. at Lambrick Park and the annual general meeting May 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the same site.

Entry forms will be available at the meeting for teams wishing to compete in the 1979-80 season.

Nanaimo City and Duncan are relegated to the second division while Metro Toyota and Castaways are promoted to the first division.

Gorge and Victoria Athletics drop down from the second division and will be replaced by Port Alberni and Labatts from the third.

Saanich Braves and Lakehill Ormistons are relegated to the fourth division and Gorge FC and Cordova Bay Orange promoted to the third.

Chez Pierre Restaurant and UVic Norsemen are bounced back to the fifth division and will be replaced by Croatia and Sooke United from the fifth.

Royal Roads and Victoria Orcas, the last two teams in the fifth division, are required to apply for re-entry into the that division.

North Island Bowlers Take Top Positions

Teams from North Vancouver Island swept the top four places in the annual Island carpet bowling championships which wound up Friday at the Saanich Senior Citizens' Centre.

Cherry Creek, Comox, Nanaimo and Port Alberni finished atop the 13-team event for senior citizens. Winners will represnt the Island zone in the provincial tournament at Port Moody in May.

Field Hockey Squad Set for 19-Game Tour

The Canadian women's field hockey team, which includes three Victoria players, embarks Sunday on a four-week tour of Europe in preparation for the world championship to be held in Vancouver Aug. 16-30.

The 19-game tour through Holland, Belgium, Germany and Spain will enable the Canadians to acquire international experience prior to the world tournament.

Jan Crook, Di Whittingham and Shelley Winter are the Victorians on the team, which is coached by Marina Van Der Merwe and has been in training since January.

Villeneuve Sets Mark

MADRID (Reuter) — Canada's Gilles Villeneuve, driving a Ferrari, set an unofficial lap record at the Jarama circuit Friday during tire tests for the April 29 Spanish Formula I Grand Prix auto race.

Villeneuve, current leader in the drivers championship, clocked one minute 14.81 seconds on the twisting two-mile (3.4 kilometre) circuit — less than a half second better than Ferrari teammate Jody Sheckter of South Africa.

Scheckter registered 1:14.85 Thursday to take the unofficial record from France's Jacques Laffite who lapped in 1:14.90 in similar tests with his Ligier last month.

The Spanish Grand Prix is the fifth of the season and the first in Europe.

Villeneuve has won the last two Grand Prix races.

Aussies Shut Out Canadians

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Australia blanked Canada 5-0 and Britain beat New Zealand 2-0 in the world field hockey championship today.

Australia's convincing victory over Canada, after a poor first-half showing, gave the Aussies a good chance of reaching the semi-finals from Group A.

Four of the Australian goals were scored from open play, with the best of these coming from Greg Browning towards the end of the second half.

Browning, playing in his 100th international, picked up a loose ball around midfield, and dribbled past four Canadian defenders before drawing the goalkeeper out of position and placing the ball in the net.

Canada opened the tournament Friday with a 2-1 win over France in a Group A game. The Canadians meet the Netherlands in a game Monday.

Pakistan and Australia, favored to reach the final of the 10-country tournament, both led their groups on goal difference at the end of the second day's play.

there's no life like it.

How good is your self image? Are you proud of being a Canadian? Are you concerned about other people? How do you feel about the peace-keeping endeavors of the Canadian Forces in the world today? Are you keen about participation in team sports and team problem-solving projects? Think about those questions. Seriously. They're likely to come up when you apply as a candidate for the Canadian Forces.

You'll probably want to ask questions too. Maybe we'll find we're cut out for each other. And that can lead to a great life.

The Canadian Forces offer you unique opportunities to learn what your aptitudes are and develop them into specialized skills. And you earn while you learn.

Drive. Enthusiasm. A sense of responsibility. If you've got what it takes . . . and you're interested in a skilled trade with a future, ask us about you.

Ask us about you.

Gold Girl Sharp One

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gold Girl carried her consistent form of last year into the new season as she won her 1979 racing debut at Exhibition Park Friday.

The four-year-old filly led all the way to defeat Hustling Annie by a neck in the six-furlong allowance feature for fillies and mares.

Gold Girl, owned by Fairmeade Farm, won three starts last season and was in the money in seven of 10 appearances. Ridden by Robert Bray, Gold Girl ran the distance in 1:13.1 after going to the post as the third favorite in the field of five.

The jockey standings tightened as leading rider Brian Johnson was blanked for the first time. Johnson had 10 wins, four more than Ray Creighton and Sam Krasner, who each had two winners, and Alan Cuthbertson, with one.

A crowd of 8,631, who wagered $734,807 on the nine races.

Because of transmission problems originating with The Canadian Press wire service, Monday's Exhibition Park entries are not available today.

Gary's Boy Granted Memphis Exemption

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Wayne Player, 16-year-old son of famed professional Gary Player, will play in the Memphis Classic golf tournament in June.

Young Player has been granted a sponsor's exemption that will allow him to tee off with his father in the United States PGA tour event.

Wayne has embarked on a tour of world golfing circuits that will have him, as an amateur, play in professional tournaments in Portugal, Spain, Italy, France, the United States and, possibly, Canada and Britain.

In addition, he will play the important amateur events in Britain and France in May and June and represent South Africa in a test match against France in Paris.

KINARD JOINS PATS

MOUSSE DE POLYSTYRÈNE EXTRUDÉ
matériau isolant à grand rendement

It means a lifetime of savings. In your new home you'll want the maximum of comfort with the minimum of heating costs…and that calls for STYROFOAM* SM brand insulation as sheathing instead of common sheathing.

Remind your builder of the advantages of STYROFOAM* SM. Advantages like its unique combination of insulating properties—and how it's been recommended over the past thirty years. Other advantages such as the fact it can't get wet and soggy; won't mildew or rot; can't crumble or break easily; is strong—yet lightweight and easy to use. STYROFOAM* SM retains for years its high insulation value of R-5 per inch of thickness in all applications inside and outside your home, even below grade, where no other product will do as well.

Any product as good as STYROFOAM* SM is bound to have imitators. That's why we imprint the brand name on every board of STYROFOAM* SM.

"Spain Is Changing too Fast"

By Neil Morgan

MADRID — it has been eight years since I had last seen Madrid. So my return, for a single weekend, was booked solid in my imagination, minute by minute.

An innocent Saturday and Sunday lay under mental siege by a barrage of diversions I had missed before, and others that I recalled with such fervor that I knew I must seek them out again.

But Madrid, more than any other European capital, must be considered anew.

Back to the Prado Museum, of course, on a brisk, sunny Saturday morning. It remains the finest staging area to condition the senses to the violent conundrums of Spain.

The Prado is not merely the most manageable of the vast museums of Europe; it is also the purest mirror to its people.

Here is Goya, outraged at the French executions of the Spanish patriots; El Greco, absorbed with the torture of the Spanish conscience; and Valazquez, torn between the Spaniards' dignity and their pathos.

And back also to the Ritz Hotel next door, but only, this time, for tea. This Ritz has become almost a museum, too, unyielding in its traditionalism, outflanked by the new mood of Madrid. On Saturday afternoon, in the stately rotunda, only two couples were at tea, so distant from each other that the lone waiter's footsteps echoed hollowly across the tiles as he moved between us.

Back again, too, to Horcher. Jet lag demanded that we be among the first when the restaurant doors opened at 8:30 on Saturday evening, second only to another American couple. Christopher, the maitre d'hotel, tested us by allowing a polite glimmer of recognition to light his eyes, but we dismissed it.

"It has been eight years," I said.

He smiled gratefully. "Then at least you see how Madrid has changed," he said. "For me it is 33 years in this restaurant. Spain is changing too fast for me."

Over dessert, he lingered at our table because it was early still, and quiet, and we had expressed our respect for the efforts of his new king and queen to unite and democratize Spain.

"This baumkuchen," he said, as a pastry cart lumbered past, "this great German cake like a tree, is a favorite of Queen Sophia, and it is my role to deliver it to the palace for parties. Yes, the new monarchy is popular. But Spain changes since Franco. You have already seen the newsstands, with your Playboy and Penthouse? The women on the streets in the pants?"

Christopher threw up his hands and moved to greet the first party of locals; it was after 10, and the Madrid dinner hour was beginning.

After coffee we joined Madrilenos in their surge through the streets, along the wide Calle de Alcala into the Puerta del Sol, the symbolic centre of Madrid from which all highway mileages originate.

There are walking streets now, closed to traffic. They bristle with modern plastics and appliances and the pace is quick. Window-shoppers eddy around sidewalk tables where old-line Madrilenos dawdle with coffee and "tapas," the inevitable nibble food of early evening: olives, mushrooms, nuts, cheese, fried squid.

We moved over then to the Plaza Mayor, that remnant of Austrian Spain, still exquisitely symmetrical and spacious, walled by its balconies and balustrades, framed by its arches.

For the night, we risked a drastic change from the plans I had laid. Instead of a downtown hotel we went to the north side, to new suburban Madrid, the Castellana area near University City. It is an area of parks and playgrounds, smart apartments and chic hotels with discos. Our stop for the weekend was the Hotel Eurobuilding: Swiss in its compactness and efficiency, Spanish in the casual ease of its staff, the soft leather goods of its shops, the pottery carafes of Riojo wine in its cafes.

Upstairs, one of a multitude of switches produced Spanish television: quick glimpses of King Juan Carlos and his elegant Greek Sophia, a film story from the Vatican, news clips of an honors parade for voational school graduates, and then unexpectedly, the start of a film double feature: a wheezing Fu Manchu and Vincent Price's "House of Wax." Scary dreams, that night, for the Spaniards who saw it through.

On Sunday morning we strolled along shaded sidewalks among mothers and their young children (Mamita, son Americanos?"), past the pennant stalls around Stadium Santiago Bemabeu, where crowds gathered already for that afternoon's soccer match with Zaragoza.

Soon we found a cab and drove to Cascorro Square for the Rastro, the flea market that spills into the winding old streets of the Ribera de Curtidores.

Broken fans and copper pots, bullfight posters and mantillas, battered furniture and garish dolls — the Madrilenos pawed over them with equal avidity. Triumphant buyers weaved and twisted their way out of the crush, their trophies held over their heads.

It was a more sedate scene at the Plaza de Mayor, where philatelists gathered around tables and pored courteously through each other's collections. Now and then a buyer pulled a stamp carefully from its album hinge and struck a deal: Here was a gathering of connoisseurs, each with his magnifying lens.

Later we queued for tickets at the stunning, new Madrid underground cultural center, a fan-shaped theater accommodating 750 in deep, spacious leather seats much like the classic Charles Eames chair of America. There is no more comfortable theater, I think, in the world.

It was the final night of a festival of "zarazuela," the curious Spanish contemporary of Vienna's light opera and the American minstrel. We were lucky: We had bought two of the last four tickets on sale.

The performance was colorful, funny, and, at moments musically superb; I understood enough of it. Above all, it was a faithful revival of a century-old Spanish art form that has never been exported.

At intermission we met an American correspondent and his American wife, anxious to compare the new Spanish Democracy with a parachutist, headed in the proper direction but not yet safely landed.

Malaysia's East Coast

Land of Smiling Faces

By PHILIP SOUSA

KUALA TRENGGANU, Malaysia — Among the lands of Asia, few can match this former collection of British colonies when it comes to great scenery, gentle people and fascinating culture.

For the visitor from North America, Malaysia also offers a "discovery" cachet since only recently has it started to appear on our itineraries.

Others, however, particularly Europeans, Australians and Japanese, have long been touring here. Their numbers have been increasing rapidly in recent years; so much so, tourism today is a key component of the country's booming economy.

Most visited destinations include the modern, hill-studded capital, Kuala Lumpur, the lovely island of Penang, just off Malaysia's northwest tip, and the hill resorts of the Central Highlands.

But while those spots continue to be "discovered" by tourists, the East Coast region remains alluringly unspoiled and unsullied by most 20th century intrusions.

The area's relative isolation, mostly a topographical happenstance, accounts for its position as a faithful keeper of the federation's ancient religious and cultural traditions.

It must be remembered that while as a political entity Malaysia is a youngster born but 25 years ago, the 13 mostly sultan-ruled states that formed the new federation trace their history back through thousands of years.

The East Coast's physical features merit a brief mention for any help to explain its singularity — at once representative of the country at large, yet possessed of a distinctive identity.

The region takes in four states — Kelantan, Johore, Pahang and Trengganu. It bursts against Thailand on the north, is separated from the south by a strip of unexplored swamps and bridgeless rivers, is split from the west by a wall of rugged forested mountains, and for more than 300 miles its eastern flank faces the South China Sea.

Along the water, fishing villages huddle on or near the mouths of the area's countless rivers; most are wedged in by groves of coco palms, papaya and casurina trees.

Within sight of most people's homes — be they modern structures or traditional stilt-legged wooden houses — dense rain forests thrive despite efforts to stunt their growth

On the strip that lies between the jungles and the sea, farmers grow rice, tap rubber, mine tin and labor at sawmills.

These rural farmers, along with their fishing cousins, are both the backbone of the region's economic life and, especially for the visitor, some of Malaysia's most interesting and colorful citizens.

Much as their counterparts elsewhere in the country, they are a collage of ethnic groups — Malays, Chinese, Indians and others. Here, however, there are noticeable differences: simpler of dress and more conservative, less interested in gadgetry and more inclined to take life at a gentler pace.

The East Coast is justifiably renowned for its superb batik makers, cloth weavers, and, above all, its silver artisans.

An apparently innate sense of color and form is abundantly evident here, not only in the work of the artisans, but also in the imaginative designs and hues of the fishing boats, the famous kites and the villagers' neat homes and gardens.

As would be expected, the picture changes in the few cities around — especially Kuantan, Kota Bahru and Kuala Trengganu — where the tempo is faster, the shops more modern and numerous and the traffic heavier.

The traditional and the modern, though, dwell side by side in these and other towns.

Thus, in Kota Bahru, aging trishaws vie for room with souped-up motorcycles; in a Kuala Trengganu lounge the throbbing sound of an electric guitar fill the air while a few yards away the soft voice of an ancient flute flows out of a traditional Malay home. Down the coast a glittering resort, the Tanjong Jara Beach Hotel, is being built only a stone's throw from an old fishing village.

On a previous visit I stayed at Kuantam, on this one at Kota Bahru and Kuala Trengganu. I find the latter ideal as a base from which to take in the surrounding principal attractions.

On a future journey, however, I may have to split my time between here and Tanjong Jara.

I visited the project as it neared completion on a superb stretch of sandy shore about an hour by road south of Kuala Trengganu. What impressed me most about this $4 million, American-designed hotel was the traditional Malay style evident throughout: low-rise bungalows spread over 80 forest-ringed acres and featuring intricately hand-carved wood details under roofs done with thin red tiles.

Kuala Trengganu seldom sees tourist groups, and that's one of its blessings. You feel you are in a remote corner, and in a sense you are. Yet it's but 65 minutes by sir from here to Kuala Lumpur, or seven hours by road.

The 74-room Pantai Motel, on the sea and about a mile from downtown Kuala Trengganu, was my home on this visit. One of the city's six or seven hotels and guesthouses, it is run by Argus Salim, a genial Malay whose youthful looks belie a solid background in hotel management.

I quickly added him to my list of East Coast surprises: a European-trained professional graciously hosting guests with the flair and efficiency one hopes for, but seldom gets, in most big-scale international resorts.

What you'll want to see here can be easily and inexpensively arranged by the Pantai staff: water-skiing; pony rides; a tour of craft-making shops; a few hours or a day on Pulus Kapas, a beachcomber's heaven of an island where you're likely to be the only foreigner; golf; a shadow play performance, and not to be missed, a boat journey on the Trengganu River.

THE PAST LINGERS — Malaysia's east coast remains alluringly unspoiled and unsullied by most 20th century intrusions. The gentle and friendly people still pursue ancient ways, preserve traditional crafts and frequent old-style markets. The smiling faces of the land and its people present an undiscovered travel delight to visitors.

EATON'S

In a Balloon You Only Fly On Fair Days

By Richard Wolters

FLIMS, SWITZERLAND — Here's a flight for you that probably is different from any you've ever made. It's an extremely colorful event, one you'll remember to tell your grandchildren.

Your travel agent won't find it listed in any of the flight directories nor is there any available timetable of takeoffs. Flights leave from the outskirts of this picturesque town whenever the weather is suitable. But the busiest period is during the International (hot air) Balloon Week in September.

To get there I boarded TWA Flight 830 in New York and found that about the only thing that transatlantic jet flight and balloon flight have in common is that they both take place in the air.

In the jet, the captain announced on takeoff that in 7 hours and 14 minutes we'd be landing in Geneva.

In a balloon, the passengers don't know quite where they are going or when they'll get there. Neither does the pilot. You only know where you are — and that it's beautiful. One thing both flights have in common is that they are air conditioned; in the jets you sit in it, in a balloon you stand in it!

Another comparison: the big, wide jets have 12 lavatories, a balloon has none. On the jet I had baked rack of lamb while crossing the Atlantic; crossing the Alps I wished I'd remembered to brown-bag it.

It's always exciting when I board one of the big birds for a flight, to Washington, Chicago, Europe or wherever. Flying today is a miracle. Weather come what may the jets go over and through it with grace.

In a balloon you only fly on good days when the wind is under 10 miles per hour. That's fast enough though and the flight will be thrilling. Balloon flight is exciting no matter where it takes place. But when you add to the delight of this sport the spectacle of the Alpine scenery you have an unforgettable combination. It's an effortless ascent into a Swiss toyland.

Flims has been a vacation center for 101 years. It's located on a plateau surrounded by alps. Most Swiss holiday resorts specialize in skiing in the winter and hiking in the summer. Flims also caters to them but, more than that, it's a mecca for the offbeat sports: judo, bridge, whist, folk dancing, swimming, riding and paraskiing, to mention a few.

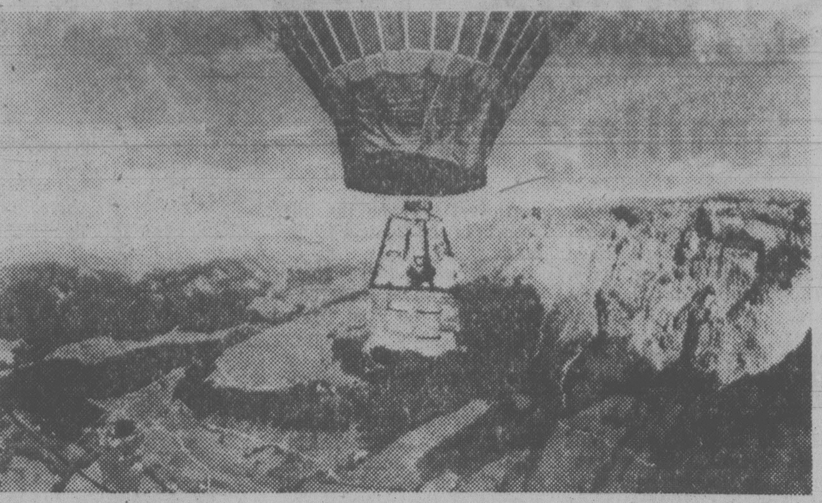
The International Balloon Week is billed as a contest. But it is more a festival than a contest. The teams come from England, France, Denmark, Sweden, Austria, Germany, Switzerland and the U.S. Last year 12 balloons were in the event and the directors of the contest feel that they can't handle a much bigger field than that.

Flims is a good choice for the balloon event. It's located on a plateau that has wide-open areas for landing. It's a safe place for even a beginning pilot. The surrounding mountains give the area good wind protection. If pilots want to make short flights of an hour or so they can do it by not going too high. Should they drift back into the mountains there are plenty of roads (or should I call them paths?) wide enough to get a car and crew to a balloon that may have landed among the cows.

If a pilot gets into trouble and the crew can't reach him, a helicopter stands by during the whole event and will retrieve the balloon, basket, people and all. That's quite a fun experience, too.

For the experienced Alpine pilot, Flims also is a good area. With a climb to about 10,000 feet he'll be able to catch the main prevailing winds and hitch a ride to Davos, to Lake Constance or even a spectacular flight over the Engadine Valley to Italy.

There is something unique about balloon flight in Switzerland. Since ballooning is only done on good weather days the view is breathtaking.



The orderly Swiss landscape changes dramatically when viewed from an airborne balloon.

The effortless feeling of takeoff is so different from that of jet Flight 830 to Geneva. You're hanging out in the wind; the whole thing happens right there below you. Trees are seen from their tops down, houses take on a different perspective, cars move more slowly and people become puppetlike.

The clean, precise Swiss landscape take on an unreal, theatrical look. It's a toyland come alive with its chalets, rivers, felds, roads, buses, cows and snow-topped mountains in the distance.

Any moment you half expect a child's hand to enter the scene and move the sheep to a higher pasture or place a train on a track winding through the mountains. It's a perfect setting, like Santa makes under a Christmas tree.

If you can't make it at contest time, how would you like to take a balloon trip on your own with an experienced Alpine balloonist? It can all be arranged by writing to Rene Chatelain in care of the Flims Tourist Office, CH-7016 Flims, Switzerland.

Remember, Swiss ballooning is very safe and a flight you'll never forget.

Four Survive 'Where No Man Has Ever Walked'

By CHARLES KRAUSE
Washington Post

BUENOS AIRES — Four American adventurers feared lost in Antarctica have returned safely after a two-month expedition by rubber raft and snow skis to the Forbidden Plateau, one of the least explored regions on earth.

The trip was considered so dangerous that the National Science Foundation refused to sanction it. And when the four — Mike Hoover, 35; Beverly Johnson, 31; Rick Ridgeway, 29; and Mike Graber, 27 — left here aboard a German cruise ship last Jan. 31, they had no sure idea of how they would get back.

The ship dropped them at an Argentine army encampment in the Antarctic called Base Alimirante Brown. Once they left the camp by raft, they were cut off from any kind of communication.

The four survived for over 30 days in the brutal, desolate Antarctic, where temperatures plunged, winds reached 120 miles per hour, and where blizzards, rough seas and frigid waters made each day a test of their ability to survive.

During that time, two of the four fell into bottomless crevasses in the Antarctic ice mass — fissures almost impossible to detect because they are covered by a foot or more of loose snow.

Beverly Johnson was able to save herself by sinking her ice pick into the side of the crevice as she began her fall. Mike Hoover was saved, after falling about 40 feet, because he was linked by mountaineering rope to his fellow explorers, who dug themselves into the snow to break his fall.

And on the return leg, again in the rafts, when they ran short of fuel and feared that they might be stranded, they decided their only hope was to hitch a ride on a giant moving iceberg, which they rode eight miles out to sea to save precious gasoline.

At any moment, the iceberg, which Hoover said was "continually groaning and moaning" like a rickety tramp steamer, could have cracked or flipped over — sure death for its passengers, who did not have life jackets because they knew they could live no longer than about 10 minutes in the frigid waters surrounding Antarctica.

The four decided before they left Buenos Aires that they would rather die quickly by drowning than prolong their lives a few minutes more by wearing life preservers. "It's a short, fast death or a long, miserable one," Hoover explained.

The expedition had set out from the Argentine camp in rubber rafts, one 16 feet long and the other 13 feet, to reach a part of Antarctica that is virtually unknown. By comparison, Mt. Everest and even K-2 in Pakistan are well-travelled.

"It's really neat to go somewhere where no man has ever walked before, regardless of all the hassles it takes to get there," Hoover said when asked why the group, all from California, risked their lives to reach the Forbidden Plateau a mass of ice and snow that runs down the centre of the Antarctic Peninsula.

Although Hoover and Ridgeway both have climbed Mt. Everest, Ridgeway has climbed K-2, Graber has climbed Mt. McKinley in Alaska and Johnson was the first woman to scale El Capitan in California, none had ever before been in the Antarctic.

Ostensibly, their purpose for the journey was to make a documentary for ABC-TV's American Sportsman. But the "neat" idea for the adventure had come to Hoover and Ridgeway while they were climbing Everest three years ago.

They carried all of the fuel for their rafts, their food, skis, tents, clothes, cameras and almost a ton of other equipment with them, knowing that they could not radio for help.

They had to plan for the possibility that they would have to remain in the Antarctic, either on their own or at the Argentine base — because, if they had missed an Argentinian naval vessel, which was the last ship to leave the Antarctic Peninsula this summer, there would not have been another ship out for at least eight months until warmer weather returned to the frozen continent.

After the raft trip, they established a base camp on a rocky promontory in Andxard Bay and began to climb to the top of the Antarctic Peninsula — a hard journey of 10 days.

They pulled their supplies on sleds, stopping each night to set up their tent before dark.

In a diary, he kept during the journey, Hoover described what it was like living with the incredible cold and harsh winds in the trek from Almirante Brown to the Forbidden Plateau and back. On Feb. 20, the four were halfway up the 7,000-foot incline to the Forbidden Plateau. In their tent at midnight, Hoover wrote:

"No one in the whole world knows where we are tonight. It is an extremely barren and hostile place, the hardest continent to get to, so much so that no one even owns it. THE last place on earth . . .

"Just to stand with your back at an 80-m.p.h. wind in Antarctica and laugh at how neat it looks, laugh when it knocks you down . . ."

They came to call themselves "The Great American Round Expedition" because they "ate and ate and ate," Hoover said: freeze-dried dinners of lasagna or beef stroganoff, Carnation breakfast bars, nuts, raisins and other health foods. All their water came from melting snow over two kerosene burners.

After reaching the Forbidden Plateau, they spent two days skiing and resting, shooting movie film and enjoying themselves before they began the shorter hike back to their base camp and the sea.

It was on the way down that both Johnson and Hoover fell into the ice crevasses, and it was when they reached the bottom of the incline that they discovered that one of their fuel "bladders" had burst, leaving them short of fuel to return to Base Almirante Brown.

After riding the iceberg for more than 24 hours, they were far enough out of the bay to follow the coastline back to the Argentine base. They got there too late for a British ship that was leaving, but too early for the Bahia Aguirre.

No one in Argentina had had any word from them since they left in January and by April, a day before they reached Buenos Aires, there was a growing fear here that the four had been lost.

They are determined that next January they will return, this time to climb Mt. Tyree, at more than 17,000 feet one of the highest unclimbed mountains in the world. Hoover is hoping to film the climb and then arrange for the first live television broadcast from Antarctica — when the four reach the top.

Loop Heading Way of Dodo?

CHICAGO (AP) — The Loop, perhaps Chicago's best-known landmark, may be doomed.

For 82 years, trains have whooshed and roared around the elevated tracks that mark the borders of downtown.

The loop is a survivor, a utilitarian device uniquely delineating the city's business and financial hub and carrying the public there in unequalled numbers.

It's been loved and hated, its demise predicted since its inception.

Now the latest threat: City Hall wants to tear down the two square miles — 11,000 tons — of 25-foot-high riveted plate steel, sometimes compared to a huge erector set. Merchants long have howled that it's an eyesore, a nuisance, a blight, a deterrent to business.

The Chicago Urban Transportation District says the Loop is doomed. It will take about $400 million to build a partial replacement, a subway which businessmen insist will spur more than $1 million in new development.

Defenders say the Loop has few marks against it. Although a crash in February, 1977 killed 11 people and injured 189, the National Transportation Safety Board determined that the cause was human error.

Defenders say the Loop could be upgraded to lessen noise and restored for much less than constructing a subway. With hundreds of millions of dollars then remaining, additional service could be provided elsewhere.

The Times Considers Overseas Edition

LONDON (AP) — William Rees-Mogg, editor of The Times, said today the embattled newspaper is planning to produce a weekly edition, printed overseas and not distributed in Britain.

The Times, its sister paper The Sunday Times and two supplements closed last Nov. 30 because, management said, printing unions would not agree to let journalists and advertising staff use new typesetting technology.

The Toronto-based Thomson organization, which owns the papers, had said earlier this year that renewed negotiations might mean resumption of publishing by April 17, but the negotiations with the main printing union, the National Graphical Association, broke down again earlier this week.

Rees-Mogg declined to say where The Times intends to print the weekly.

It was understood Times Newspapers is aiming at about 16 pages a week and hoping to produce an edition before the British general election May 3.

What does it mean to be BORN AGAIN

Jesus answered, "verily verily I say unto you, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the Kingdom of God." John 3:5

Salvation depends on being born again.
Are you born again?
Are you a true Christian?

The Bible says that Baptism is:
Required for Salvation,
An obedient response to the call of God.
Essential for the remission of sin.
The Christadalphians invite you to consider the extensive scriptural evidence for these fundamental truths of Christianity and invite you to hear

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

In these days of free-wheeling experimentation in behavior the church has a duty to proclaim the basic Christian ethic. But let me immediately repudiate the notion that the church should try to operate as a grim, censorious morality squad which assumes that much of what people today like to do is wrong and should be suppressed.

The church has sometimes been a moral bully, assuming that it knows what is best for everyone and trying to impose a harsh and restricting code.

The Christian ethic is essentially an ethic of love, love for and among persons, not an ethic of strict rules and regulations to be imposed on persons. The standard and dynamic of Christian morality is love—love in the New Testament sense as the determination to serve the good of others and to recognize the sacred integrity of every person.

But the Christian ethic is not an ethic of slackness and easy acquiescence, not an ethic that smiles benevolently at what people do simply because they do it—providing, of course, that they do not tread on my toes while they are doing it. The refusal of the church to be a morality squad must never be taken as a repudiation of all firm moral judgment.

The fashionable approach to morals which is variously labelled "situation ethics," "contextual ethics," "the new morality," and the such, often suffers serious distortion and misrepresentation.

Some advocates of this approach seem to suggest that the church best serves persons by finding reasons for not exercising any kind of firm and specific moral discrimination and by substituting for standards and rules a rather vague notion of love which they assume can be applied wisely and instantaneously in any situation in which a moral decision is called for.

This approach assumes that a moral decision should always be a response to a particular situation and is made by applying love to that situation. This, of course, is far closer to the teaching of Jesus than is any scheme of morality that is simply a system of regulations and prohibitions. But the "situationist" sometimes restricts the context of moral decision by isolating moral situations and building walls around them. It tends to disregard the biblical notion of persons-in-community by isolating moral situations in both time and place.

Each moral situation must be considered in its fullest context. Because of this moral conventions and rules —which do come out of human experience—can play a constructive role in morality. Conventions and rules, of course, are not to be treated as absolutes, as utterly binding on all persons at all times—but they can be effective instruments of morality, instruments which must always be tested and directed by love.

Love as delineated in the New Testament, love as personified in Jesus, is the source and the force of the Christian ethic. Traditional moral conventions and rules sometimes do frustrate the full expression of that love, especially when they are interpreted narrowly—but we must recognize that often they are effective instruments of that love and should not be rejected casually and irresponsibly.

(Dr. Davidson is minister of Dominion-Chalmers United Church, Ottawa.)

Project North plans questions for federal candidates

Project North, in conjunction with native elders from southern Vancouver Island, will hold a workshop to prepare for a federal all-candidates' meeting at Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church on Nelthorpe from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday April 28.

The workshop is to formulate a list of questions on the rights of original peoples of Canada to be presented to federal candidates at a meeting May 14 at St. John's Church Hall, 1611 Quadra. For information, phone D'Anna Carson, 652-2810, or Michael McNall, 388-6177.

Orthodox Christians around the world will celebrate the most important festival of their church year this Sunday, the Resurrection of Christ.

The Greek Orthodox Easter is called Pascha because it is Christ who "passes over" from death to life and saves mankind.

Fr. Gleb Jensen of the Holy Theophany Orthodox Church, 3801 Cadboro Bay Road, will hold services Sunday to mark Pascha.

Then Easter baskets filled with food are blessed.

Pascha is a time of Orthodox Christian family gatherings to be remembered throughout the year.

Lecturer Dr. W.C. Tan and two students from Pearson College, Christine Lutara of Uganda and Jane Clarke of Ireland will be guests at the annual inter-faith service of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at First United Church.

The choirs of both Metropolitan and First United churches will participate. All welcome.

The Newcombe Singers and Vancouver City Choir will participate in the 11 a.m. service at First United Church.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Nazarene churches of B.C. are gathering this weekend for a youth convention and a Christian Life convention at Victoria First Church of the Nazarene, 4277 Quadra.

Speaker at the youth convention for young people aged 12 through 23, is Rev. Blaine McLeod, director of youth ministries for the Nazarene church in Atlantic Canada and pastor of a church at Charlottetown, P.E.I.

The Christian Life speaker is Rev. Al Woods, a pastor from Washington, who will concentrate on Christian education.

The public is welcome to the keynote address at 9 a.m. today and to workshops covering a variety of subjects of interest to both teens and adults.

The concluding session will be a joint worship service at 11 a.m. Sunday at the church.

Walter Buchanan of Halifax, lecturer and broadcaster for the British-Israel World Federation, will speak at St. John Ambulance hall, 941 Pandora, Sunday at 3 p.m. on The Everlasting Kingdom.

British-Israel believers trust in the Bible as the inspired Word of God, and believe all the promises and covenants God made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

They believe Israel is a nation, not a church; that the kingdom was taken from the Jews and given to a "nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21:43), and that the nation Israel, in the guise of the Celto-Saxon peoples, headed by the British Commonwealth and the United States is, although imperfectly, "bringing forth the fruits."

A complimentary dinner that gives a multimedia report on the work of World Concern, a division of King's Garden, Inc., (C.R.I.S.T.A. Ministries, Seattle, WA 98133) in Hong Kong, India, Nepal, Bangladesh, the Philippines and Thailand, will be held Friday at 7 p.m. at Holyrood House. For information, contact Eleanor Blamey at 592-6638, or write World Concern in Seattle.

Pastor Allan Robertson of Vancouver Seventh-day Adventist church, will conduct a series of lectures during the Victoria church's spring youth week of prayer May 3-6.

Robertson will speak on the church's history May 3 and 4 at 7:30 p.m. and May 5 at 5 p.m. and May 6 at 9 a.m. at the church, 983 Pandora. Students of Bible history and the general public are welcome.

Operation Jericho, a 16-mm color movie portraying the needs of Christians living in the communist world, will be seen at 11 a.m. Sunday at Oldfield Road Gospel chapel, corner of Old West Saanich Road.

Sweet Communion, a musical group from the Full Gospel Bible Institute of Eston, Sask., will present an evening of music and inspiration at Queen's Avenue Apostolic Church at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

McLeod

Pastor Alan McLean extends a welcome to the public.

The institute's purpose is threefold: that each student might grasp the content and teaching of the Bible; become proficient in applying this truth to personal life, and be able to effectively communicate biblical principles in ministry and service to fellowmen.

Victoria Calvinettes co-operate on group project

Calvinettes mark own week

This week 17,000 Calvinettes in Canada and the United States will celebrate Calvinette week.

Calvinettes is an organization with its goal to help girls know Jesus Christ and serve him always and everywhere. Thirty-three girls, aged 10-13 years old attend the local Victoria club. They meet every Thursday evening from September to April, with their counselors at the Christian Reformed Church on Agnes St. They learn new skills through their badge program, grow spiritually through their Bible lessons and sharing with each other, and serve people in their community.

Special activities for Calvinette week include a special service this Sunday morning in which girls participate with song and scripture.

On Thursday the mother and daughter banquet, climax of the year's work, will be held. Songs, poems, presentations and skits will fill this evening, besides the delicious meal.

It has been an exciting year of learning, sharing and growth, under this year's theme—"You will seek me and find me, when you seek me with all your heart."—Jer. 29:13."

Archdeacon near 50th anniversary as Anglican priest

Archdeacon A.E. Hendy of St. Mary's Anglican Church, 1701 Elgin Street in Oak Bay, will celebrate his 50th anniversary as an ordained minister on Sunday, April 29, and will preach in the church on that day.

Archdeacon Hendy was born in London, England, in 1905 and went to public school there. He attended St. Paul's Theological College, Burgh, Lincolnshire, prior to coming to Canada in 1928.

He then studied at St. Chad's Theology School in Regina and was ordained a minister on April 25, 1929.

He served in the parishes of Bengough, Saskatchewan, Hazenmore and Vanguard, Sask., and at St. Paul's Cathedral, Regina, (1933-37), then was appointed precentor of Christ Church Cathedral in Victoria, where he stayed until October, 1939.

Hendy

When the Second World War broke out, Archdeacon Hendy resigned his position here and went to Great Britain in November, 1939, where he joined the Royal Navy as a chaplain.

He served as ship's chaplain aboard the flagship HMS Rodney, and was aboard her at the famous sinking of the German battleship Bismarck in 1941. He later served in the Far East as ship's chaplain aboard the flagship HMS Queen Elizabeth. After the war he held several shore appointments with the navy as a chaplain before returning to Canada in 1950.

He was rector of St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, and in 1952 went to St. Paul's, Nanaimo, where he was made a canon. He was at St. Mark's, Qualicum, and then was appointed dean of the cathedral in Prince Rupert. He returned to St. Mark's as rector in 1959 and in 1964 moved to Gordon Head, where he was involved in the building of St. Dunstan's Church and Rectory.

In 1968 he was made assistant at St. Mary's in Oak Bay. He retired five years ago.

Confirmations in James Bay

James Bay United Church will hold a confirmation and communion service at 11 a.m. Sunday. Persons wishing to unite with the congregation by letter of transfer or by possession of faith should speak to the minister as soon as possible.

Health centre has new director

The Seventh-day Adventist Church Victoria Health Education Centre at 3019 Shakespeare has a new director.

Gerald Haeger, a graduate of Andrews University in Michigan and Loma Linda University, California, has arrived in Victoria to assume leadership of the facility.

Holder of an MD in public health, Haeger previously taught in Puno, Peru, in theology and health-related fields before returning to his studies.

With experience and training in health education, he will be responsible for a variety of programs at the centre.

These include the successful five-day stop-smoking plan, held the first week of each month, weight control programs, nutrition seminars, cooking schools and other programs.

A feature of the centre is the free public information tape telephone service, which has gained increasing interest and popularity. The program involves about 200 tapes divided into 25 subject headings on a wide range of general and specific topics. This information is available by calling 595-4554 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday. Inquiries are welcome.

Big Cost-of-Living Credit Pledged by Broadbent

By JOHN MARSHALL
FP News Service

WINNIPEG — Ed Broadbent Friday threw a $1.8 billion counter punch at Joe Clark's popular vote-catching promise of $1.6 billion in partial income tax deductions of mortgage interest and property tax payments.

But the NDP proposal — called a cost of living tax credit — gets around what they say are shortcomings in the Tory campaign goodie.

The NDP proposal would give substantial credits to about 82 per cent of all old-age pensioners and to low and middle-income home owners in general.

The lower the income, the greaater the credit.

Broadbent Friday repeated criticisms of the Tory plan, calling it "extremely unfair and unjust" because it would be subsidized by the poor who do not own houses, others who choose to rent, and pensioners and others who have paid-up homes. Two-thirds of the population would have to subsidize the other one-third.

The NDP leader unveiled his tax credit plan half-way through the campaign and half-way across the continent to a respectful but politically hostile audience, the West Winnipeg Rotary Club.

Of its 90 members, the majority of whom attended the luncheon meeting, only five at the most, one man said, might vote NDP.

However, the business and professional men gave the socialists' political economist leader appreciative applause and polite attention.

He said the cost of living tax credit would be introduced with the first budget if his party was in power. It could mean increases in take-home pay within a month or two afterwards.

"A family of four with an income fo $20,000 a year would have another $240 to enable them to cope with supermarket prices," he said.

The maximum credit for a family of four would be $385.

A pension couple with an income of $7,000 or less would get a tax credit of $399. A pension couple with a $10,000 income would get $376.

The maximum amount for a married couple where one claims the other as a dependent would be about $298. The maximum credit for a single person would be about $160.

ELECTION 79

Controls Warning Sounded by CLC

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Canada will have a harsh new program of income controls later this year if either the Liberals or Progressive Conservatives form a majority government, Canadian Labor Congress president Dennis McDermott said Friday.

"The people are there, the apparatus is there, and we're hearing the statements all over the place," he said.

It would take less than two hours to put together the first key elements of an incomes control policy and announce it to the country, he added.

"The last one took only two hours to write over two bottles of wine in a cafeteria and it was written on the back of a manilla envelope," McDermott said.

Earlier, McDermott said in address at the 15th annual meeting of the P.E.I. Federation of Labor that the anti-inflation controls program introduced by Ottawa in 1976 left the national economy crippled, with worse inflation, high unemployment, and restricted investment.

The theme of McDermott's message was that because of the apparent commitment of both the Liberals and the Conservatives to programs of interference in the nation's economy, the only alternative is stepped up political activity by organized labor.

It would be naive for organized labor to expect to be taken seriously when it can't demonstrate political clout and the only way it can demonstrate that clout is by producing votes in large numbers, he said.

In past federal elections, the CLC has voiced support for the New Democrats, but McDermott cautioned that no one will be convinced how to vote just by being met at the factory gate and handed a leaflet.

Youth Travel Promise

COWANSVILLE (FP) — Conservative leader Joe Clark has promised that a Tory government would promote national unity by making it cheaper for young Canadians to travel across the country.

An adviser to the Tory leader said he did not know how much — if anything — the cheaper fares would cost taxpayers.

The recent trend by Canada's airlines toward budgetpriced tickets might be an indication Ottawa wouldn't have to apply very much pressure to promote youth travel, the adviser added.

Clark said that making it "easier for a greater number of young Canadians to travel in Canada" would contribute "very significantly" to national unity.

Earlier in the day at St. Hyacinthe, Clark told about 50 supporters in the committee room of the local Tory candidate that the Conservatives would limit imports of cheese to 35,000 pounds a year. The current quota is 45,000 pounds.

The Eastern Townships south of Montreal have been the small exception to the Tories dismal showing in Quebec since the Diefenbaker landslide election victory of 1958.

Brome-Missisquoi riding, in which Cowansville is located, was held in the last Parliament by Tory MP Heward Grafftey.

Clark Probed On Ads

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal election officials are investigating complaints that Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark has contravened the Canada Elections Act.

The act prohibits candidates from newspaper, radio or television advertising after the announcement of an election until 29 days before election day. Deliberate violations of the act can result in fines up to $5,000.

The complaint centres on an article which appeared April 4 under the banner Report from Parliament Hill in the Edson Leader, a weekly newpaper in Clark's Yellowhead riding. It bears the byline "Joe Clark, MP, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party."

Louise Marin, an assistant to election commissioner Joe Gorman, said Friday her office is waiting for a copy of the article.

"We cannot say anything until the material is actually in our hands."

The elections office has previously taken a lenient view on breaches of the act, usually because local party officials are ignorant of the new act.

Jerry Harlton, Clark's campaign manager, said he has advised the party's national office on the matter.

Fit as a Swede of 50, Paproski Says of Dief

EDMONTON (CP) — John Diefenbaker is "gung ho," in good humor and "as healthy as a 50-year-old Swede," Steve Paproski, Edmonton North Progressive Conservative candidate, said Friday.

Diefenbaker's health has been a subject of concern recently. The 83-year-old former prime minister has been suffering from the flu and fell and struck his head in a Prince Albert hotel room April 14.

Paproski, who met Diefenbaker in Ottawa Thursday, said he is raring to go.

"He's relaxing, he's taking it easy."

Paproski said Diefenbaker told him that his early-morning fall was "one of those Liberal tricks . . . Otto Lang must have slipped a piece of soap on my floor."

The candidate said Diefenbaker told him he didn't know what happened — "I slipped and bumped my head against the side of the bed."

Paproski said Diefenbaker decided to return to his Ottawa home to rest after the accident because he can't rest in Prince Albert, where he is seeking re-election. "Everywhere he goes people want to talk to him and shake his hand."

Tax Shelter for Workers Pledged by Trudeau

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

YARMOUTH — Prime Minister Trudeau Friday unveiled a Liberal election proposal that will give Canadian workers a tax shelter if they purchase shares in the companies for which they work.

Labelled the Employee Stock Ownership Incentive Plan, it is supposed to encourage equity investment and according to the Liberal party announcement "contribute to an improvement in labor-management relations in Canada."

Employes will be able to deduct from Income Tax the cost of acquiring shares with savings that could have gone into a Registered Retirement Saving Plan.

The stock ownership deduction will be equal to the unused amount of an employees RRSP deduction, a prepared statement set out.

The maximum amount that an employee can contribute to an RRSP now is $3,500 annually.

The proposal which the Prime Minister pledged to introduce in the next Pariament appears to be based on a proposal put forward recently by Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau.

It might also have been spurred by British Columbia's five free shares in the B.C. Resource Investment Corporation project.

The statement handed out in connection with Trudeau's announcement claimed that "employees who already contribute to RRSPs may find the new plan more beneficial."

"This is because while the proceeds from an RRSP are fully taxable as income, the proceeds from the sale of employer shares will be treated as a capital gain and only one-half of them will be included in income."

Dividends received by employees on shares will qualify for the dividend tax credit.

The plan according to the Liberal announcement will apply to all employees of corporations resident and taxable in Canada.

The Trudeau announcement claimed that the federal revenue cost "would be no more than a maximum of $50 million a year."

The plan is a good gesture but not much more, say some business interviewed after Trudeau's speech.

Michael Harrison, vice-president of a Toronto investment firm, said Trudeau's announcement only "shows everybody is getting into the act."

Others, who declined to be named because so little is known of the plan, said it looks like an endorsement of capitalism, but criticized it as mere politics at the least, impractical and, at the worst, discriminatory.

Businessmen said the plan as presented seems to have several flaws.

They said it would provide an advantage to those who work for large, publicly-owned companies and would discrimate against those employed by smaller firms, especially where existing owners want to retain control.

It also would discriminate against those working for governments and non-profit organizations.

They also suggested the plan may not encourage long-term ownership of company shares by employees because workers might be tempted to be short-term traders rather than investors.

The plan, however, was welcomed by some as a step in the right direction.

Andrew Kniewasser, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, said he is pleased to see further encouragement for equity investment in Canada.

Pearce Bunting, president of the Toronto Sock Exchange, said: "If you believe in Canadians owning a piece of their country, to the degree that it contributes to that, it is hard to be against it."

But, he added, the type of plan described by Trudeau "is hard to get my mind around."

Migrant Hand Urged By PM

FP News Service

WEDGEPORT, NS — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau urged Canadians Friday to give immigrants to his country a more generous welcome.

He was addressing a largely Acadian audience at a herring processing plant here.

"Canada is a country which should open it arms to everyone, from everywhere, who want to come here," Trudeau told his audience of plant employees, local residents and school children in this small Nova Scotia fishing community.

Immigrants can "build this country with us, for himself, for herself, their children, with equal opportunity for all," the prime minister said.

He criticized Conservative leader Joe Clark for demanding education rights for the English-speaking minority in Quebec while not insisting on equal treatment for French-speaking minorities elsewhere in Canada.

The difference between Conservative policy and Liberal policy is that "we want equal justice not nly for English-speaking Canadians in Quebec but for French-speaking Candians in other parts of the country," Trudeau said.

Earlier in the day, at a Yarmouth vocational school, the prime minister explained how he dealt with hecklers.

"The kind of hecklers I don't like are those organized to break up a meeting," he told the students.

"I can generally recognize them. They stand in groups, they come in together, they place themselves at strategic places."

"If they try to prevent me speaking, my tactic is to hit them soon and to hit them hard, to give them hell," the prime minister declared.

Tax Dodge Giving Banks Windfall Profits: Stevens

ELECTION 79

OTTAWA (CP) — Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance spokesman, said Friday that a tax dodge under the Trudeau government is costing the country hundreds of millions of dollars while granting windfall gains to big banks and major corporations,including government companies.

The tax deal — a loophole partially closed by the government five months ago — earned Prime Minister Trudeau the nickname "billion-dollar sugar daddy" in Toronto high-finance circles, Stevens claimed.

In documents released in Ottawa, the basis of an election-campaign speech planned later in Gravenhurst, Ont., Stevens called for an inquiry into operation of the tax scheme and what he described as government delay in cracking down on the legal dodge.

An inquiry should ask whether "insider knowledge concerning the provisions of the Nov. 16 budget expedited certain deals prior to the budget which would not be permissible thereafter," Stevens said.

He cited in particular a borrowing of $1.25 billion U.S. just before the budget by Petro-Canada, the government oil company, in "a deal that took full advantage of the government's tardiness in tightening tax legislation."

At issue is a change in definitions of tax-exempt income instituted in 1972 and first used in a big way in 1974 by the Canada Development Corp., the federal finance company with holdings in a wide range of companies.

The income in interest or dividends on loans by banks to companies in the form of income debentures or term preferred shares, unlike the interest earned on ordinary loans, was free of income tax.

That meant the banks could afford to charge companies less interest than usual on such loans and federal and provincial governments picked up no tax revenue — "diddling the treasury," Stevens said.

He estimated that the schemes cost Canadian taxpayers at least $700 million a year in lost revenue. Stevens said federal tax officials recommended "several years ago" that the loophole be plugged, but nothing was done until last November.

At that time, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said the scheme was costing federal and provincial treasuries an estimated $500 million a year, resulting in higher taxes on individuals and businesses unable to take advantage of the deal.

Bank income from deals made before the budget, borrowings that Stevens says amount to more than $10 billion, remain tax free. Also left free of tax was income on term-preferred-share loans that run for more than 10 years or term-preferred or income-debenture loans issued by companies other than banks or similar financial institutions.

Consumer Group Fears Funds Loss

TORONTO (CP) — Ruth Jackson, vice-president of the 100,000-member Consumers Association of Canada (CAC), says the group could lose about one-third of its funding if the Progressive Conservatives win the May 22 federal election.

Mrs. Jackson says that the association's directors met with the Conservative caucus in December and were told they shouldn't depend on the government for support.

Some of the association's research on consumer products results in criticism of the federal government, she said, and the Tories told the CAC that it could not be objective about criticizing a government that funded its operations.

"We agree with that to some extent and we'd dearly love to be independent, but the funds have to come from somewhere," Mrs. Jackson said.

The federal government contributes about $300,000 annually to the CAC.

Federal Election-Ad Muzzle Off

ELECTION 79

OTTAWA (CP) — Move over dog food, deodorants and dandruff cures — it's time for the Pierre, Joe and Ed advertising campaign coming up on television.

Starting Sunday, under amendments to the Election Expenses Act passed last year, candidates in the May 22 general election may at last unleash their TV, radio, newspaper, magazine and other advertising campaigns for votes.

But TV viewers won't be inundated right away — although in terms of money spent, TV will be the main medium for the message.

As none of the parties can afford to buy all the air time available they generally will save their main barrage for the last two weeks before election day.

Under new ground rules devised by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC), each radio and TV station will have to provide, at standard rates, 6½ hours of prime time to be shared among registered parties.

In addition, there will be an allotment for free-time politician pitches — an idea pioneered by CBC radio back in the 1930s.

It amounts to a big headache for non-commercial CBC radio, which had to set up a bookkeeping system to handle the unaccustomed business. And it played havoc with schedules, now rejigged to permit commercial breaks. CBC radio dropped commercials in 1975.

In the 1974 general election, advertising was scattered along the 60 days of the campaign, but under amendments to the act the time limit is April 22 through May 20 — 29 days.

As for what's in store for the armchair pundits, all party strategists are keeping secret details of their TV ad campaigns, the air time purchased and costs involved.

The Liberal party, with the lion's share of the available air time, will aim at disputing other parties' claims that the Liberals are not really a national party, says lawyer Jerry Grafstein, president of Red Leaf Communications in Toronto.

"In fact, we're the only national party," he added.

They'll be hitting the issues Prime Minister Trudeau set out at the beginning of the campaign — energy, development and unity.

Lowell Murray, Progressive Conservative campaign chairman, says the PC pitch will centre on the "wasted potential in Canada under the Liberals and our policies to change that" with a government headed by leader Joe Clark.

The New Democratic Party, with leader Ed Broadbent as the star, will focus on economic issues — inflation, unemployment and the state of the dollar, said Larry Wolf, president and owner of Lawrence Wolf Advertising Ltd., Toronto. The TV clips will feature Broadbent on the campaign tour, in fireside chats.

It will be a national campaign, although Wolf concedes Alberta and Quebec are "less significant" targets for the NDP pitch.

Under the rules, agreed to by all parties, the Liberals will be allowed 155 minutes of broadcast time, the Progressive Conservatives 134 minutes; the NDP 63 minutes; Social Credit party 22 minutes and the Communist Party and the Marxist-Leninist Party eight minutes each.

But the Communist Party, for instance, says it can't afford to buy any time and will rely only on its free-time allotment — four minutes.

Even the big parties must shop cautiously with their campaign money.

If the Liberals, for instance, used their 155 minutes it would cost about $10-million, says media agent David Harrison. But the Elections Expenses Act limits the party's total campaign spending to $5 million "and that's for everything, including travelling expenses."

Still, parties get a 50-per-cent rebate later from the government on any money spent on TV or radio ads.

Dredge Jury Out

TORONTO (CP) — Jurors in a 14-month dredging trial, sequestered since April 9, will begin their deliberations today after being addressed by Mr. Justice William Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Parker finished hearing comments Friday from the lawyers involved on his earlier charge to the jury.

Eleven men and nine companies are charged with conspiring to defraud public agencies of more than $4,279,000 by rigging bids on dredging contracts between 1969 and 1975.

The trial began in February, 1978.

PM Muzzles Que. MPs, Says Socred Leader

DONNACONA, Que. (CP) — If the Liberal Party's campaign slogan in this province is "Speak Up, Quebec," why does Prime Minister Trudeau keep his Quebec MPs quiet, asks Social Credit leader Fabien Roy.

"Ask me to name such-and-such a Liberal in such-and-such a riding, and I'd have to get researchers to find his name for me," Roy said Friday night. "I've never heard of them."

Speaking to a Socred nomination meeting in this town in Portneuf riding, just southwest of Quebec City, Roy said the Liberals tried to take Social Credit by surprise by calling the federal election for May 22, rather than in June as many people expected.

But it didn't work, because in the two weeks since he accepted the leadership, Social Credit has found 53 candidates and restructured the party organization in most regions, Roy said.

He has promised there will be Socred candidates in all 75 Quebec ridings, and an undisclosed number outside the province.

The party nominee chosen Friday in Portneuf is Bernard Lapointe, lured from the Union Populaire, a fledgling party devoted — like the Socreds — to supporting Quebec's right to self-determination at the federal level.

The Union Populaire, led by Henri Laberge has got the cold shoulder from the Parti Quebecois. In contrast, Premier Rene Levesque has given Roy and the Socreds what amounts to an endorsement, saying Social Credit is among the parties best able to represent Quebec's interests in Ottawa.

$2M Shaft Ruined in Fall

DOUGLAS POINT, Ont. (CP) — A 146-ton turbine rotor shaft worth $2 million was damaged beyond repair when it was dropped 40 feet while being transferred to storage at the Bruce nuclear generating station, an Ontario Hydro spokesman said Friday.

George Estey, Hydro project manager for the Bruce development, said there were no injuries or damage to other equipment and the mishap, which occurred Thursday, is under investigation by Ontario Hydro, the supplier and insurance adjusters.

The component had been shipped by rail from Schenectady, N.Y., and was being lifted by crane from the loading bay to the turbine floor of Bruce generating station A when it dropped.

It was to have been eventually used in Bruce generating station B, Estey said. A replacement will be obtained.

PO Admits Fault in Theft

OTTAWA (UPC) — Postmaster General Gilles Lamontagne Friday admitted the Post Office management was mainly responsible for a $2.5 million mail theft by not providing adequate security at a suburban postal terminal Easter weekend.

Lamontagne said there was a "lack of judgment" on the part of Post Office management for delaying the expenditure on an electronic security system for the Alta Vista terminal.

After the theft was discovered, it was revealed by investigators that only one guard was on duty at the huge postal station for the holiday weekend. Police said the robbers entered by breaking into a rear door of the station and gaining access to the station's registration section. There were no injuries during the heist.

"There was a lack of judgment somewhere," Lamontagne said. "Somebody missed at a certain level. He should have seen that there should have been more than one man there, probably.

"Somebody is responsible at a certain level for not having given the proper security on that case." He has demanded his departmental heads find out who was responsible for the decision.

The postmaster also discounted earlier reports that more than $6 million worth of registered mail was stolen.

"I was told there were no drugs, no diplomatic mail, there was one passport stolen, no gold bullion, no credit cards and that the American Express loss could be well below the $3 million figure," he told reporters.

Claude Boisvert, director of Post Office security, said the thieves took less than $3 million in travellers cheques, between $8,000 and $10,000 in stamps, an undetermined amount of jewelry and between 15 and 20 boxes of coins.

Lamontagne said there was a request last year by security personnel for more manpower to increase security staff to bring security personnel up to the same level as in Montreal and Toronto.

He said there were capital expenditure priorities that superceded putting more security systems at the Alta Vista terminal.

Old, Young To Collide?

TORONTO (CP) — A confrontation between the elderly and the young may develop out of a future shortage of active workers and a growing number of pensioners in Canada and the United States, says a U.S. researcher.

Politicians soon will be caught between the elderly needing improved care and higher pensions and a hard-pressed workforce opposed to further taxation, said Sara Rix, of the Centre on Work and Aging in Washington, D.C.

Her predictions are based on studies indicating that between now and the turn of the century, "the over-75 segment of the population will almost double, while the oldest — 85 and over — will more than double," she told the Personnel Association of Toronto on Friday.

A financial crunch could result in higher taxation or lower levels of care for the elderly, which would be cruel and disastrous, Ms. Rix said.

She said the growing popularity of early retirement is leaving too few workers to support the elderly.

Also, the growing involvement of women in the workforce is reducing the pool of housewives who have traditionally cared for parents and older relatives in the home.

However, women's small earnings are not a sufficiently large tax base to finance the necessary expanded services and pensions, Ms. Rix added.

The best way to reduce the conflict is to keep a larger segment of the population working to the age of 70 or beyond, she said.

"For better or worse, industrial nations are stuck with aging populations which are very expensive to sustain. Something will have to give and that something may well be the retirement age."

No-Smoke Law Ruled Invalid

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court has ruled that Toronto's no-smoking bylaw is invalid.

In a decision released Friday, a three-judge panel said the bylaw is vaguely worded and improperly requires store owners to enforce the regulations.

"One can imagine the difficulties that might be encountered by a small, feminine proprietor of a convenience store attempting to carry out the duties delgated to and imposed upon her by the bylaw."

The ruling came after Top Drug Mart Ltd. and the manager of one of its downtown stores were charged with not enforcing the bylaw. The drug store chain, which is owned by a company that also owns Imperial Tobacco Ltd., fought the law in Supreme Court.

The bylaw, one of the first of its kind in Canada, was passed two years ago. It banned smoking in most stores.

Dame Vera: Sweet as She Sounds

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

VERA LYNN
. . . now cancer-fighter

It was tripping down memory lane all the way.

That's what happens when you meet Vera Lynn — Dame Vera Lynn since 1975.

We sat in her suite at the Empress Hotel. The purpose was to get an interview.

It's pretty hard to concentrate when memories of the songs she sang during the Second World War keep welling up. Songs like We'll Meet Again and White Cliffs of Dover and other ones that became at least a temporary panacea for troops and civilians alike in war-torn Britain.

She, in return, looks out of her window, saying the green lawns, double-decker buses and placid waters of the Inner Harbor make her feel she is back home, maybe in Brighton or Bournemouth.

Seeing the "sweetheart of the forces" in the flesh is a pleasant but unsettling experience. Her husband-maneger Harry Lewis tells of one radio appearance that almost became a flop when the woman that had cheered thousands became almost speechless when asked to talk about herself.

Gentle-spoken, she epitomizes the women brought to mind in the songs that made her famous. Relaxing, she admits to liking gardening, cooking, sewing and trying her hand at painting when she has the time.

Drawn out a little more, she admits the singer that performed tirelessly in aerodromes, barracks and other military installations — including a four-month stint in Burma — still has a very warm place in her heart for ex-servicemen.

Here to perform two concerts at the Royal Theatre — one at 8:30 p.m. tonight and the other at 8 p.m. on Sunday — she'll be singing in London's Albert Hall next Saturday for the annual get-together of veterans from the Burma campaign, an event she never misses.

Lord Louis Mountbatten and Princess Margaret will be among those listening to her memory-stirring songs.

Other veteran events that are regulars on her calendar include the annual ball held by Dutch veterans of the Royal Air Force in Amsterdam, Battle of Britain celebrations and fund-raising activities for veterans whose war experiences have left them crippled with mental problems.

Her normal reticence, in spite of the fact she's been singing professionally since she was seven and first began singing with bands at the age of 12, is forgotten momentarily when she talks of another of her favorite projects. For the past two years she has been donating her time and talents to help raise money for breast cancer research and educate women on how, in most cases, it can be cured if they are alert to the danger and early warning signs.

At this point, in comes the photographer. You feel foolish when he asks if you've blurted out that you come from the British port of Plymouth. Of course, you have an inexplainable urge to claim an affinity with someone who is a legend in her time.

Pausing at the door, the normally business-like photographer smiles and tells Dame Vera that her tape Hits of the Blitz is one of the favorites aboard his boat.

That's the kind of effect she has on you.

Brooch Is Back!

Women are dressing up this spring. There is polish, refinement, a lady-like quality that has been missing from fashion for a long time.

Jackets are more dressy and glamourous than before, and greater emphasis is being placed on accessories.

Stick pins, bar pins — indeed, any pin that fits a lapel — are still the biggest suit accessories. The difference this year is in their size and the way they are being worn. Bar pins are louder, stick pins are splashier.

There is a more conspicious display of jewelry this year. The brooch is back once again, for instance. At night it might pinpoint a plunging 'V' neck, while by day it may replace a knot on the tie of spring's revived middy top.

Another offshoot of the suit story is the necktie which is narrower, more feminine this spring — too narrow at times for a simple tie tack. The new neck tie jewel is a "slide," which works much like the scarf rings of the '50s.

This year's dressier suit can be worn with a camisole underneath or a shawl-collared blouse with a plunging neckline, creating a new interest in necklaces of all descriptions from the collar-style choker to great lengths of gold and diamonds caught up lariat-style with a slide.

As always, the evening dress is the barest of all, a mere slip of silk or a strapless gown with its impact coming from bright electric colors and shimmering fabrics. It needs the balance of brilliant jewels to carry it off and the white flash of diamonds.

The again, earrings of all types will be important this spring because hair is up and away — last year's uncontrived mane is now artfully twisted, braided, rolled into glamorous upsweeps.

Selecting a location for a business is perhaps the single most important decision that a retailer must make. Yet surprisingly often, locations are chosen with regards to factors other than business potential. One investor might purchase a store simply because it's close to his home. Another investor might be so attracted to a bargain-priced location, that he completely overlooks actual business conditions.

Planning The Start of Your Retail Business is a big 17-page booklet which seeks to ensure that newcomers launch their enterprises properly. A free copy of this booklet is available courtesy of the Federal Business Development Bank, Box 6021, Montreal, Que. H3C 3C3.

Now We're Talking . . . About Drinking is a 23-page booklet that makes a candid probe of our society's use of alcohol. This booklet reveals the findings of an extensive survey that was conducted by the Canadian Department of Health and Welfare. The findings are not very encouraging.

To begin with, it seems that many Canadians look upon an alcoholic beverage as the only type of beverage that qualifies as a drink. If we're asked in a social situation what we'd like to drink, it is pretty well understood that alcohol should make up part of whatever beverage we choose.

Some men go so far as to measure the social status and masculinity of other men by their capacity for liquor. The man who drinks heavily, but still manages to function quite normally afterward, earns top position in this unique hierarchy. A lower rank is assigned to the man who drinks lightly, while the man who doesn't drink at all is often regarded with suspicion.

You may request a free copy of Now We're Talking . . . About Drinking from the Promotion and Prevention Directorate, 8th Floor, Journal Building, 365 Laurier Avenue West, Ottawa, Ont. K1A 1B4.

U Program Stimulates Babies' Brain Growth

family

MONTREAL (CP) — The human brain grows most in the first 30 months after birth.

With this in mind, a McGill University psychologist has set up a program to help babies strengthen their mental abilities as much as possible in the critical early stages.

Jeff Derevensky of the university's faculty of education last fall recruited 20 parents and their babies to participate in a program designed to build co-ordination and speech patterns in the babies.

The parents also were taught to spot minor motor difficulties that usually go unrecognized until the child begins school.

Although most of the babies in the program are healthy, some are classified as high-risk. They may have been born premature, for example, and thus face a greater risk of developing learning problems in school.

As mother Nancy Weiss said, "God forbid that anything should go wrong with any of our children, but if there is something I'd rather spot it now and not when my child is five. By then it'll probably be too late to correct."

So every Monday the basement of the faculty of education becomes a make-shift nursery as the tots, ranging in age between one month and 19 months, go through their paces, doing exercises to develop balance, muscle co-ordination and posture.

One exercise involves sticking a gold star on the end of the baby's nose. Finding and removing the star helps the child develop his co-ordination.

Throughout the three-hour session, staff psychologists and occupational and speech therapists show the mothers what problems to watch for and how they can stimulate the child at home.

For example, blowing soap bubbles can be helpful in correcting speech problems.

The parents and the university also benefit from the project.

Most of the mothers said they are inexperienced and didn't want to rely on tips handed down by their own mothers.

So guest speakers periodically lecture the group on everything from proper nutrition to sex-role identification and second-language teaching.

"Most doctors drop you like a hot potato once the baby is born," said mother Peggy Gajewski, "Unless the baby falls sick you never really come into contact with professionals trained in child care."

Many of the mothers said they just wanted to meet other mothers who could share their joys and empathize with the frustrations that often accompany child-rearing.

Fathers are also encouraged to attend the sessions, but special night classes are organized for those who cannot come during the day.

JUST LIKE THE GIRL

"I want a girl, just like the girl, that married dear old dad." Do you remember that fine old song? I can hear it now in barber shop quartet harmony. I always think of that tune when Mother's Day rolls along.

The modern practice of honoring mothers on a special day stems from the formal mother worship in ancient Greece. Centuries later Christianity brought with it the "Mother Church" celebration. Children returning home from the festivities brought gifts for their parents, especially for mother. Mother's Day was officially recognized in the United States on May 8, 1914.

Mothers like to be surprised with something different every year. A welcome change from candy (and nowhere near as fattening) is fine jewelry. It's an enduring gift of love. A mother's ring is a good choice. This is a gold ring set with the birthstones of the children in the family, sometimes including the birthstones of the parents as well. A band set with a full or semi-circle of diamonds is called an eternity ring (maybe dad would like to pitch in on this one). Does mother have pierced ears? How about diamonds, rubies, sapphires or birthstones, framed in gold to wear on her lobes. Pearls, perhaps — one at a time or dozens neatly filed in strands. Rings and bracelets, watches, pins . . . the choice is vast.

At Birks Jewellers we also carry figurines, silver service and other beautiful items to decorate the home mother has worked so hard to build. Bring your gift problems to us. We've got a solution.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

A lovely new shop for young moderns . . .

Maybe you haven't seen it yet because it opened just before Christmas . . . but there's a delightful new ladies' wear store in town called Mahogany Fashions which we think a great many of you will enjoy visiting and shopping in! . . . Environmentally it's a pretty store with the soft warmth of the mahogany — from which it takes its name, and that slightly nostalgic feeling of unhurriedness which makes shopping such a pleasure . . . Like most dress shops, Mahogany caters to a defined age group . . . we'd say the modern, with-it woman between twenty and fifty . . . The business or career girl who must look her best at all times . . . the smart young matron who wants to look great but must keep an eye on her clothes budget . . . Prices here start where the "younger set" shops leave off but are well below those of older, exclusive establishments . . . Styles are modern with good classic lines . . . Nothing faddish that won't carry over into a second season . . . Style and quality are really excellent for the money, and you won't see things everyone else in town has . . . With the Mahogany label there's an exclusive line of dresses and blouses by Christopher Ryan of Vancouver . . . $65 to $90 . . . Beautiful pure silk blouses, and some darling brocaded cottons, among other things . . . Visit soon! . . . Mahogany, 1241 Broad St., 382-3012.

Some very special "specials" at McMartin's . . . .

We've bought a fair amount of luggage in our time, but nowhere have we enjoyed the experience as much as at McMartin's . . . Not only do they have a terrifically wide range of quality stuff to choose from, but their brand of service is personal with a capital P! . . . Their "specials" are pretty special too! . . . Right now they have two styles of tote bags by Skyway . . . the Cadillac of luggage . . . reduced from $36 to an unbelievable $13.99! The tough woven cover is in multi-color "Fashion Squares" . . . to blend in nicely with whatever luggage you own . . . There's a gadget style tote and a regular tote with four zip compartments . . . roomy enough for an overnight bag . . . These totes are fantastic bargains, so do go in and see them! . . . Beautiful backgammon sets in various sizes are also marked down dramatically . . . A regularly $46 one going to some lucky backgammon fan for only $29.99 . . . and a $43 one for $27.99 . . . A really super-duper $52.50 set is slashed to $35.99 . . . and a smaller $33 set to $22.99 . . . There are still a few blue Jetliner 25" pullman cases reduced from $59.95 to $35.99 (one of which we've already picked up ourself!) . . . Some handsome new arrivals by National Luggage . . . very smart in either brown or rust Scotchguarded tweed . . . Everything from large bags on wheels to totes at . . . McMartin's Leather Goods, 1605 Douglas St., 384-6613.

Dresses with a French accent . . .

Straight from Gerard Pasquier, of Paris, are some lovely new dresses and skirts which have just been unpacked at Wilson's . . . They all have that deceptive simplicity . . . and quality of fit . . . which marks the best of the French creations . . . Dresses are in three different styles . . . One, in periwinkle blue, or navy . . . patterned with white abstracts . . . has little cap sleeves, elasticized waist, and double narrow ties at the neckline . . . Price is $155 . . . A second style is rather similar except that there are soft gathers from the shoulders . . . Colors are turquoise with jade green and taupe with raisin . . . in a design of stylized flowers which struck us as looking a bit oriental . . . $195 for this . . . Then there's a 2-pce. style in a soft peach polyester jersey with white collar and trim . . . Gathered skirt and gathers on shoulders of the short-sleeved top . . . Same model in navy and white . . . priced at $165 . . . Wilson's tell us the skirts are some of the most beautiful they've ever had . . . One with a silky gabardine finish is gathered all around and has a leather and silk braid belt . . . In camel only, at $130 . . . Another . . . in off-white or navy . . . is pleated all around . . . $105 . . . and a style tagged at $180 has a yoked top . . . Some pretty prints, too . . . $85 . . . All these are hand-washable! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177 and 1210 Newport Ave., 592-2821.

"Once in a Lifetime" cruise . . .

Hot off the presses is an intriguing brochure describing a very special cruise . . . a 29-day air/sea cruise to the South Pacific on the luxurious Pacific Princess, sailing from Los Angeles on Sept. 22 and arriving in Sydney, Australia, on Oct. 21 . . . The exciting thing about this is that it's specially priced . . . arranged by Paulin Travel in association with Budget Travel . . . expressly for Victoria people, and the fare is all-inclusive flying from Victoria to L.A. and return from Sydney . . . What's more you can break your return air journey enroute back to Victoria at no extra cost! . . . This will truly be the trip of a lifetime! . . . You'll be visiting the Hawaiian Islands, Christmas Island, Society Islands (Tahiti, Raitea), Cook Islands, Samoa, Tonga Islands, Fiji Islands, Auckland and Sydney . . . travelling leisurely from one exotic island to another on a veritable floating resort where you can be as active . . . or as relaxed . . . as the spirit moves you! . . . The service on this British-registered ship is superb . . . the cuisine magnificent . . . All staterooms are first class, with private facilities and individually controlled air conditioning . . . We won't quote fares but Paulin's will give you all the pertinent information . . . We'll just say this, though . . . no way could you get these prices if you did it on your own! . . . See Paulin's NOW . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

Light up your life . . .

We made a point of visiting Beston's almost as soon as it opened its doors last Monday so as to get a good leisurely look at their newest lamps and fixtures before everyone else got the same idea! . . . One of the first things to catch our eye was a very beautiful 5-arm chandelier . . . wood with antique brass finish, and shades made up of a fringe of Venetian glass beads, forming a pattern . . . This is a most unusual, somewhat nostalgic fixture which would certainly add eclat to a room . . . and there are small companion lamps to carry out the theme and cast a spot of light in stragetic places . . . Some new night lights are delightful . . . Either single or double-owls perched on a branch . . . and there's a little chimney lamp with figurines of a boy and girl in a bisque finish . . . which reminds us for all the world of Hummel figures . . . For that look of opulence there are gold-plated chandeliers . . . and for the light, airy look . . . fixtures and swags with shades made of Capiz shells from the Philippines . . . leaded something like Tiffany lamps. The translucent shells give a lovely soft light, and seem to fit in with just about any decor . . . Beston's have a lot of functional lamps to afford superb illumination for reading or working . . . There are floor lamps, matching table lamps and pull-out accordion ones that fasten on the wall . . . A gorgeous modern arc lamp with dome . . . ideal in a contemporary room . . . Well priced, too! . . . Beston's Lighting Exclusive, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-0332.

All this and heaven too! . . .

See a dress you like everything about except perhaps one or two features? . . . Own a favorite skirt or dress you'd love to have "dittoed" in a different color fabric? . . . Fallen in love with one of the lovely dresses at Impacts 'n' Imports . . . but it's not the right size? . . . Not to worry . . . Just tell it to Bonita at Impacts . . . She's the gal who makes quite a bit of their stock with the Impacts label . . . and she'll be deligted to copy anything for you . . . Combine four or five of your favorite styles . . . Create something, especially and solely for you . . . Her flair and workmanship are outstanding and we know you'll be thrilled with anything she does for you! . . . Just recently we were browsing through Impacts when they unveiled some perfectly beautiful pure silk happy coats . . . hand-painted by Susanne Blunt, on off-white raw silk. They all have bamboo designs in various color combinations . . . can be washed over and over and not only will the design not wear off, but the coats will never wear out! . . . The cut of these garments is fantastically flattering . . . [illegible] cheap, the long style is tagged at $175 while the short happy coat with pockets in front is $135. This would look great with pants . . . which Bonita can make you, if you like! Lovely . . . and exclusive to . . . Impacts 'n' Imports, 12 Centennial Square, 388-7023.

Happy the bride who registers at Eaton's

Time was when we had to urge brides-to-be to visit Eaton's Bridal Registry if they wanted help, advice, and a Preference List that would make their needs and tastes known to friends and family in a nice way . . . Nowadays it seems that soon-to-be brides are beating a path to Eaton's for the same very good reasons! . . . There are three very knowledgeable consultants on hand to help you in every imaginable way . . . Help you consolidate your choice of patterns and colors by, showing you how they look together . . . Help you decide what you'll need for your new home . . . Help you plan your wedding, whether it's to be large or small . . . Help you select invitations, "thank you" notes, serviettes and other odds and ends you'll need . . . and see to the printing . . . Then, of course, there's the Preference List you'll be invited to fill out, and which will be kept scrupuously up-to-date . . . ready for your friends to peruse and select gifts they know you really want . . . in the price range they can afford . . . This has to be the greatest, really! . . . You'll be doing your friends a favor, as any thoughtful girl should . . . and doing yourself a favor too! . . . All this help from Eaton's costs you nothing . . . and they'll even give you gifts . . . a silver spoon, a book on entertaining and a bride's book! . . . Eaton's Bridal Registry, 382-7141, loc. 373.

KNIT AND CHAT

By MAY E. MacLEAN

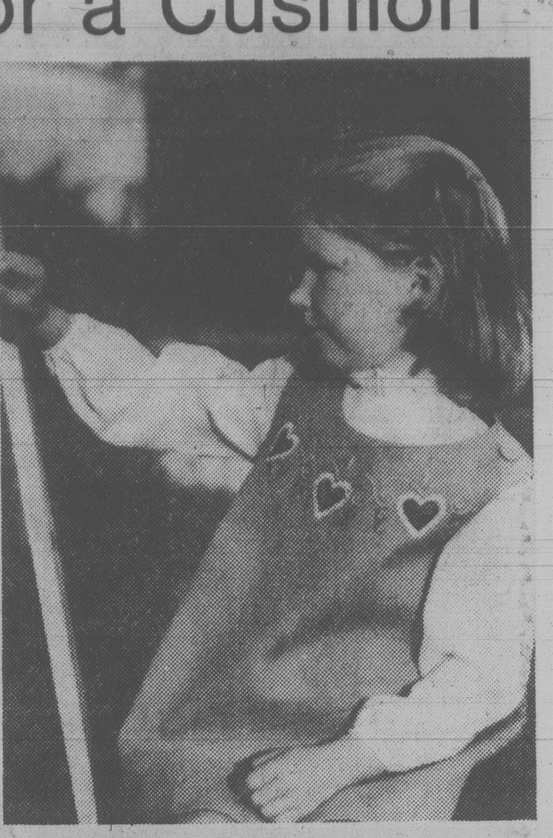
While in England recently, I accompanied a friend to an auction where I knew some very old pieces of needlework were being offered for sale.

A quite small, but exquisitely worked, 17th-century cushion fetched over $1,000: this, I am happy to say, will stay in England as it was bought by the Buckingham County Museum.

A late-16th-century embroidered coif in very good condition was sold for almost $1,000 to a dealer from the U.S., who also bought a gorgeous ostrich-feather fan that once belonged to Lillie Langtry, the famous actress of the Edwardian era. The fan had mother of pearl stays and bore the monogram "L." I was surprised that this fetch only about $250.

The following day I was at the Victoria & Albert Museum so when I saw that the "Fan Circle" was holding an exhibition it rather intrigued me. I was surprised to learn that this is an international organization to promote interest in fans. There are many famous collectors of fans, as well as small private collections, but quite a number of members have only one or two fans handed down from past generations, and share a common fascination with fans from a historical or sociological angle.

It proved a fascinating exhibition with fans from almost every corner of the globe. There were Japanese fans with delicate drawings on rice paper and fans of various leaves from the South Sea Islands, decorated with minute, flat shells and mother of pearl. There were fans of feathers on which flowers had been delicately painted. And embroidered fans, including traditional Victorian black-lace fans embroidered with sequins and beads. I remember playing with one of these as a child. It belonged to my great-grandmother, and I wish I knew what became of it, for it would be worth quite a bit of money today. It's a pity we do not realize this at the time! Anyone interested further in this organization can write to a Mrs. J. Morris, 24 Asumuns Hill, Hampstead Garden Surburb, London N.W. 11 ET, or to a Mrs. E. Sudall, East Bay Fan Guild, P.O. 1054, El Cerrito, California, U.S.A. 94530. These ladies will be only too happy to tell you about their program. You should mention whether you are a collector, need research on a fan, or are just writing out of general interest.



An adorable pinafore dress

For that special "princess" of your life — whether it be daughter, grand-daughter or niece — you will want to make this adorable little pinafore dress. They look so sweet over a contrasting color blouse, and I found them particularly useful when blouses became just a little too short for wear with a skirt — or if a dress still fits through the bodice, a pinafore such as this will prolong it's life a little.

Complete directions on how to draft your pattern for a two- to three-year-old, plus detailed instructions on how to work the embroidery, are given on the one leaflet, No. 7956.

To order Leaflet No. 7956 send 75 cents for each copy, PLUS a stamped self-addressed envelope, long one if possible. Remember the postage has now increased.

If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 30 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to: May E. MacLean, Knit and Chat, 486 Montford Dr., Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, Que., H9G 1M6

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped, return envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normale delivery.

My catalogue of gift ideas can be obtained for 25 cents, and back numbers of patterns are available at 75 cents each, plus stamped envelope.

Why Treatment Varies For Cancer Patients

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

Two people in my family are being treated for cancer. Both had surgery. One is 45 and is being given x-ray treatments. The other is 62 and is being given drugs. I wonder why they are being given two different forms of treatment for conditions that seem to be the same. Could it be because they live in two different cities? — Mr. S. T.

DEAR MR. T. Your question is probably one that has occurred to other people. Let me immediately reassure you that geography (small or large town) plays no role in the important decision about the use of radiotherapy (x-ray) or chemotherapy (drugs) in the post-operative treatment for cancer.

They are very specific indications for the use of one, the other or both.

In many instances, when a cancer has been completely removed and when there is no suspicion that any cancer cells are still present, neither chemotherapy nor radiotherapy are necessary.

When, however, the nature of the cancer growth shows the possibility of any extension, these forms of treatment are used for the hopeful purpose of destroying any residual cancer cells.

The science of oncology (treatment of cancer by drugs) has expanded enormously in the past two decades. Many drugs are now available and many more are on the horizon. The specialist in oncology is a highly trained doctor who attacks specific cancer cells with specific chemicals.

Similarly, it has been found that x-ray treatments can more actively destroy some cancer cells of another nature.

The decision, therefore, as to the use of one form of treatment or another depends on the co-ordinated judgment of the doctor, surgeon, oncologist and radiotherapist.

The combination of all forms of treatment has added immeasurably to the cure of many patients.

Is the rice diet still being used for high blood pressure? — Mrs. H. O.

DEAR MRS. O.:

For many years, the rice diet was considered to be an effective treatment for high blood pressure. Its effect was particularly noticed because there also was an associated loss of weight. The reduction of cholesterol and the decrease of the salt content in the body tissues that followed a long-term regime of rice was obviously beneficial.

But all this was before the remarkable new drugs that now are available to control hypertension. With the advent of the successful treatment of high blood pressure with chemicals, the rice diet is no longer the treatment of choice.

Mad Macaw Might Object

Wonderful World of Animals

DEAR DR. MILLER: Tequila, my hamster, loves to steal sunflower seeds from our macaw's dish. Are sunflower seeds good for hamsters? — W. B.

DEAR W. B.: Yes, some sunflower seeds are ordinarily excellent for hamsters. However, one mad macaw might make mincemeat (or hamster hamburger) out of your sunflower seed stealer. While sunflower seeds seem to contribute to longevity where macaws are concerned, they certainly won't tack on time to Tequila's life span — not, at least, until you give him his own supply.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Binky, our cat, is so crazy about Brewer's yeast tablets, he'll literally do somersaults for them. We give him three a day for the show. We assume they are good for him or at least won't hurt him. Right? — T. E.

DEAR T. E.: Right, usually. B-complex components and a bit of protein in Brewer's yeast can be beneficial for your feline. As a treat it is superior to (and cheaper than) some commercially prepared goodies.

Some cats, however, might have indigestion from three yeast tablets per day, though most could tolerate one.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Zippo was supposed to be a tame little green parrot when we got him. Bull-lony. He was scared to death and would fly against the side of his cage to get away from us.

To keep him from being so afraid, we stuck his cage in a huge dark box and he'd calm right down. It's nice and warm in there and protected and I let him have light just a few hours mornings and afternoons so he can eat. It's worked. He's a lot calmer now.

The only thing is he's losing feathers all over the place and I'm wondering if there is anything special I have to do with him till he grows in his new ones. He feels fine and acts better than ever. He just looks funny. — L. T.

DEAR L. T.: Your parrot with the departed plumage will need, primarily, protection against drafts since he'll chill easily.

Special, selected snacks, sparingly fed, of high protein such as cottage cheese, egg yolk or perhaps an occasional meal worm, if he is in the mood, might be indicated as the body's protein requirements will rise dramatically with heavy new feather growth.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What possible excuse could a dog doctor have for pulling a permanent tooth from each side of the lower jaw? Dont tell me they were puppy teeth because the dog lost its last puppy teeth two months before that. — Y.D.

DEAR Y.D.: The veterinarian who performed the extractions would be the logical one to answer that question. In most cases, however, extractions of permanent teeth on young dogs are performed to allow correction of jaw and teeth abnormalities. Frequently one jaw is shorter than the other

With removal of the impinging (interlocking) teeth, then, the short jawbone can continue to grow

Fashion News

TORONTO (CP) — With its prime target international markets, Fashion Canada has produced a magazine devoted to the total Canadian fashion industry.

The magazine Canada Fashion Mode is a photographic look at the complete clothing industry including men's, women's and children's wear and features leathers, furs, footwear and accessories.

Neil Peacock, executive director for Fashion Canada, says the purpose of the magazine is to show Canada as a vital, vibrant, alive-fashion country.

Manufacturers from across the country are included in the magazine which is 98 pages of full-color photography.

Clothing has been photographed in places as Niagara Falls and the top of Toronto's CN Tower.

Bill Wilton, president of Fashion Canada, said industries represented in the publication employ more than 100,000 workers in Canada.

How to care for your garden plants . . .
Plenty of indirect or diffused sunlight — artificial light is also helpful.
Temperature from 70 to 75 degrees during the day, lower at night. Avoid cool drafts or any direct source of heat — including the top of TV set, which is hot when set is on.
Over-watering is fatal — when soil is dry to touch, water thoroughly but don't allow plants to stand in water. Fertilize regularly.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm divorced and miserable. Even though I was the one who asked for the divorce, it was a terrible mistake.

Abby, will you please ask readers who were divorced, regretted it and got back with No. 1 again to write and tell you how they accomplished it?

I'll do anything!

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: All right, Readers? And please let me know how it was the second time around with No. 1.

DEAR ABBY: Our 18-year-old daughter has graduated from high school and has steady employment, so now she says she can do as she pleases. She is living at home (free), but she doesn't care what anybody thinks about her actions.

Her "old-fashioned' parents want to know if we have the right to set some rules for her. We have asked her to be home by 1 a.m. when she goes out on a date. She tells us if we don't "get of her back" she will move out and rent with girlfriends.

Please give use bewildered parents some guidelines.

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Tell your daughter to sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out exactly how "independent" she is. Advise her that when she is able to support herself entirely then she may live where and how she chooses. But as long as she lives with you, she will have to live by yours.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been making an issue out of our three-year-old grandson's choice of toys. He enjoys playing with his sister's dolls and his mother's shoes.

My husband says this is an indication that the boy has homosexual tendencies.

Could my husband's suspicions about his grandson be a reflection of his OWN repressed homosexual desires? I wonder because he seems to hate women — particularly me. He attacks sex as though it were a contest. When it's over, he is surly and mean. No love, no tenderness or closeness.

I am not worried about my grandson, but I am worried about my husband.

Am I justified?

— NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Only a trained psychotherapist could say. His attitude about women and love-making is no more conclusive proof of homosexual tendencies than your grandson's choice of toys.

Urethane Seals Self

By A.J. HAND

hand around the house

Q. Last year I sanded the oak floor in my bedroom. I went down to fresh wood, then sealed with shellac and put on two coats of urethane floor finish. Now the finish is starting to chip and peel. I can't understand it. I thought these new urethanes were supposed to be so great. What's the problem, and what should I do about it? — W. G.

A. Bad news: Most urethanes should not be used over shellac. The instructions on the label usually warn against it; the two are not compatible. Solution? Sand everything off and start over. This time, don't seal with shellac. The urethane is its own best sealer.

Q. I recently started a cabinet using birch plywood. After cutting out all the parts and beginning assembly, I discovered all the parts were slightly out of square. At first I thought it was my fault, but now I suspect my framing square. Is there any way to check it without special calibrated equipment?—F.K.

A. There's a very simple check. Place the tongue of the square against the straight edge of a sheet of plywood (see sketch). Scribe a line along the blade as shown. Then flip the square over and scribe a second line over the first. If the second line covers the first, your square is square. But if the two lines form a "V" the square is off.

Q. My husband and I are thinking of a wood-fired boiler as an alternative to our oil burner. Do you have any suggestions as to the best ones on the market?—L.R.

A. I don't want to recommend any specific brands, but I do have some advice. First, consider a dual-fuel furnace, one that can burn both oil and wood. That will give you much more flexibility than a plain wood furnace. Biggest advantage of this type is that it will run on wood as long as you stoke it, but will automatically switch to oil if you don't. This gives you the freedom to ignore the furnace now and then, or to go away on a winter vacation.

But before you buy anything, be sure the unit is approved by your local building inspector. Most multi-fuel furnaces are not approved; if you put one in you could be forced by law to remove it.

More Women In Dentistry

NEW YORK (AP) — Women are increasingly choosing careers in dentistry, says Dr. Dolores Franklin, assistant dean for student affairs and the first woman to become a dean at New York University's college of dentistry. Twenty women will graduate as dentists from the university this spring. Ten years ago only one woman received a dental degree from NYU.

Aluminum windows attract cold outdoor temperatures and moisture forms on the metal inside. To protect painted window sills and the wall below, place towels on sills to absorb dripping water. If it's a bad problem, tape or glue strips of foam insulation onto the metal frame to keep out the cold and prevent most moisture build-up.

Watering Savvy Pays Off

jack beastall

Sixty years ago wooden barrels were seen in most gardens collecting rainwater from roofs of homes, sheds and glasshouses, for use on the plants being grown on the property.

The water was applied with a watering can, or a dipper and bucket, to the soil immediately over the root area of shrubs and trees, and along each side of the vegetable rows.

Occasionally a bag filled with wood soot or cow manure was suspended by a heavy cord from a wooden bar across the top of the barrel. This provided a nutrient solution to maintain steady growth of ornamentals and vegetables.

Manure and compost was used freely at that time, a portion of every garden receiving a dressing each year.

This maintained the humus content of the soil which held the small amount of applied water within reach of the plants' feeding roots.

Water barrels are no longer seen in home gardens. They have been replaced with the water hose and sophisticated sprinklers.

Soot water and manure water have given way to bags of fertilizer, or 'plant food' as it is called, and the regular dressings of manure and compost is considered an objectionable practice the neighbors would not condone.

As a result we have high water bills owing in part to the amount of water applied where it is not needed, and a lack of humus in the soil to hold water within the reach of plant roots.

We have poor growth compared to the gardens in the past because little of the water applied with our new devices penetrates deep enough into the soil to reach the root area of each plant, and our soils lack the nutrients our forefathers supplied with the dressings of compost and the animal homones found in the manures.

The only water that benefits a plant is that which can be extracted from the soil in immediate contact with the roots and contains soluble nutrients the plant can use.

Water over the foliage is beneficial when the relative humidity is below 45 per cent and the dry air is extracting moisture from the foliage faster than it can be replaced by the feeding roots.

At other times water can chill the plants causing foliage damage and restricting natural growth.

Air is as important to a good healthy root system as water. After the root area has had sufficient water applied to penetrate 12 inches into the soil, no more water should be applied until the need is indicated.

A soil containing approximately the right amount of humus is a loose soil. As the water gradually sinks by gravity it sucks air into the soil to take its place. If more water is added within a day or so, the air is driven out and has no chance to benefit the feeding roots.

With sufficient humus added to the soil every year established plants and lawns can get along with watering once in 10 days in a sandy soil to once in three weeks in a clay soil.

If this schedule is started in March (as needed this year) or April, before the natural water table becomes too low, thousands of gallons of water can be saved in the season.

Gardeners in areas of low water pressure seem envious of those who say they have good pressure, apparently believing that high main pressure is essential to the good watering of the garden.

As one gardener said to me: "I don't quite understand your meaning of 'thorough watering' but I'm using all the pressure there is and I can't do more than that."

The more pressure used with a sprinkler the greater the area covered and the less water applied to each square foot of soil. The sprinkler will have to be run for four times as long as on low pressure to obtain the same depth penetration of the water.

At high pressure a revolving sprinkler will give circles of water and circle without water.

If the sprinkler is used always in the same position the plants in the dry circles will soon indicate dry soil at their roots. On a lawn these wet and dry circles are clearly visible during the summer months.

When hand watering with a hose, high pressure causes the water to spread over the surface instead of sinking slowly to the root area. In both instances, water is wasted and plants suffer from drought.

The most inefficient sprinkling device as far as plants are concerned, is the wing-type sprinkler which moves rapidly from side to side then dwells for several seconds at the end of each stroke before reversing.

Plants, or grass, in the area of water during the "dwell period" are left in saturated soil that will not allow air to reach their roots for several days, usually not before the sprinkler is again used.

But the area covered by the centre portion of the wing is left with barely enough water to dampen the surface. This you can prove by placing empty soup cans, all one size, at five-foot intervals from the sprinkler to the extreme end of the throw and measuring the amount of water in each can after the sprinkler has run for one hour.

The purpose of watering a garden is to get water down to the roots of the plants, and the most efficient way to do this is to water the soil immediately over the root area.

This can be done with an open-ended hose (no nozzle) laid on the soil with just enough pressure to gently trickle, and left in one position for an hour or more. Or with the most efficient watering device, the canvas soil soaker, with sufficient pressure to maintain steady dripping.

With both these methods no water is thrown high to lose 30 per cent in wetting the dry air, none is blown away by wind, none is wasted on bare soil where no plants are growing.

Humus is essential in a clay soil to prevent compaction and allow water and air to penetrate readily. It is also essential in a sandy soil to fill the air spaces between the grains and prevent the water from passing rapidly beyond the reach of plant roots.

When water is applied judiciously where it will do the most good, the savings will cover the cost of the humus our soils lack.

Work for Week

Hellebores — Christmas-rose and Lenten-rose — can be moved or bought for planting now, but resent disturbance so never move unless necessary.

Algerian-iris, Iris unguicularis, move only now, if necessary. Give humus and gravel in sun-baked spot where water cannot collect. A little lime in soil mixture, but no fertilizer.

As early pea sowings grow, draw soil towards them to strengthen root growth. The stronger the root systems, the greater yield.

Sowings of parsnip and early white turnip need thinning and weeding. Same with carrots which may be in a frame for warm soil.

Water-lily pools should be drained, cleaned; do not disturb established roots unless crowded. Water-snails, (from pet shops) keep pools algae-free, as also will a faint tint of pink from potassium permanganate (Condy's Fluid).

Continue care of tomato plants in house or greenhouse for later outdoor growing. Do not feed, but keep growing strongly in good overhead light by putting outdoors in containers during mild days and indoors in cool porch or other unheated spot for night.

Festival Survives Cuts

The International Year of the Child Festival, to be held in the Inner Harbor May 1-4, will go on despite a forced budget cutback of $3,000.

The festival, which will include Supershow, will be housed in two circus tents — one on the former Black Ball ferry site and the other on the city parking lot near the AirWest Airlines Ltd. terminal.

Co-ordinator Colin Gorrie says the cut of $3,000 from the $53,000 total budget will be covered by eliminating such things as a proposed team of jugglers and work shops at the sites, and by producing less elaborate programs.

He said an expected $5,000 grant from the International Year of the Child Canadian Commission had not been received, causing some problems. "We are still looking for $2,000," he said.

Both federal and provincial governments have contributed $13,000 toward the festival and Gorrie said local foundations and businesses had produced another $7,000.

Gorrie said box office sales are going well and he is confident the Greater Victoris International Committee will help. It has been asked to donate $8,000.

"Tickets are going very well. We would like very much to have a surplus as part of the funding to start for next year," Gorrie said, adding he would like the festival to become an annual event.

Tickets are available at the McPherson Playhouse box office, the Hillside shopping centre and the Kaleidoscope office.

PUPPETMONGERS POWELL will appear in The Miller and His Wife and the Brick Bros. Circus in Victoria, May 1 - 4. The group is participating in the Greatest Little Travelling Supershow for Young People, presented by the Touring Office of the Canada Council in celebration of the International Year of the Child.

Truly Super Show Starts Here May 1

Supershow is not merely coming to Victoria to celebrate the International Year of the Child. This city is its springboard for a Canada-wide tour starting May 1 and ending in St.John's, Nfld., July 24.

And what is Supershow? It looks like a circus; it's slapstick comedy, puppet antics, clowns and circus tents.

But it is also a compilation of performances by some of Canada's best artists and groups. They're mimists, actors, dancers and music makers.

The Touring Office of Canada Council has provided the core of artists and companies and the costs involved in transportation and other aspects. And it's all designed to mark the Year of the Child with The Greatest Little Travelling Supershow for Young People.

Locally the City of Victoria and the B.C. Cultural Services program is sponsoring the event, with Kaleidoscope Theatre acting as host.

The City and Provincial Capital Commission has arranged for the big tents to be put up in the Inner Harbor area.

Supershow will open May 1 in Victoria and the Yukon simultaneously.

Some of the performers appearing in Victoria include Puppetmongers Powell, a young brother and sister team of puppeteers who offer a repertoire of puppet programs based on folklore, history and circus sources.

The Powells manipulate a cast of 20 hand-made marionettes, each three feet high.

Theatre Beyond Words, one of Canada's leading professional ensembles, considered on a par with the world's finest mime companies, will also be here. Their show mixes comedy, drama and mask mime.

Supershow marks Canada's first attempt to hold a nation-wide event of travelling companies.

Opening ceremonies are planned in Victoria to mark its significance and Lieut.-Governor Henry Bell-Irving, Premier Bill Bennett, Mayor Mike Young and federal government officials will be participating when the big tents are up and set to go May 1.

First Come Means Savings For Bastion's New Season

Most major performing arts organizations in this city have their plans well advanced for next season and Bastion Theatre is out in front with its announcement this week.

Ed Stephenson, artistic director, feels he has come up with an exceptionally pleasing program to follow the 1978-79 season, which brought more than 50,000 people into the theatre. Included are comedies, a thriller, a passionate drama and a witty new Canadian play.

In detail they are, to open the season, the French genius of farce Georges Feydeau's A Flea in Her Ear, followed by John Murrell's nostalgic Waiting For the Parade; the Christmas show, Life With Father; the thriller, Deathtrap, (playing now on Broadway) by Ira Levin, author of Rosemary's Baby; Tennessee Williams' Cat On a Hot Tin Roof, and Jitters, by the Canadian author of Leaving Home, David French.

Stephenson is also happy to announce that the entire workshop team from the past season will be back to carry on its vital support role. Responsible for the smooth running of the workshop is production manager Colin Barr.

Members on the team are wardrobe supervisor and cutter Heather Woods, assisted by Mary-Anne Labelle, head carpenter Tom Barritt and stage carpenter Don Buskirk, resident designer Jack Simon, assistant Tom Taggart and properties mistress Shelly Schwieder.

Bastion is offering all those who subscribe before May 31 a price freeze that will give them the coming season at last season's ticket prices.

B.C. Mime Group At The Belfry

The largest professional mime theatre in B.C. is the lower mainland-based Axis Mime Theatre, which is just completing its spring tour of the province. The swing has taken the group north to Fort St.John and south to Victoria, where the tour ends with three performances at The Belfry.

Now in its fourth season, Axis Mime tells stories, plays music, sings songs and in the process makes its audiences laugh, experience nostalgia and react to a fine sharp edge of satire. The program the company will present here is entitled Encore. It is an evening of entertainment intended to give pleasure to everyone, no matter of what age or taste.

The opening act features the music and wacky humor of Simon Webb and Andy Rhodes in Lithe and in Person. An attractive presentation of original music and song, it was a major success in its Vancouver run last summer.

The second part of the program consists of B.C.Days, one of the company's most successful productions to date. B.C.Days chronicles the geological and social formation of the province. It is an epic production that depicts the grandeur and beauty of the scenery as well as highlighting the many famous characters and often humorous incidents connected with B.C.'s history. Performed in the unique ensemble style that Axis Mime is noted for, the production features live music and sound effects by Webb and Rhodes.

The Axis Mime program will be performed Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. Tickets are now available and telephone reservations may be made at 385-6815.

Donnalynn Johnston and Mike Watson in 'Saturday's Warrior'

'Saturday's Warrior'

An unusual musical play, Saturday's Warrior, is in rehearsal and will be presented Friday and Saturday at Victoria High School. It is of a somewhat metaphysical nature and was first produced at Brigham Young University.

The author, Doug Stewart, is a screen playwriter, and Lex de Azevedo, who composed the music, has written, arranged and conducted music for top television shows, including The King Family, the Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour and the Sonny Bono show. The play calls for a cast of nearly 100. It romanticizes a pre-existence, the promises that are made then and the resulting mix-ups that occur in earth life.

Directing the production is Lissa Woodbury, a former student at Brigham Young University in Utah. Recently moved to Canada, her previous experience includes being a resident member of the Lighthouse Repertory Theatre, seven years in summer stock and being director of several productions at Brigham Young. She has also worked in NBC studios with such actors as Walter Matthau and Jack Lemmon.

Cindy Galbraith is solo dancer and choreographer. At present a Victoria resident, Galbraith did most of her study at BYU where she graduated with a dance emphasis. Rosanna Watson, certified with the Royal Academy of Dance, is assisting with choreography.

The 40-member chorus is under the direction of Karen Bigelow. A University of Victoria graduate in music education and physical education, Bigelow is currently teaching at UVic. Since arriving in this city she has directed several musical groups and sang first soprano in performances of Walton's Belshazzar's Feast and Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass.

Costumer for Jerry Gosley's Smile Show for the last four years, Dottie Stutter is in charge of that aspect of Saturday's Warrior.

A combo under direction of Bob Nelson will accompany the production, which is classified by its directors as "two hours of ideal family entertainment".

Musical Notebook

For lovers of choral music, Newcombe Auditorium is the place to go tonight at 8 when The Newcombe Singers, a B.C. civil service group, join with The Vancouver Choristers, an ensemble of Vancouver city employees. The choirs are sharing a program entitled All in an April Evening.

The program will include music for everyone — show tunes, jazz, ballads and familiar favorites, old and new.

There is no admission charge but a silver collection will be taken.

Five Victoria artists, two pianists and three singers, will appear in a joint concert, Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Presented under the auspices of Victoria Conservatory of Music, they are well known sopranos Erika Kurth and Adele Lewis, mezzo soprano Carolyne Svensrud, a new arrival from Oslo, and pianists Judith Allan and Gordana Lazarevich.

SCOTTISH BLOOD is not the only kind that will be pulsing faster at McPherson Playhouse on Sunday, April 29. The irresistable rhythms and lilt of the Gaelic in speech and song stirs almost everyone to tap toes and clap hands in response. The White Heather Concert, an annual treat from the land of the kilt and the bagpipe, features Scotland's famous singing star, Kenneth McKellar and TV star Lydia Flett, (above); also comedian Billy Jeffrey and accordionist Stuart Anderson.

New Ballet Group Gains Expertise

audrey johnson

A fortunate conjunction of events is bringing about early realization of a dream on the local ballet scene. It's a dream that was little more than a mirage on a distant horizon weeks ago.

Last November the Vancouver Island Ballet Society was formed by a group of knowledgeable ballet enthusiasts.The aim of the society was to develop a good climate for ballet performance in this city, involving and complementing the work of local studios and teachers; to provide additional learning opportunities with experts in various styles and related fields; and eventually, by establishing a company, to promote and provide performance experience at a professional level for senior and graduate students.

This last, together with the idea of offering a summer program under a guest teacher from a leading ballet school, were projects considered remote at the present time.

However, shortly before the Ballet Society was formed, a couple who had been living in Eastern Canada decided to take an early retirement and, travelling by trailer, made a survey of Canada in search of the perfect place to start their new life. They were Robert G. and Lillian Griffiths and as luck would have it, they chose Victoria.

They moved here last October, bought a house and had started the settling-in process when Lillian Griffiths noticed a Times Saturday feature headed "City Ballet Groups Taking First Steps." The story attracted her attention because it happened that she had been a dancer, teacher, adjudicator, examiner, choreographer and producer of full-length classical ballets for professional companies as well as ballet clubs in South Africa, the country from which she and her husband had originally come to Canada in 1969.

Lillian responded to the Times story by contacting the V.I. Ballet Society and offering her services in whatever capacity was required. Such instantly available professional expertise was a windfall that society organizer Maureen Duffus and company could scarcely have dreamed would happen.

GRIFFITHS
. . . offers services

The South African-born Lillian carries with her a lifetime of experience in dance, and in association with some of the finest English and European ballet artists. She was, for instance, ballet mistress for Vera Volkova's full-length Swan Lake, done with the highly rated professional Johannesburg Ballet Company, in which the Royal Ballet's Beryl Grey danced Odette-Odile; also for Dudley Davis's Coppelia, in which Davis danced the lead with David Blair and Marion Lane.

She founded the Durban Ballet Club, for which she produced and toured Les Sylphides, Swan Lake, Prince Igor and Carnaval. Another rolê she filled was as talent scout, touring Europe extensively to audition dancers in London, Berlin, Paris, Rome and Stuttgart for South African productions.

While living in Toronto, Griffiths conducted various classes for the National Ballet School. Her own dancing years had been spent in professional work, dancing leading roles with John Cranko and other international artists in major ballets.

She is emphatic in saying that she has no intention of embarking on private teaching in Victoria.

"I've seen local dancers in performance and special classes," she says. "I'm impressed with the quality of training available in Victoria studios. Certainly there is enough talent — sufficiently advanced talent — here to make it possible to present some traditional ballets."

She sees her principal contribution to the evolving of a company in Victoria as being that of producer. What she and the V.I. Ballet Society are planning is "a good amateur company working to professional standards," she says. "The concept is intended to bridge the gap between classroom and professional work."

Lillian suggests Sylphides as probably the first production. Later there could be excerpts from Swan Lake, possibly Coppelia.

"You have so much in this city — symphony orchestra, choirs. There's no reason why, in a little time, we should not do a Prince Igor with orchestra and chorus. But we must, of course, always be on guard not to over-reach ourselves in terms of either talent or budget," she cautions.

"We think this is a terrific opportunity for dancers from all studios to get experience in the classics," says Duffus. "It means not having to go east or south or wait for acceptance into a European company to continue training. And for Victoria audiences it means seeing much more classical ballet."

Griffiths, too, emphasizes the value for a student of becoming familiar with the traditional repertoire. She also stresses that the company will never become a competitive teaching situation, nor favor any particular studios. All serious dancers will be auditioned, she says, and all those who are still studying must be registered with Greater Victoria teachers.

At the moment she is "champing at the bit" to get started and is interested in auditioning and coaching male and female dancers from every source. Both women hope that a meeting scheduled for Sunday to discuss these plans and other dance events will be an opportunity to share their own enthusiasm with a lot of interested people. Anyone who has talents — music, art, organization, costume making — that they would be willing to employ for furthering of the cause, will be doubly welcome, says Lillian.

The meeting will be held in the mezzanine lounge of McPherson Playhouse at 2 p.m. Anyone wanting further information should call 478-6978 or 477-6190.

The other favorite project brought into the foreground through Griffiths' presence — sponsorship of a guest-conducted summer program — is now an actuality. It will take place from July 3 to 20 at Glenlyon School and will consist of a comprehensive program of ballet, tap, jazz, musical theatre and workshops. The guest teacher will be Lillian Griffiths' daughter, who is a senior teacher at the National Ballet School. Leigh-Ann Griffiths trained with the Royal Ballet School, was soloist with the Stuttgart Ballet and has performed with many leading dancers, including the great Nureyev. Last year she was ballet mistress for an Erik Bruhn production for the National School.

Associated Victoria teachers in the program will include Bebe Eversfield, Marie Maggiora, Lynn Schmaltz (jazz) and Sherry Black (tap). Workshops will include lectures on costume for dance by former New York designer Ingrid Wolsk.

Monday brings the start of two weeks of total immersion in music and related arts for a great many people of all ages. It's the 29th annual Greater Victoria Music Festival and the biggest ever.

This year there are 805 piano entries alone. String entries have doubled and there are noticeable increases in most categories. Interest in dance events has been mushrooming but this year the festival board hit the jackpot in numbers when it introduced a whole new section for Irish dance, attracting a deluge of 500 entries. Many groups are coming from out of town, some from as far away as Alberta.

Irish dance classes will occupy the Metropolitan Church's Ephraim Evans Auditorium starting Friday evening and continuing through Saturday and Sunday. They will be judged by Dolores Gaynor, a qualified teacher and adjudicator with the Irish Dancing Commission of Ireland.

Piano sessions will take place in the First United Church Sanctuary and Fellowship Hall during the entire two weeks, concluding with championship and Victoria Medallion competitions on the evening of May 4. Vocal classes also begin Monday, taking place at St.Andrew's Kirk Hall, 680 Courtenay, and concluding May 2 with the Rose Bowl championship.

Studio dance begins Tuesday at Oak Bay Junior. This section concludes with its own honors program at McPherson Playhouse April 30. Speech arts will take place this year at St.Matthias Church Hall, Monday through Thursday, ending with an honors program on the final evening. St.John's Church hall will host accordian and electric organ, Thursday and Friday.

Highland and folk dance sessions have already taken place and the colorful folk dance honors program will be held Tuesday at Central Junior Secondary at 7:30 p.m. Strings, brass and woodwinds, schools choral and bands and guitar sessions all come in the festival's second week.

Among special events the big one, of course, is the Highlights Concert which brings the festival to a conclusion May 7 at McPherson Playhouse. The program for this concert is representative of the best performances heard during the entire session and traditionally includes the Medallion, Rose Bowl and Congress of Strings winners.

Other special evenings will consist of the strings championships May 5, and schools honor program May 3. It should be noted that this event will not take place at Central as listed in the programs and on posters, but at Reynolds Junior Secondary.

Morning sessions generally begin at 9, afternoons at 1:30 and evenings at 7. Full details are available in the handsome programs on sale at music centres around the city. Season tickets admit the holder to all sessions except the two at McPherson Playhouse.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological forecast for Sunday, April 22
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Delays, temporary confinement could be on agenda. You get second wind; money picture gets brighter. Being alone is not same as being lonely. Seclusion now works to your advantage. Capricorn individual plays role behind the scenes.

TAURUS (Apri 20-May 20): Emphasis on fulfillment, desire, success as a result of business manoeuvre — and romance. A wish "comes true." Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario. You can find key to universal appeal. Know it — and strive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on career, superiors, reputation, prestige, fulfillment of aspirations. You could meet a Leo individual who helps you "get started." Welcome contacts, challenges, chance for greater independence — and love.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spotlight on spiritual concepts, getting whole picture, pursuing educational project, absorbing knowledge concerned with distance, travel, communication and language. A "teacher" appears on scene. You'll benefit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The occult, special detective work, discovery, recovering lost articles, intensified relationships are all on your personal agenda. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently — and so does the number 3.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Contracts, rights and permissions, public relations are featured. Unorthodox individual could lead you to "escape hatch." A contractual obligation actually is going to work in your favor. Check sources — and resources.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Open lines of communication with coworkers, those who perform special services. Gemini, Sagittarius and Pisces persons play key roles. Moderate pace brings most constructive results. Keep promise to one confined to home, hospital. Visit with flowers!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reunion with family member figures high on agenda. Children, creativity, style and generosity command attention. One you are "attracted to" responds in favorable manner. Taurus, Libra and another Scorpio are in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home real estate, defining material and spiritual needs — these are accented. Strive for security based on being true to yourself. Pisces plays key role. You gain inspiration from one who overcame odds to survive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What seemed nebulous could become solid — know it, prepare accordingly. Short trip, visit, enthusiastic relative could be a part of scenario. A successful business transaction is upcoming — you could receive a viable hint.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on completion of project, getting financial facts of life, learning what means the most to you. Much that might have seemed imperative may now be "disposable." Go with the tide. Aries person plays key role.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle high — you make changes, new starts, valuable contacts and earn chance to act in a more independent manner. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in scenario. Your judgment, intuition strike target. Vitality returns — you should be rarin' to go!

IF APRIL 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are determined, stubborn, unorthodox, willing to tear down for purpose of rebuilding. Scorpio, Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently in your life. October could be one of your most important months of 1979, a year in which you gain spiritual insights, learn who cares, who is cynical where you are concerned. You get chance to establish credibility, to make contacts which could lead to your own business or home — to marriage or meaningful partnership. You are lonely in a crowd. You are loyal, but have been disappointed to learn — the hard way — that others don't always live up to your principles. Social life accelerates in May — you also travel and find profitable way of displaying artistic capabilities.

Monday, April 23

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make use of "suppressed data." Look behind the story. Complete project. Missing link can be located. Libra — and another Aries — figure prominently. You're on brink of major breakthrough. Be confident!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wish is fulfilled. Romance aura replaces gloom. Give yourself a chance to bask in happiness! It will prove your best medicine. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure in fresh experiences, contacts, challenges.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You gain greater sense of direction. Goals, aspirations come into sharp focus. Aquarius, Cancer persons play key roles. Superior makes support for you very evident. You can hurdle obstacles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Travel, publication, expansion and communication are featured. Grasp long-range view — bring potential into focus. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Be versatile, but don't scatter efforts. Keep the faith.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Restrictions can fall aside if you "push the right buttons,' Stress hidden values; be aware of terms, leases, taxes, finances affecting partner or mate. In matters of speculation, stay with number 4.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on special relationships, including partnership, marriage. Gemini — and another Virgo — play important roles. Do plenty of listening. Take notes. You will gain advantage through written word.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message — maintain low profile. Let others tell of their plans. Play your own cards close to chest. Accent on work, basic interests, necessities and health. Family member "saves the day."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your natural abilities surge to forefront; you'll be vital, alive, creative — and romantic. Members of opposite sex, children and "gamblers" crowd your personal scenario. Perfect techniques, streamline procedures.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on real estate, abode, rights, special access to "off limits" territory. Investments, intensified relationships, profitable priorities command attention. Older individual helps you succeed in financial sense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on ideas, conflicts, relatives dispuing each other's claims. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Finish rather than begin — tie loose ends. Love becomes less of a puzzle as you regain sense of direction.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Follow through, be direct, take initiative, make appearances, personal appeals. Teaching, learning processes are featured. You can be finished with fears, doubts, trepidation. Stand tall, battle for principles and love.

IF APRIL 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, attractive, creative, somewhat self-indulgent, determined, stubborn, extravagant where luxury is concerned. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. September could be your most important month of 1979, a year in which you organize priorities, accept responsibility, face facts, gain profits, have "revelation" converning money and love. In May, you locate escape hatch. In June, you make significant changes and could fall in love. You have a pleasing, compelling personality. You are a combination of charm and intransigence. You have a knack of expressing yourself in manner which causes people to stop, look and listen. You make money with Gemini, sign contracts with Scorpio, make love with Virgo and travel with Capricorn. You are due to be happier and more affluent.

Slayer Says Boy's Death Will Haunt Him for Ever

MONTREAL (UPC) — A 30-year-old man began a life imprisonment term Friday for the sex-killing of a 15-year-old delivery boy whose death, he told the court, would haunt him to the end of his days.

In imposing sentence, Superior Court Justice Claire Barrette-Joncas, noting the lengthy history of Pierre Piche's violent "sexual fantasies," ordered he not be made eligible for parole until he has served 25 years.

"If I should live a million years, I will always have on my mind what I did to that boy," Piche told the court before sentencing Thursday.

The precise details of the way Mario Copocci died Jan. 8 proved so grisly the coroner, at an inquest into the boy's death, wept and refused to read the pathology report in public.

The boy was strangled after he delivered a case of beer and three loaves of bread to Piche's home.

Judge Barrette-Joncas noted Piche previously had been declared insane and had been hospitalized after knife attacks on "at least 11, maybe 18" women. His record also included convictions for indecent assault, sodomy, break-in, theft and armed robbery.

"Being hospitalized for two years, followed by sporadic treatment at an outpatients' clinic, apparently did not rid you of your sexual fantasies," she said.

No Permanent Fare Cuts

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada may offer future seat sales on domestic air routes but there will be no permanent fare reductions, company president Claude Taylor said Thursday.

"If, in May, we see that the current plan is a success we may continue with others in the future," he told reporters.

The airline slashed fares for seats on domestic runs that would normally have been empty for a seven-week period that began March 27.

"The basic (operating) costs are still there for us."

Beef Price Dip Some Day?

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased pork and poultry production could take some of the sting out of those high beef prices this year, agriculture department officials say.

And as a consolation for hamburger and steak fanciers, the experts say farmers are keeping more cows for breeding and that should mean lower beef prices in a few years.

For meat eaters looking for some changes in their diet, the agriculture department also notes that after decades of decline, sheep and lamb numbers are finally on the rise in Canada.

At Jan. 1, there were 420,000 sheep and lambs in Canada, up eight per cent from the year previous.

New Brunswick, Ontario and Alberta recorded the biggest gains in the last year. However much of the increase is still geared to the so-called Easter ethnic market.

The slaughter of beef cattle will be 12 to 15 per cent lower this year than last and there will be a further drop of 10 to 15 per cent in 1980.

The department says consumers are unlikely to continue paying high prices for beef but the drop in slaughterings in North America means the prices will remain buoyant.

While slaughterings are off, the total number of cattle at Jan. 1 was down only four per cent from the year-previous level of 12.9 million head.

Retention by farmers of young female cattle for breeding was up 20 per cent Jan. 1 compared with the previous year.

Some idea of price increases in the last year can be seen in the rise to between $80 and $85 a hundredweight for top steers in the first months of 1979 from between $65 and $70 a hundredweight a year earlier.

Meanwhile pork production should rise 12 to 14 per cent this year over last and surpass the 1971 record of 10.2 million head.

Farm prices for the first half of 1979 should be near $70 a hundredweight before falling back to between $58 and $62 a hundredweight later in the year.

In mid-March, farmers sent 23 per cent more pigs to market than they did a year earlier while U.S. slaughterings rose only two per cent.

Aided by the devalued Canadian dollar, exports of live hogs and pork rose last year for a trade surplus of $75.6 million compared with a 1977 deficit of $35 million.,

The number of lambs on farms at Jan. 1 was 68,700, up 20 per cent from the previous year.

Blind Man Not Short On Insight

By ERIC BENDER

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Since Bob McMurray went blind in 1972 his life has been a series of insights, revelations and inspiration.

"It's proven to me and to our friends and neighbors that there is something you can do that makes it (life) worthwhile," says McMurray, who keeps busy in the wicker-weaving workshop at his London home.

McMurray, 44, a diabetic since age 12, was a successful electronic equipment salesman before the diabetes began affecting his sight in 1970.

"I was watching TV one night and all of a sudden it was like watching through a screen — the blood vessels started hemorrhaging," he recalls.

Laserbeam treatments at London's Victoria Hospital and in the United States went on for two years in a futile attempt to save his sight.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) finally registered him as blind after he made a last desparate attempt to hold his job.

His wife, Barb, drove him on his sales routes throughout southwestern Ontario and did his book work. But he had to resign. Glaucoma had set in as a secondary problem.

McMurray now is blind in his left eye and has about five per cent vision in his right.

In 1973 he went to the CNIB in Toronto for rehabilitation training.

"They taught me how to make a plain waste paper basket," he says. "It was plain therapy. They wanted to know what kind of dexterity, I had."

He says he never was the handy craftsman type previously.

When he brought his creations home from Toronto, neighbors wanted to buy them from him.

"Then people asked if I could do chair caning."

Old fashioned furnture was coming back in style and the market looked good. McMurray asked to go back to the CNIB to learn a whole range of skills related to basket weaving.

Now the MacMurrays have their own home manufacturing company which turns out such other products as doll carriages, doll cradles, bassinets, flower stands, shelving, tables, clothes hampers, shopping baskets and chairs.

Architect And Fighter

TORONTO (CP) — He has selected a tasteful pine coffin, chosen a hymn for the ceremony and rejoiced in the conviction that his funeral will be a large one.

And at 81, Eric Ross Arthur, Canada's grand old man of architecture, is as full of restless creative life as men 50 years his junior. Having looked death in the eye, he has returned satisfied to the absorbing business of living.

His latest book on the Ontario Parliament buildings, called From Front Street to Queen's Park, has just been published by McClelland and Stewart. Another, on historical ironwork, will be out in the fall. And, in the space of a year, he's prepared yet another on death and dying.

"I haven't had a holiday in two years," Arthur said in a recent interview.

"But that's all right. A few months ago I got pneumonia and had a good rest in hospital."

Arthur's life is stamped with enthusiasm for his projects and iron self-discipline to carry them out.

But a picture of him as a grimly-determined workaholic would be inaccurate and would ignore the charm of a man who refuses to drive a car and who bakes his own bread when the mood strikes him.

Arthur is an enthusiastic architectural historian and fighter for the preservation of the valuable past, as well as a spokesman for bold, new design.

His honors include Companion of the Order of Canada, and a Canada Council medal for oustanding cultural achievement.

Publisher Jack McClelland finds Arthur spellbinding.

"He could talk me into publishing the telephone book," McClelland said.

In recent years, Arthur persuaded McClelland to publish a book called The Barn, A Vanishing Landmark in North America. "At the time, I didn't think it was viable," McClelland said.

"But I realize now that anything Eric suggests is a winner."

Born in Dunedin, New Zealand, Arthur apprenticed there as an architect and later won a scholarship to Liverpool University as a prize for civic design.

That opened doors to the London firm of Sir Edwin Lutyens, where he practised until University of Toronto offered him a job in 1923. He soon became distressed by the razing of Toronto's old buildings and worked vigorously for 200 structures to be mapped and photographed.

One of Arthur's biggest controversies came in 1957 during the competition for a new Toronto city hall. He masterminded the project as professional adviser for the city.

But time has proven Arthur right. An informal newspaper poll in 1974 rated city hall as Toronto's best-liked building.

Arthur said death has been on his mind for the last few months and he has written a manuscript on the subject from an architectural point of view — the history of graveyards, burial customs and funeral ceremony.

"Nothing appals me," he said. "There [illegible] interest in life. Once you realize that, there's never enough time for anything."

New Disdain for Portage and Main

WINNIPEG (CP) — A group of militant pedestrians is refusing to be forced underground at the city's most famous intersection — Portage Avenue and Main Street.

The group, calling itself Right to Walk, has been protesting since the opening of an underground concourse connecting commercial developments near the intersection.

Street-level barriers have been erected at three corners of Portage and Main, and the fourth corner will be blocked when a business complex there is completed.

Right to Walk is angry about handicapped and elderly people being forced up and down stairs and through heavy doors to get across the intersection.

The protesters complain that escalators at each corner can be reached only by short flights of stairs. For people who can't use escalators, there are elevators at only two of the corners.

Right to Walk leader Evelyn Shapiro says the city also has violated the human rights of pedestrians by funnelling them into the concourse.

The group has lost two rounds with city council. It followed its first defeat with a protest at the corner, where veteran council-member Joe Zuken led protesters, including several in wheelchairs, in a walk around the intersection as 100 supporters cheered.

Since then, council rejected an appeal and Shapiro has promised pressure will be put on corporations whose buildings are connected to the concourse.

Right to Walk and its sympathizers also will continue street-level "guerrilla" tactics, climbing around or over the barriers and darting through heavy traffic to cross the street.

The defiant pedestrians run the risk of being collared for jaywalking.

One woman interviewed after standing for several minutes on the median in the centre of Main Street while waiting for traffic to pass vowed she would continue to cross above ground.

"I have nothing against the concourse, really," she said. "But I find it a damn nuisance to have to go up and down all those stairs. Usually, it's faster to cross the street."

A camera-shop clerk with a good view of the intersection said hundreds of pedestrians dodge traffic there daily.

"It seems most of them are elderly. One morning, I saw an old man almost get blown under the wheels of a truck."

City councillors who voted for the ban say engineers who proposed it were anxious to protect pedestrians and improve traffic flow at Portage and Main.

The most recent council debate, watched by 165 Right to Walk members and supporters, was laced with predictable emotional overtones.

"If we take down the barriers and some child gets killed, we're going to have a lot of explaining to do," said one councillor.

Opponents labelled the statement a scare tactic but went on to say the debate was making the city "the laughing stock of the country."

Shapiro says design of the concourse shows that little thought was given to handicapped people by the development companies and the city.

She tells of an elderly woman who phoned her recently to say she walked two blocks out of her way to cross the street.

"It was so typical of the calls I've been getting. She is 74 and has arthritis and cataracts. She said she tried the concourse but just couldn't make it.

"She was all out of breath. She told me she had planned to come to the council meeting that night but now it was all she could do to find a way home."

Outside Club Rules

WINNIPEG (CP) — The board of directors of Manitoba Hydro is free to use public money to pay for a membership in any club it chooses, Finance Minister Don Craik told the legislature Monday.

Craik, minister responsible for hydro, said he had legal advice the utility is not covered by the government's administration manual which prohibits membership in a purely social club.

The manual applies only to government departments and agencies and not to Crown corporations such as hydro, Craik said in reply to a question from Jim Walding (NDP-St. Vital).

The opposition has criticized hydro and Manitoba Public Insurance Corp. for buying memberships for their general managers in the Manitoba Club, an exclusive Winnipeg club that requires a $500 entrance fee and nearly $600 in yearly membership dues.

After Craik's statement in the legislature, New Democratic Party leader Howard Pawley asked for a review of the practice of Crown corporations joining such clubs.

Craik said he did not feel such an inquiry would be appropriate.

Instead, he suggested that Pawley question the officers of Crown corporations as they appear before the legislature's public utilities committee.

Radar Foil Runs Afoul Of Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Dr. Dennis Karpiak knows what adding insult to injury means.

The 36-year-old Kamloops doctor was given a speeding Oct. 27 near Canmore, Alta., 110 kilometres west of Calgary, when he had a radar detector in his new silver sports car. RCMP seized the detector which is illegal in Alberta.

In British Columbia and Saskatchewan, there's no law against owning such a device. The former Edmonton resident said it wasn't even plugged in.

The charge against Dr. Karpiak was dropped later, but the $200 radar detector was not exhibited at the trial and the judge had no jurisdiction to make an order for its return. Subsequent efforts by Gary Moore, the doctor's lawyer, have failed to win return of the device.

But Dr. Karpiak is determined to fight on.

"Expenses be damned," says Dr. Karpiak as he prepares to wage his legal war against the Alberta government.

He said he thinks the Alberta anti-detector legislation is ridiculous and wonders why unknowing visitors to Alberta should be penalized by seizure as well as by a fine.

"What do you do if you drive from British Columbia to Saskatchewan — mail it? Somebody has to stand up and be heard."

Crown Prosecutor J. Paul Brunnen of Calgary said if a peace office uses his prerogative to seize the detector, it is forfeited to the Crown.

Moore and Dr. Karpiak swore out an information charging Sergeant Clive Kitteringham, commanding officer of the Canmore detachment, with refusing to deliver the property, an offence punishable by 14 years in jail.

Brunnen quashed the information, but Dr. Karpiak plans to continue the fight.

"You've taken the wind out of my sails," said the heart and lung specialist after he heard of Brunnen's move.

Ostriches In Cabinet?

WINNIPEG (CP) — A city official says the Manitoba government is acting like a "metric ostrich" because of its reluctance to introduce a metric building code.

L. R. Campbell, city streets and traffic manager, said in a report to civic policy committee such codes were adopted by all other provinces last year.

Campbell said Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has announced that effective next month no funding will be approved for housing designed in imperial units.

There is going to be a "federal-provincial collision" over the matter, he said, and the victims will be homeowners and businesses.

He said producers of products and services will be left out of the national economy, and Manitobans will pay premium prices for non-metric products.

"It is difficult to understand how the provincial cabinet can take so little interest in the matter given that . . . the provincial economy must remain in step with the national economy in metric conversion to compete."

Olds May Get Lucky

EDMONTON (CP) — The town of Olds, Alta. may still be in line for some Loto Canada funds to help rebuild community recreation facilities destroyed by fire, despite statements earlier this week that it would not qualify.

Iona Campagnolo, federal minister for fitness and amateur sport, said the Olds reconstruction is a provincial matter and would not qualify for Loto Canada support.

Ian Howard of Vancouver, western vice-president of Loto Uanada, says, however, a re-elected Liberal government would introduce legislation allowing lottery profits to be used to rebuild the town's hockey arena and exhibition hall, destroyed by fire last Halloween night.

8,000 -10,000 in Danger?

CALGARY (CP) — Between 8,000 and 10,000 city residents live near a potential hazard to life and property, council has been told.

A city commissioners' report said that under certain conditions, a 100,000-gallon propane storage tank on the CP Rail line in the southern district could explode.

Devastation could reach as far as two kilometres, the report said.

Cable Company in Court

SASKATOON (CP) — A contempt of court case against a Saskatoon cable television company and a community affairs program host has been adjourned without plea for two weeks.

Program host B. C. Cranfield and Saskatoon Telecable Ltd. are charged with contempt of court relating to a program transmitted Feb. 21 which commented on performances by four Saskatoon provincial court judges.

Police Building Criticized

EDMONTON (CP) — The design for a new Edmonton police building is "almost like a prison" says Ald. Olivia Butti. "All we need is a moat and drawbridge and we're set."

Ald. Butti claims the number of windows — 15 per cent of the total surface — may be insufficient.

Police Chief Bob Lunney says he is satisfied with the design and amount of window space.

Nine of their twelve grandchildren were also present.

Fairweather — 60th

On March 26, 1919, Thomas Fairweather and Mary Doig were married at Hoole Farm, Balbeggie, Perthshire, Scotland. On March 24, 1979 they celebrated their Diamond Wedding Anniversary, at the Millstream Inn, Mill Bay. Some 50 young people of all ages shared the occasion with the Fairweathers with a full smorgasbord dinner followed by some highly enjoyable dancing to the live music of a 4-piece combo. The celebrants, their daughter, Jenny (Mrs. Frank Mather), grandson Brian Mather and wife Anne and great-granddaughter Alissa Mather made it a four-generation occasion. Friends from Mill Bay, Duncan and district, Victoria, Vancouver, Fort Saskatchewan, and Toronto helped to make the evening a great success for the Fairweathers. Old timers from England and Scotland who are unable to arrive on the exact date are planning to come in June and July to make those reminiscence months. Close relatives from Tasmania were all set to come until a fall and a broken hip caused a disappointing cancellation of those arrangements. Mr. and Mrs. Fairweather, who will be 91 and 86 years old respectively this summer, put in many hours daily in gardening, landscaping, rustic and needlecrafts for which they have had enviable reputations over the years.

In addition to the great pleasure of cards, gifts and floral arrangements the Fairweathers were delighted to receive congratulations from Barbara Wallace, MLA; Tommy Douglas, MP; Bill Bennett, Premier of B.C., and Lieutenant-Governor Bell-Irving. The joy was certainly crowned when they received a telegram from Buckingham Palace with congratulations and good wishes from Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth.

Is it a stucco 2 bedroom home, big kitchen, fully insulated, well built in good condition, fenced and lawned? Yes! Is it on a quiet street, well lit, within a short walking distance to Hillside Shopping Mall, doctors, buses? It is. Is it fully redecorated, with low steps, lots of windows and cupboards with arborited shelves, wall to wall carpeting, cosy and warm, no drafts, copper tone fridge and stove? It sure is. Is it economical to heat and maintain. Definitely yes! Please feel welcome to drop around to 1444 Edgeware Rd. in the afternoon, or phone 595-3140 evenings.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

I WISH TO EXTEND SINCERE thanks to Doctors and nurses of the Royal Jubilee Hospital-Victoria General Hospital-The Gorge Hospital and Mount Tolmie Hospital for care and administration to my beloved wife Mary, during the last ten years of her life with that dreaded arthritis. My sincere thanks to the Rev. E. Moulden of St. Lukes Church the St. Lukes Alter Guild and members of St. Lukes B.A.C. and to all friends we have made in Victoria for their kindness, help and messages of sympathy.
Reginald C. Allder.

WE SINCERELY WISH TO thank our many relatives and friends for their beautiful floral offerings and expressions of sympathy in our sudden loss of Bill Sweeting a wonderful and loving husband, father and grandfather. Also our dear friends Dr. Heffernan, Rev. Bill Van Druten and members of the Victoria City Police Dept.
Iris, Bert Marie and family, Hazel Maurice and family.

The family of the late Mr. Eivind Moeskau extends sincere thanks to Dr. J. E. Petersen, the staff at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Rev. L. M. Carlson, the Royal Canadian Legion, the Sons of Norway, and to all friends and neighbours for their kindness and help in our loss. We wish to thank all who sent floral arrangements, and cards of sympathy.
Ella Moeskau.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to all friends and relatives for all the kindness and help in the loss of my loving Husband, Edgar. Thanks to Reverend Neil Robertson, and McCalls and Dr. R. Sargent.
Margaret Smith.

309 IN MEMORIAM

JONES - In loving memory of a wonderful Mother, and Grandmother, Gwyneth who passed away April 22, 1976.
To hear her voice, to see her smile.
To sit and talk to her awhile.
To be together in the same old way.
Would be our Dearest wish today.
Always remembered by Ian, Diane, Chris and Dougie.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Is Your Hearing Aid Trouble Free?

Every hearing aid user wants a trouble free hearing aid. That's why Beltone spent six years and more than 50,000 hours of diligent, painstaking research to develop Certifax, an unsurpassed quality control system designed to increase the reliability of Beltone aids and assure greater user satisfaction.

Certifax computer documents and certifies factualy that the performance characteristics of each Beltone hearing aid are exactly as they are represented to be. It gives every Beltone user the confidence and assurance that the aid they're wearing is as reliable as modern manufacturing techniques can possibly make them.

If the aid you're wearing doesn't measure up to this standard — if it isn't giving you the kind of performance — the kind of satisfaction you've been looking for, give us a call or stop in and visit us soon. Keeping Beltone users Happy is Beltone's Number One responsibility. And we think that is what has made Beltone the Number One Name Brand on the North American Continent.

Blaze Guts City House

Careless smoking is blamed for a fire that erupted in an older wood-frame house at 2538 Scott early this morning causing more than $50,000 damage and sending a 70-year-old man to hospital with smoke inhalation.

Charles Brown was listed in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The fire, reported at 2:54 a.m., completely demolished Brown's house and spread to a house next door at 2534 Scott occupied by Mrs. Sarah Chaquette.

About $500 damage was done to Chaquette's home when the heat from the blaze scorched the siding and broke two windows.

A Victoria fire department spokesman said Brown had fallen asleep in the living room and awoke to find the couch on which he was lying in flames and the room filling with smoke.

He managed to stumble outside where he collapsed on the front lawn.

A preliminary investigation indicates the fire was caused by a carelessly placed cigarette.

Flames from the fire lit up the sky for more than a quarter mile. They were soaring 40 to 50 feet in the air when firemen first reached the scene.

Preservation Of St. Ann's Priority: Curtis

The exterior of St. Ann's Academy is to get a face-lift and the historic chapel will be completely restored, the provincial secretary's ministry said Friday.

The Humboldt Street complex was purchased by the provincial government in 1974.

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said the preservation of the former girls school is a priority with the government's Heritage Conservation Branch.

First priority will be restoration of the chapel and the nearby public display area along with the restoration of the exterior of the building.

Curtis said the branch will work closely with the Bishop of Victoria and the Sisters of St. Ann in planning and researching the restoration project.

The chapel at St. Ann's was the first cathedral in Victoria when it was built in 1858.

The main academy building was constructed in three phases between 1871 and 1913.

The annex across the street from the main academy was recently turned over to the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

Researchers Given $1.2M

More than $1.2 million in grants has been awarded by the federal government's Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council to scientists at the University of Victoria for research projects during the next year.

The grants are to hire research assistants and to pay for equipment for research ranging from studies of older stars to an investigation of a new enzyme discovered by UVic scientists.

In addition to the regular NSERC grants, UVic scientists working at TRIUMF received $225,000 for research projects. TRIUMF is the $32 million cyclotron at the University of British Columbia where scientists probe sub-atomic particles.

Thirteen scientists in three UVic departments were also awarded $153,000 for the first year of a three-year $518,000 study of acquatic and marine pollution.

UVic received a $30,000 grant for projects connected with the university's research vessel, the John Strickland.

Dean of graduate studies Dr. John Dewey said the grants represented a 9.3 increase in scientific funds for UVic.

"It is very satisfying," he said. "This is a good indication that research done at this university is considered to be of national importance."

The regular NSERC grants were given to professors in the departments of chemistry, physics, biology, mathematics, biochemistry and microbiology, psychology and the school of public administration.

The department of biochemistry and microbiology received $122,000 for research projects, an increase of 45 per cents in funds for that department from 1978-79.

Biologist Dr. John Hayward also received funds to continue his reseach into techniques for survival in cold water.

Physicist Dr. R. M. Clements received a grant to continue his investigation of impovememts to the operation of the internal combustion engine, while Dr. Clare Porac, a psychologist, received funds to continue her research on eye movement mechanisms.

Dr. Michael Ashwood-Smith, a biologist, received funds to continue his investigation of the mutagenic effects of freeze-dry cells.

Sessionals to Get Reply

University of Victoria faculty deans have promised to look into complaints that the university's sessional lecturers are getting a raw deal from the administration.

Dr. George Monticone, a sessional lecturer with the philosophy department, said today the university's committee of deans has agreed to reply to the lecturer's complaints within two weeks.

A committee representing sessional lecturers met with the deans earlier this week.

The sessionals feel they are being exploited by the university. They are seeking equality with regular faculty members.

Monticone noted sessionals receive far less pay than regular faculty staff despite the fact many are academically as well qualified. In addition, they are denied benefits or job security.

In a brief presented to the deans, Monticone and colleague Dr. John Banks said that the university's attitude towards sessionals is depriving an entire generation of young scholars of the opportunity to make significant contributions to their particular fields of study.

Monticone said the sessionals are miffed the university hadn't arranged a meeting sooner. The committee, formed last October by university president Dr. Howard Petch, had asked to present their case several months ago.

"It's going to be difficult now because most of the people in our position will be leaving fairly soon," Monticone said.

Sessionals are hired on a contract basis covering the winter or summer session only. Normally the same person is not permitted to hold more than two consecutive contracts.

Monticone said the sessionals may find themselves in an awkward position if the issue isn't resolved quickly.

"If it continues over the summer months, it'll be tough because the continuity of our group will be broken."

Collision Injures Woman

A 31-year-old woman was taken to hospital with a possible whiplash after her car collided with another on Quadra near Hulford at about 7 p.m. Friday.

April Evelyn Clarke of 3850 Lancaster was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for pains to her shoulder, neck and back, and later released.

The driver of the other car, Leonard Maycock, 41, of 3580 Quadra, was not hurt.

Arts, Crafts Show Set

This year's Saanich Peninsula Arts and Crafts Show and Sale takes place at Sidney's Sanscha Hall, May 5 and 6. The jurors who will select the paintings and crafts for special commendation are Windsor Utley and John Kyle for paintings and sculptures; Jan Groves for pottery and Elizabeth Kerfoot for the fabric arts.

Featured artist this 26th anniversary year is Kathleen Craig of Sooke, a weaver of high quality tapestries. Ms. Craig studied art in England, France and Ontario and took up weaving under the tuition of Katherine Dickerson, when she came to Victoria. She has won many awards in the media, both here and in the United States. She is currently exhibition chairman of the Victoria Handweavers and Spinners Guild and is preparing the Guild exhibit for the Pacific-Northwest Exhibition (biennial) in June at Spokane. Ms. Craig will be demonstrating on the stage at Sanscha Hall.

SPAC members will be demonstrating the spinning of yarn on May 5 and on Sunday the demonstration will be by Judith McKenzie of Victoria. Others demonstrating in various media will be Muffet Grieve and Mavis Mooney, pottery; Bill Doggart, stained glass; Nancy Secter, batik; Bob Brinton, clay sculpture; Inge Eck, silversmithing; Wanda Hull and Niel Milner, oil technique; Maxine Bradley and Mimi Jones, watercolor; and David Yuill from the House of the Whale's Ribs on Hornby Island, drawing.

Portraits will be done by Tine Andriessen Booth who uses a variety of media in her art.

There will be door prizes worth over an estimated $500 and donated by members.

Tickets for the show and sale are available from SPAC members or at the door on show days.

Dockers Approve New Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — Longshoremen in seven British Columbia ports have narrowly approved a three year contract that will raise their base rate of $9.10 an hour by $2.70 during its term.

But a spokesman for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said Friday the vote was so close a recount has been ordered for verification, with results to be released May 3.

The longshoremen work in Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Prince Rupert.

Children's Problems Workshop

More than 25 subjects dealing with pre-school children's problems will be discussed at a one-day workshop on Saturday, April 28 at 9 a.m. in Room 144, MacLaurin Building, University of Victoria.

It is sponsored by the Vancouver Island Pre-School Co-Operative Association and the UVic extension division.

Speakers will include Hedda Sharapan, associate producer of the American children's show Mister Roger's Neighborhood, Victoria lawyer Dennis Latham and Margaret Toakley of the Greater Victoria Public Library.

Nine Taped Phone Calls Played to Pot Trial Jury

Nine tape-recorded telephone calls were played to the jury in county court Friday, the 12th day of the trial of five men accused of conspiracy to import 13.63 tons of marijuana said to have a wholesale value in the area of $20 million.

Prosecution witnesses identified the speakers in the phone calls as special agent Ernest Staples of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, Philip Ward, Robert Miller, Terry Trainor and unknown persons.

None of the persons mentioned by the witnesses corresponded with any of the five men standing trial.

The trial, being presided over by Judge Peter Millward, was to continue Monday.

Accused of conspiracy to import marijuana between April 1 and July 16, 1978; importing marijuana between the same dates; and possession of marijuana on July 15 for the purpose of trafficking are: Garth Clarence Vincent Joseph Sexton, 28, of Vancouver; Ronald Cecil Spurrell, 31, of Surrey; Frederick Charles Scott, 28, of Vancouver; John Mobley Doss, 25, of Dillon, Colorado, formerly from Newfoundland; and Frank Piersanti, 28, an American citizen.

Named but not charged in the indictment before the jury are Neil Maxwell Kennedy, Terrance Gerard Trainor, Kevin Gerard Gushue, Robert Sherman Miller, Gordon Barlow Tait, Frederick MacKintosh Tait, Allen Valenti, Patrick Joseph Murphy, Edwin Floyd Terry also known as Philip Stanley Ward, Melville Douglas Balfour, Jillian Penney, Vicki Hann, Nilo Batista and Maurice Pereira.

On one of the tapes, a man said to be Robert Miller is talking to a woman said to be his common-law wife in which she discusses taking a ferry and joining him. He asked her to bring the rifle over for some target practice and to phone Gordie and tell him to bring Freddie, "he'll know what it's about."

Former RCMP Const. Philip Potter, now a Vancouver businessman, who worked on the case last year, said it was Miller on the phone and he had overheard a conversation from Miller on the vessel Weatherly which was intercepted by the RCMP July 15 northwest of Tofino.

He agreed in cross-examination that all he could remember was a man answering "Bob Miller" when asked by another policeman for his name on the boat.

In another tape, Potter said he recognized the voice of Terry Trainor but not another man.

Trainor began the call by asking if George Trainor was there and during the call asked to be sent $5,000 to an address in Langley. There was also conversation about buying property and building a driveway.

Staples, who posed as a representative of Acapulco businessman Nilo Batista who provided the vessel Toernyn which brought the marijuana to B.C. last summer, identified several phone calls between himself and Philip Ward July 5, 6 and 7.

He testified earlier that Batista was a "co-operating individual" with the Drug Enforcement Administration who was to receive $145,000 from individuals who rented the Toernyn.

In one of the calls, Staples said the boat owner was concerned that his rental money would not be forthcoming and that he thought the owner would want all of it in three or four days.

Ward is heard to say he can't do it and Staples says the owner would quite likely call off the delivery because the owner wasn't going to have Ward renege on the deal when it was too late for him to do anything about it.

Ward responded by saying "we just can't do it" and that the $145,000 would be paid when the boat got to Canada.

Staples said he thought Batista would take $100,000 immediately with the other $45,000 to be paid on the boat's arrival.

In another call, Ward says "we don't have anything up front until we see what we are getting" and "we'll give you 145 when we get it."

But Staples said the boat owner had got to see some good faith and suggested a meeting in Seattle or Blaine.

Ward responded by saying he had got $100,000 but "we're not putting it up before we know it's our's." He also said: "The phone is not the place to be talking."

Ward also said he would show Staples the money but he couldn't give him the money because it wasn't his to give.

He added that he couldn't give away other people's money, that someone would have to be sent to Ontario to get it, and that paying it to the Toernyn's captain was no problem.

Staples again said the owner wanted a substantial amount, about $100,000.

In a further call, Staples and Ward agreed to meet in the lobby of the Washington Plaza Hotel in Seattle and Ward said he had $40,000 with him and $60,000 would come from someone called Keith.

Staples testified earlier in the trial that he was introduced by Batista to Ward and Patrick Murphy May 23 in Puntarenas, Costa Rica, and on July 8 in the Washington Plaza Hotel lobby, he, Batista and Ward met. Ward produced $40,000 and said his girlfriend Vicki would bring $60,000 from Keith in Denver that evening, which was done.

It was agreed that a further $40,000 would be paid to Toernyn captain Maurice Pereira on arrival in B.C. and the last $5,000 was excused.

Staples told the jury Friday he made the phone calls from San Diego, his Vancouver hotel and the RCMP office in Victoria to a B.C. number which Murphy told him was the residence of Kevin and Jill.

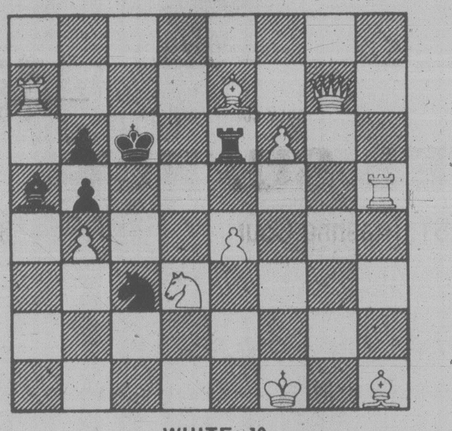
BLACK: 6



WHITE: 10
White to play and mate in two moves. Solution below.

TOUCHE!

Chief Petty Officer Richard W. Collamer (Ret.) wrote me recently, "Many years ago, a friend of mine, the late Mr. Henry Sutton, who was a multi-lingual Seneca Indian, was playing in a tournament in New York.

"After only a few moves and finding mate was imminent, his opponent excused himself from the board, went to the other side of the room and brought back Jose Capablanca, then World Champion.

"Addressing him in Spanish, which Henry Sutton understood, Sutton's adversary said, 'Cappy, what would you do in a position like this?'

"The Cuban Master surveyed the disastrous situation, then announced in a loud voice, 'I would never GET in a position like this!!!!!' "

Before The Judge

Two 17-year-old students who made off with about 18 car emblems (hood ornaments) during a spree early in the morning of March 31 pleaded guilty Friday in provincial court to a joint charge of possession of stolen property valued under $200.

The court was told that police went to the 4000-block Quadra after receiving a complaint of youths "prowling" among parked cars. Police apprehended Thomas Fitterer, of 3520 Maplewood and Robert Simpson of 3657 Dartmouth fleeing the area and were found in possession of the emblems which had been removed by a screwdriver.

The court was told that not all of the car owners had as yet claimed their emblems, most of which are valued between $10 and $15.

Judge Blake Allan deferred sentencing the two teenagers until the cost of re-installing the emblems could be determined.

"This is an expense to the owners of the cars and these boys should pay," he said.

The two were remanded until May 11 for sentencing.

Salmon Bonanza on Way

Bill Halkett photos

WHERE there's a will there's a way as Dacker Thicke of Victoria Recycling Company proves daily. Thicke, who operates a scrap yard at Bay and Bridge, couldn't get a crusher for the 125 car wrecks he's collected over the past two weeks. So he rented a bulldozer instead. The method is simple enough. The bucket crashes in the roof of the car, while a deft manoeuvre of the lumbering cat does the rest. "It don't look too pretty," Thicke says. "But it sure gets them awfully flat."

Price Boom From Japan

The catch isn't even in yet, but Japanese businessmen have already embarked on a cash-in-advance buying spree that is expected to push the price paid to fishermen for salmon to $6 a pound, up from $3 last year.

This will result in high supermarket prices but create a bonanza for the Victoria fishing industry.

B.C. Packers, a major provincial cannery, predicts Japan will buy 50 per cent of the salmon catch, up from 27 per cent last year and 12 per cent in 1977.

(Japan already has more than doubled its purchases of B.C. herring roe. By year's end it will significantly exceed the $220 million it paid in 1978 for about half of all the fish products caught in B.C. waters.)

The result will be a record income year for fishermen despite the fact the total salmon catch will be lower than in 1978 because the run is at a low point in the cycle.

Oakland Industries president Ned Easton said the report is good news for the 1,200 fishermen in the Victoria area and for his cannery as well.

"We will be employing about 250 people around the clock for at least two months to handle the catch."

He said the high bidding means added wealth for the Victoria economy, although it was too early to put a dollar figure on it.

"This is what we hoped to achieve when Cananda put in the 200-mile fishing limit," Easton said.

"We stopped them from fishing in our waters and now they have to buy from us. There will be people who are unhappy about the Japanese buying so much of our fish but this is what the 200-mile limit is all about."

Easton said it would be difficult to predict where the price of canned salmon would go on the local market.

The price increase might be minimal, he said, because a large supply would come on the market at one time, despite the heavy Japanese buying.

However, federal Fisheries officer Larry Duke was less optimisitic about local prices. The Japanese bidding inevitably would push up the price for both fresh and canned salmon in Victoria, he said.

He added that the price increases could be significant.

"This looks like good news for the fisherman but bad news for the consumer," he said.

Although the salmon season doesn't open until the

Prairie Flood Threat

Times News Services

WINNIPEG — Rising floodwaters threatened several Manitoba and Saskatchewan communities today, but most of the danger remained south of the U.S. border.

Residents of the Peguis Indian reserve on the Fisher River in the Interlake area of Manitoba appeared to be hardest hit Friday. Crews planned to evacuate residents to Gimli today.

About 1,600 people live on the reserve, 150 kilometres north of Winnipeg, and Gimli industrial park was being readied to receive 300 to 500 of those forced out of their homes.

Scattered flooding was also reported in the Gimli area.

Meanwhile, the flood watch continued in southern Saskatchewan, with officials keeping a close eye on slowly rising waters.

The most volatile situation appeared to be in around Estevan, Sask., where water levels at Boundary Dam reservoir were rising quickly.

Residents of Carman, southwest of Winnipeg, were busy sandbagging in preparation for the crest on the Boyne River expected Sunday or Monday.

Most parts of Winnipeg proper remained dry, and the gates of the Winnipeg floodway were raised Friday to channel additional water from the Red River around the city.

However, some problems were reported because of runoff water and water from creeks in the city, which caused some streets to be under water and a number of flooded basements.

Harry Enns, minister in charge of the Emergency Measures Organization, said Friday local flooding and the crests of the main rivers should be well separated.

"We're not expecting the main rivers to crest for another week to 10 days, and hopefully by then much of the water from smaller tributaries that are now flooding will disappear," Enns said.

About 600,000 of the one million sandbags stockpiled by the EMO have already been distributed.

Manitoba's problems seemed minor, compared with those facing residents of North Dakota and Minnesota near the Red River and its tributaries.

Much of the area's farmland was under water, but the real battle was to keep damage in developed areas to a minimum.

In West Fargo, N.D., volunteers worked through the night repairing dikes along the Sheyenne River.

Grand Forks, N.D., and East Grand Forks, Minn., were also considered critical areas along with Graf-

One Tiny Thing Wrong . . .

There's only one little thing wrong with Esquimalt's new $870,000 public safety building which officially opens next month.

The police wing has been built back-to-front.

But the architect's rendering put the entrance off Park Place, a lane running at the back of shops on Esquimalt Road.

Council apparently spotted the discrepancy some months ago but didn't bother correcting the plan because that would have cost an extra $700.

A spokesman said the police officers don't mind. They're just happy to be out of the cramped quarters in the basement of the municipal hall that had been their home for the past 25 years.

"Besides," the spokesman added, "You got to admit 500 Park Place is a lot easier address to remember."

IRA Blasts Freight Train

BELFAST (Reuter) — A freight train was hijacked and its locomotive blown up today, blocking the main rail link between Ireland and Northern Ireland, police said.

A police spokesman said the hijacking was almost certainly the work of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, which has carried out a dozen such operations in the last few years.

He said an armed man jumped on the train shortly after it crossed into Northern Ireland in Armagh and ordered the driver to stop at Kileen Bridge, a few kilometres from the border.

Six or seven men then placed two metal milk containers packed with explosives in the locomotive and blocked the road bridge overhead with four hijacked trucks.

An army helicopter was flying overhead, but security forces were not moving in for fear that the train and the trucks might be booby-trapped.

Still Open Season on Mail?

TORONTO (CP) — Interlocking loopholes in regulations governing the RCMP and customs officers allow the force to legally open virtually all mail coming into Canada, even while the practice is under investigation by the McDonald commission into RCMP wrongdoing, according to the Toronto Star.

The RCMP Act accords officers of the national force all the rights of customs officers.

And the newspaper says it obtained a copy of confidential Revenue Canada regulations which say customs officers are entitled to open all mail arriving internationally "other than letters."

However, The Star says its source added that the definition of letters is sufficiently loose "that a lump or bump in an envelope as simple as a fold in a letter" is suspect.

Former RCMP commissioner William Higgitt told the McDonald commission that all mail-opening by the force under an operation named Operation Cathedral was suspended Aug. 1, 1975.

"Sometimes the customs officer himself will open the mail," The Star quotes its customs source as saying. "All he needs is suspicion that it contains contraband."

The Star also quotes a confidential Revenue Canada intelligence report issued in June, 1977, as saying only seven to 10 per cent of international mail is scrutinized due to volume and manpower restrictions. Letters most likely to be singled out come from Thailand, India, Peru, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Jamaica and all Communist countries.

"It's absolute bull," RCMP Supt. John Bentham said Friday in a telephone interview from Ottawa. "And we're not opening letters as customs officials, either."

The Star quotes Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, as saying the RCMP still opens mail.

Promising Day In Campaign

FP News Service

It was a promising day on the federal election campaign trail Friday — very promising.

The Liberals promised a tax deduction for workers who buy shares of companies in which they work, the New Democrats promised a tax-saving plan for home owners and renters, and the Conservatives promised to promote national unity with cheap air fares for Canadian youth.

(For details of all the promises and other campaign stories, see pages 30, 31 and 32.)

After unveiling a string of incentives and assistance programs for business and industry early in the week, Prime Minister Trudeau offered something for the workers — the Employee Stock Ownership Incentive Plan. The Liberals hail it as an encouragement to equity investment in their own company by Canadian workers, and say it will "contribute to an improvement in labor-management relations."

The NDP's cost of living tax credit tax credit was unveiled in Winnipeg by party-leader Ed Broadbent.

When unveiling his program to help Canadian youth travel unexpensively, Clark criticized the Liberals for not following up on the original suggestion, from the Official Languages Commissioner.

Speaking haltingly in French to a gathering in Quebec's Eastern Townships, Clark said cheaper youth fares would promote national unity by letting Canadian young people to know more about their country.

A-G to Probe Baby Beating Death

SURREY (CP) — Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy said Friday she will ask Attorney-General Garde Gardom to investigate RCMP demands to have the beating-death case of a 10-month-old child here last year re-opened even though an initial examination shows the claims are groundless.

The two officers who initially investigated the case say they want it re-opened because social workers knew of the infant's peril three months before it died.

Although the baby's father, Walter Bayko, 23, is serving a life sentence for the killing, they are not satisfied justice has been done, say Cpl. Kit Gill and Const. Norman Hunchuk.

The baby's death could have and should have been prevented, said Gill.

"Some blame should be on human resources (the provincial social services agency) as they were aware of the beatings and didn't do anything about it," Gill said.

"I know they have one hell of a work load but that can't be an excuse. We have a heavy load, but I'm sure if we knew about it we would have done something."

She died the next day.

A spokesman for the human resources ministry said a social worker went to the home of Bayko and June Harder, the child's mother, the day after an anonymous caller said in January 1978 that the man had been beating the baby.

The social worker said he visited the home twice and saw bruises on the child's cheeks, forehead and left leg.

Harder said on the first visit the baby had been hitting her head on the sides of her carriage and had fallen out of it.

The next day the soial worker was assured by Bayko, Harder, Harder's mother and brother that the baby was being looked after properly and was not being abused.

The human resources spokesman said when a worker tried to follow up the case a month later he could not find anyone at home.

Gill says there should be a coroner's investigation or an inquiry into the human resources handling of the case.

Social workers knew that Mrs. Harder's first child had been given up for adoption, and Gill said he made sure that her third, born after the death of Charlene, had been taken by human resources.

Hunchuk says he was amazed that more action was not taken in the case.

"Obviously something went wrong. Someone goofed along the line or passed the buck. It was very lax."
